MORE AID FOR FARMS

As many as 20 pieces of legislation specifically designed to improve the lot of British Columbia farmers will be introduced in the fall session of the legislature, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said today.

Stupich said that when the legislature was debating the controversial Land Commission Act, which restricts urban development of agricultural land, the government said it would be bringing in measures to make farming a more viable occupation in the province.

That legislation will be seen this fall, he said today, and although some pieces will not have a major impact, all will aid the farming community.

Stupich said compensation for farmers whose intention to dispose of their land was vetoed by the land commission act was not provided because the government wanted to see the land continuing to be used for agricultural purposes.

The plan is now to make sure that farming is made an attractive profession in order to keep people on the land.

The minister said the legislative committee on agriculture which is presently on a

Bank Again Acts To Cool Economy

Times News Services

OTTAWA — For the second time in less than a month the Bank of Canada has moved to curb credit and cool inflation through an increase in the prime lending rate.

The central bank announced Sunday that the rate would rise to 6¼ per cent beginning today, from the 5¾ per cent in effect since May 14. A month before, on April 9, the rate was boosted to 5¼ per cent, the first increase since October, 1971, when it was increased to 4¾.

Loans for a variety of other purposes from short-term business borrowings to mortgage rates for new houses will undoubtedly cost more because of the action.

The discount rate is the level at which the government bank loans money to private banks.

In turn the private firms have been loaning money at the prime rate of 7.25 per cent, with a special rate of 6.75 for small businesses.

This can be expected to rise to 7.75 and 7.25 because of the increased cost of borrowing funds from the Bank of Canada, a Victoria bank manager said.

Most Victoria banks loan funds to consumers at 11.9 per cent for regular customers, 10.9 for preferred consumer risks.

The new general rate for consumer loans could be expected to rise shortly to about 12.5 per cent.

Royal Bank was the first to raise its prime lending rate for small and large businesses a well as interest paid on non-chequable savings accounts by one-half of one per cent.

The increase brings its prime lending base rate on small business loans of under $200,000 to 7¼ per cent and the regular prime lending rate to 7¾ per cent, effective June 13.

The interest rate charged for consumer loans remain unchanged at 12 per cent and mortgage rates remain unchanged at 9½ per cent, the bank said.

Gerald K. Bouey, governor of the central bank since February, explained the latest squeeze on credit as a response to the "extraordinarily rapid growth" in bank credit so far this year.

The federal bank manipulates credit and spending conditions through its controls on money supply and interest rates. The double jump in rates constitutes efforts to keep borrowing and spending in check without squeezing productive activity to the point that jobs are lost.

Yet the government continues to heat up the economy with such things as proposed tax cuts and deficit spending outlined in the Feb. 19 budget.

The latest rate increase comes a day ahead of the monthly Statistics Canada report on consumer prices. They shot up 1.1 per cent in April from 145.7 in March and 145.3 in February. The two earlier bank rate boosts also were closely timed to the price index announcement.

Bouey said the heavy demand for credit is related to the "very strong performance of the economy."

But coincident pressure on short-term interest rates domestically and on foreign countries created a need for yet another economic braking action.

The rate increase seems certain to be regarded as a further attempt to ease the inflationary impact on the economy.

Calculated on a yearly basis, bank credit had been growing at a rate of 30 per cent since January.

At the same time, Bouey maintained that monetary growth would be sufficient to sustain economic expansion and employment.

Strike Vote At Mills

The major union in British Columbia's pulp and paper industry is taking a strike vote this week following the breaking off of negotiations last Friday.

The United Paperworkers International Union has 7,200 members at 11 mills. This includes the paper machines at Crofton and the entire mills at Port Alberni, Campbell River and Port Alice on Vancouver Island.

Another union, the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, has 4,500 members at eight mills. Talks between this union and the industry recessed last week with negotiators returning to individual mills to deal with local bargaining issues.

The deadline for UPIU locals to complete strike votes is June 19, regional vice-president Pat O'Neal said today.

He said negotiations "foundered mainly on money matters" including union proposals on health and welfare, long-term disability, pensions, vacations, adjustments for steam plant and maintenance personnel and the main wage demand of 10½ per cent, with a minimum of 55 cents an hour, in each year of a two-year agreement.

The Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the companies, has offered both unions a two-year package including a 7½ per cent wage increase with a minimum of 33½ cents this year and a further 7½ per cent next year.

The present base labor rate is $4.08½ cents an hour and the mechanics rate is $5.70 an hour.

O'Neal said "considerable progress" was made since bargaining began May 7 "but in the opinion of the delegates insufficient to justify a settlement in view of the excellent state of the industry and the rocketing pace of inflation."

He said bureau demands for changes in work schedules during the Easter shutdown and the right to select relief foremen without regard to seniority "also created problems.

"Their refusal to discuss contracting out, job security and their adamant 'no' to the union's request for full disclosure on the millions of dollars tied up in pension funds further aggravated the situation."

Industry negotiator Don Lanskail said "we felt that negotiations had been proceeding in a constructive manner and in fact many of the issues are resolved." He expressed regret that UPIU chose to break off talks.

He said the industry's wage offer to both unions would cost $25 million.

Difficulties arose, he said, from the fact that simultaneous negotiations had to be conducted with both unions.

The industry wage offer also included a dental plan and "substantial improvements" in fringe areas such as vacations, health and welfare and pensions.

Both men indicated negotiations will resume after the strike votes have been taken.

Arrests Inflate Heroin

The local street price of heroin is fluctuating between $30 and $40 a cap as a result of Vancouver's recent crackdown, head of Victoria drug squad Sgt. David Staples said today.

Prices skyrocketed from the normal $20 a cap after Vancouver police arrested 173 persons last week in connection with the heroin trade.

In Vancouver the price of one cap reached $50 at one point but it has now dropped back to between $15 and $20, said Staples.

It is not known whether or not prices have gone that high in Victoria.

Most of Victoria's 500 known addicts have been "pretty sick" lately, said Staples, because heroin coming into the city has been cut by as much as 50 per cent with baking soda or other powders.

The situation is the same all over Vancouver Island, said Staples, prices jump every time "the heat's on."

Last week Staples said a $500,000 cocaine seizure in Vancouver and another in Los Angeles which netted $700,000 worth of cocaine would have no effect in Victoria.

Asked if the drug squad is planning raids similar to those in Vancouver, Staples said he could obviously not answer but did say, "We've always got something in the making."

All Flights On Time

Flights in and out of Victoria International Airport continued normally today despite a 24-hour strike by members of the International Association of Machinists which extended to eight of the country's provincial capitals and Ottawa.

Only Toronto and Charlottetown (which isn't served by Air Canada) were not hit by the rotating strike tactic of the IAM in its contract renewal dispute with the company. More than 700 union members were involved in today's walkouts.

In Victoria, 23 baggage handlers and loaders didn't report for work this morning. But no picket lines were established.

"We are operating everything on schedule so far," said Air Canada's local manager, Stan Mooney. Supervisors did the work.

11 PWA FLIGHTS

Air Canada has four flights in and out today and Pacific Western Airlines has 11. Air Canada ground crews service PWA in Victoria.

A 24-hour walkout hit Vancouver Saturday, the second since IAM began the rotating strikes. Today's was the first for Victoria.

Airline officials said the Vancouver strike caused a few minor delays but no flight cancellations.

In the east, Air Canada said it anticipated "some delays, particularly in the Maritimes. We are trying to space out our arrivals at the affected airports."

Talks between the IAM and Air Canada broke down last week. IAM said it won't go back to bargaining until Air Canada changes its position on issues.

STUMBLING BLOCKS

The airline said wages were the major stumbling block, but IAM said there are other important issues, including discrimination against union members in layoffs and language requirements for some jobs.

The layoff issue arose from last year's air traffic controllers strike when IAM complained its mechanics were laid off when they had work to do but clerical and supervisory personnel remained on the job with no work.

The union has sought a 20 per cent wage increase in a two-year contract while Air Canada has offered 15 per cent over 25 months. Mechanics with two years experience now earn between $4.99 and $5.49 an hour.

WARREN RUNNING

KELOWNA (CP) — B.C. Conservative leader Derril Warren said today he will seek his party's nomination to contest the Okanagan South byelection to fill the seat left vacant by the resignation last week of former premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Bennett, MLA for the riding since 1941, resigned his seat last Tuesday. On Friday the 34-year-old Conservative leader, defeated in his bid to win a legislative seat in North Vancouver-Seymour last August, was invited by the Conservative's local executive to let his name stand.

Warren said he has accepted a position with a Kelowna law firm and intends to make this city a permanent home for his family "win, lose or draw."

Warren said that he and his wife are both natives of Kelowna and were married here in 1960.

The date for the byelection has not yet been set.

NEWS BRIEFS

Oil Takeover

BEIRUT (UPI) — Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy announced today the nationalization of the Texas-owned Bunker Hunt Oil Co. Khadafy told a mass rally in Tripoli, "the revolutionary command council has decided to nationalize the Bunker Hunt American Oil company."

Hijack Haul

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Police in three Indian states launched a search today for three men who hijacked a Royal Nepal Airlines plane Sunday and diverted it to an abandoned airfield, where they escaped with a $400,000 bank shipment.

Hunger Strike

MOSCOW (UPI) — Seven Soviet Jewish scientists said today they have started a hunger strike to protest their "forcible detainment" in the Soviet Union and are prepared to take their lives if not allowed to emigrate.

Arms Seized

BEIRUT (AP) — Security forces seized a truckload of arms near the Syrian border early today after a five-minute gun battle in which one of the truck's occupants was killed.

TOMMIES HURT

SUFFIELD, Alta. (CP) — Fourteen members of the Third Company No. 1 Dragoon Guards, a British regiment, were injured early today when a live shell exploded on the training range at CFB Suffield, 50 miles northeast of Medicine Hat.

LAUNDROMAT A KILLER

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A young housewife was beaten to death by the fins in a laundromat dryer when her bra strap became entangled in the drum, police reported Sunday.

Mrs. Michiko Ogawa, 30, was found dead Friday near the door of the laundromat and there was a trail of blood from the dryer. Police first thought she had been murdered.

However, further investigation showed that when her bra strap became caught in the spinning drum, her head was dragged into such a position that it was struck repeatedly by the fins in the drum.

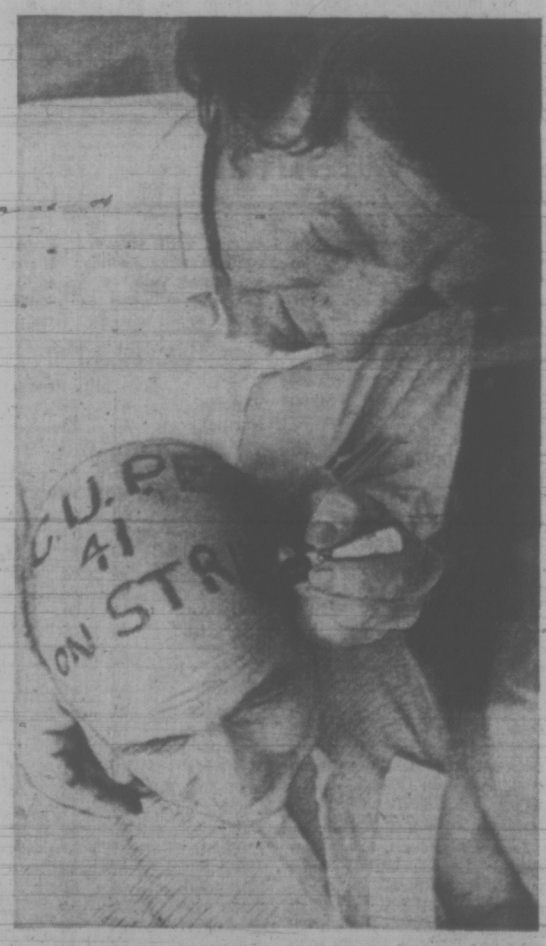
ICCS Clamps Lifted

SAIGON (CP) — Restrictions on the movement of Canadian military personnel with the international truce force were lifted today after officials decided security risks had diminished considerably.

The 240 or so military personnel with the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) were confined to barracks, except for essential movements, Saturday during a major flare-up in hostilities across South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, in the besieged provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, two Canadian officers and other ICCS representatives are remaining in a sandbagged bunker near their compound to protect themselves from heavy artillery fire in the area.

In Paris, negotiations over a new pact continued today as Kissinger's top aide, William Sullivan, and his North Vietnamese counterpart, Nguyen To Thach, met in the Paris suburb of Le Vesinet for discussions. The two were thought unlikely to conduct any top-level bargaining.



HEAD START on picket preparation is taken in Edmonton as Bruce Woodrow, one of 1,000 support staff workers at Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton has pertinent strike information penned on his pate by co-worker Cliff Ward. The support staff walked off the job at the hospital this morning over wage demands. In anticipation of the walkout, the hospital had already pared patient population by two-thirds.

Reject Drugs Dumped in B.C.: Cocke

The problem of poor-quality drugs coming into British Columbia is one that government and pharmacists must tackle together, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said today.

Cocke told delegates to the B.C. Pharmacy Convention at the Empress Hotel that he's had many reports of poor-quality drugs entering the province since Ontario's Parcost program was set up.

"Maybe we'll have to have our own Parcost," he said.

Parcost is a program of the Ontario government which tests different drugs, especially low-cost drugs, and sends pharmacists a list of drugs that have been tested and approved. Object is to provide high-quality drugs at the lowest possible prices.

Since it was set up, there have been reports that drugs that didn't win Parcost approval are being dumped in other provinces instead.

The federal government's drug-testing program, QUAD (Quality Drugs) has so far tested few drugs, Cocke said.

B.C. could possibly set up a Parcost scheme together with two or three other provinces, he said.

Cocke reminded the pharmacists that the government is still looking closely at setting up a government core drug purchasing program.

"A lot of the reason for the high (drug) prices is because of the fantastic advertising and . . . a very close relationship between drug companies," he said.

Aim of the government bulk-buying scheme would be lower drug prices, said Cocke.

He urged the pharmacists to break through the "semi-isolation" they now work in, and begin to work more closely with the rest of the health care team.

"If we don't do anything else we must provide ourselves with a communications network in the delivery of health care," he said.

The conference, which ends Wednesday, combines the annual meetings of the Pharmaceutical Association of B.C. and the B.C. Professional Pharmacists' Society. More than 400 pharmacists are attending.

Autos Lead Consumers' Complaints

Automobiles are the most troublesome consumer product in B.C., say delegates at the first province-wide consumer conference which began in Victoria today.

"The automobile is the most difficult area we deal with in B.C. and we just can't seem to get anything done about it," Ruth Lotzkar, provincial president of the Consumers Association of Canada, told the 28 delegates.

Fifty per cent of complaints filed with the Better Business Bureau deal with automobile and other major appliances, said Vincent Forbes, executive vice-president of the mainland bureau.

The two consumer experts were making opening remarks this morning at the two-day conference in the museum sponsored by the provincial government.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who is chairing the convention, termed it an "interesting experiment" in bringing together consumer representatives in public discussion with the provincial government.

All discussion by delegates will be recorded and transcribed into Hansard form, Macdonald said, for use by the new minister without portfolio for consumer affairs, Phyllis Young.

First remarks at the conference were made by Prof. William Neilson from the University of Toronto law school, who said while much progress had been made in consumer legislation in the last 10 years, most had been on an ad hoc and piecemeal basis.

Many much-heralded reforms enacted recently have been long identified and long overdue, he said.

He also criticized the "only middling record of joint activities" between consumer groups and different levels of government and said conferences such as these are a step in the right direction.

In discussing most frequent consumer complaints, Forbes also pointed to mail order companies who harass consumers who are unaware of the contract obligations they entered into.

He said education should be the most important concern of the consumer conference and added that a proper consumer education system should be established in high schools.

The conference continues Tuesday.

Dean's Papers 'Damning' For Nixon

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Former presidential aide John Dean has a "sheaf" of documents reputedly showing that President Nixon personally knew of efforts to conceal the Watergate scandal, Newsweek magazine reported Sunday.

The magazine added that Dean "is said also to have some embarrassing tapes of senior White House officials though none of Nixon himself."

According to the report, which quotes unidentified Senate sources, Dean has told investigators he has "supporting documents and memorandums, no one of which 'convicts' the president but which taken together suggest a damning pattern."

Meanwhile, in Washington, Herbert Kalmbach was quoted today as saying payments made to defendants in the Watergate bugging case and their lawyers were a "White House project."

Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer, solicited $75,000 from the Finance Committee to re-elect the President on June 29, 1972, for an urgent project that he said "had approval of high authorities," the committee said in a report to the federal General accounting office GAO.

A committee spokesman confirmed that this is the same sum Kalmbach ahd previously told the GAO he included in payments to the Watergate defendants and their lawyers.

In all, Kalmbach solicited and paid $210,000 for this purpose, but only $75,000 came from Maurice Stans, chairman of the finance committee.

The committee said it never had reported the expenditure publicly because Kalmbach told committee officials it was unrelated to the election campaign.

But the committee said it was reporting this expenditures along with others about which questions have been raised in recent months, in the interest of full disclosure.

News reports have said that Kalmbach is ready to testify that he solicited the Watergate money on instructions of former White House domestic adviser John Ehrlichman.

These reports said that Kalmbach said he balked at raising more money when asked to do so by former White House chief-of-staff H. R. Haldeman.

The Nixon committee report to the GAO said that on June 29, 1972, Kalmbach had asked Stans for "all possible cash funds" to be given him for the urgent "White House project."

This was less than two weeks after five men were arrested inside Democratic Party offices at the Wantergate building in the early hours of June 17, 1972.

Republican national chairman George Bush said on the weekend he wants a full public airing of the Watergate scandal, but administration officials appear to be lining up against the Senate's televised hearings.

Interior Secretary Rogers Morton said during a television interview Sunday that he opposes continuation of the Senate hearings, which he said are turning into a "dramatic production." He said the case ought to be tried in court.

And, in St. Louis, vice-president Agnew said today that hearings will only "muddy the waters of justice beyond redemption."

"Even if the Senate hearings succeed in reliably establishing the guilt of some individuals in the Watergate, they will probably do so at the expense of ultimate conviction of those persons in court," Agnew said.

TOP VIOLINS, BUT NO EAR

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Two of British Columbia's top violin makers are hard of hearing in one ear and don't play the instrument.

Hugh Sutherland, 44, a Sidney machinist, and Archie Shold, 48, of 2740 Dewdney, a stationary engineer, who have won many awards for their violins and violas, attended the annual convention of the Violin Makers' Association of British Columbia in the Newcombe Auditorium over the weekend.

Sutherland said the impairment to his left ear and not being a violin player hasn't hampered his violin-making — several of which are owned by skilled musicians.

"I guess our good ear becomes extra sensitive to sound — more than making up for the impairment in the other," said Shold.

They take about 250 hours to make a violin, shaped from maple and spruce.

The moment they carve a top or bottom plate for an instrument, they thump the wood with their fingers for tone.

"You get a key from the plates," said Shold. "You continually check them for tone as you progress."

"Feeling has a lot to do in making a quality instrument," said Sutherland. "It is not just sound."

An interest in woodwork started him making violins.

Sutherland also makes superb violas, an instrument which is becoming popular.

Shold became interested in the craft when he repaired his father's old fiddle. That was seven years ago and since then he has passed on his skill to his son, Murray, whose work may soon rival his father's.

Shold said a quality violin may sell asywhere between $500 and $1,500.

A musician does not necessarily buy an award-winning instrument, he said.

"He will try out several violins and will pick one with a tone he is looking for," he said.

Dr. Louis Grand, of New York City, N.Y., won the Centennial Grand Trophy for all instruments. He also won first prize in the viola and steel string violin sections of the competition and third prize for violin.

Hickerson also won the Don Wright trophy for tone and the Dr. Harry Iseli International trophy for the best violin.

Winners in the best new violin section are: George Friess, first; Archie Shold Victoria, second, and Ragnar Helin, Vancouver, third.

Frank Henderson, Seattle, won first prize in the cello section and first for best bow. Runners-up in the cello section are Eric Turnquist, Surrey, and Sid Jackson, Sidney.

Clarence Cooper, Victoria, and Hugh Sutherland, Sidney, came second and third in steel string violins.

Gold Loses Glitter

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold fell by a sharp $4.50 an ounce today while the dollar staged a modest rally in early trading in London, the only major European market open for business.

Trading was described as "very moderate."

Most European markets were closed because of the Ascension Day holiday.

On the London gold market, the most important in the world, the metal's price was pegged at $115.50 an ounce in the first of two daily price fixings by major bullion dealers. This compared with the Friday peak of $120.

The dollar changed hands in mid-morning trading at $2.5715 to the pound, up a bit from the Friday closing price of $2.5750.

AID FOR FARMERS

tour of the province, will study problems raised by farmers in each specific area and will develop recommendations for legislation.

Costs of benefits to farmers will likely have to be borne by other members of the community, he said.

An example is the proposed removal of education tax from farmland. This move would cost the government about $6 million per year in lost revenue, he said. The money will have to be made up by other segments of society or else government programs will suffer from lack of funds, he said.

Stupich's statement today is another in a series of government pronouncements about help on the way this fall for farmers in B.C. One of the government's main arguments during the Land Commission Act debate was that farming would be made more economically viable as soon as possible.

Loophole Denied In Strata Act

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said today he is not aware of an effort by some B.C. apartment owners to use a loophole in new provincial legislation in order to sidestep restrictions on condominium conversion projects.

Macdonald was asked to comment on a statement by Dave Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) in which Brousson charged that some apartment owners are declaring their apartment conversion projects as co-operatives and then forcing tenants to either buy shares or move out.

Macdonald said: "I don't really think they can do it," when asked about the report today and suggested Brousson see a lawyer about the problem.

Amendments to the Strata Titles Act, passed this session by the NDP government, now require four months' notice of an owner's intent to convert his apartment building into a condominium and provide $300 in moving expenses to be paid to those tenants who wish to move out.

Brousson told a North Vancouver meeting on the weekend that he is aware of a move by one North Vancouver apartment owner to illegally convert his building into a co-op and tell senior citizen tenants to either buy shares or move out.

He said the apartment becomes a company with tenants becoming shareholders for a fixed amount of money in return for which they would be allowed to lease a suite in the building.

U.S. Boat Held

BRASILIA (AP) — Brazilian naval authorities have detained a United States boat the third since mid-May, for fishing violations within this country's 200-mile sea limit, diplomatic sources reported Sunday. They said the lastest boat, the Miss Doris, was captured Wednesday and is being held at the northeastern port of Belem. The other two U.S. boats have been released.

14-Year-Old Missing

A 14-year-old Victoria girl, Marjorie Anne Good, has been missing from home since early Thursday afternoon.

Marjorie Anne, described by her father, Lloyd Good, 330 Niagara Street, as "small and immature for her age," was last seen shortly after 1:30 p.m. Thursday when she left home to go for a walk.

Marjorie has black hair, a dark complexion, and is about four feet, five inches tall. She weighs about 70 pounds.

Women, Children Spend Night On Ferry Wharf

LANGDALE (CP) — About 75 carloads of people, including many small children, were left on the ferry wharf Sunday night when the last ferry left this terminal near Gibsons.

A spokesman for British Columbia Ferries estimated another 150 cars were turned back from the terminal area.

Ferry crews have refused to work overtime since the May 21 weekend in a bid to get "a more acceptable formula" for overtime, he said.

FLYER GOALIE SENT TO JAIL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bob Taylor, reserve goalkeeper for the Philadelphia Flyers, was sentenced today to 30 days in jail and fined $500 as the result of a brawl involving spectators at a Dec. 29 National Hockey League game against the Vancouver Canucks.

Taylor pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of assaulting a peace officer and was remanded until today for sentencing.

Five other Philadelphia players were each fined $500 Friday after they pleaded guilty to charges of causing a disturbance by fighting and swearing as a result of the same incident.

Welfare: No Cuts

BRANDT'S CHOPPER CRASHES

MASSADA, Israel (UPI) — Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany and other high ranking German and Israeli officials were involved in a helicopter mishap that took them close to a drop of 1,200 feet into the desert by the Dead Sea.

While their helicopter was coming in to land on the top of the Massada rock fortress, winds pushed the craft onto a ledge 100 feet from the edge of the fortress.

In the accident, three persons suffered minor injuries — Paul Frank, the West German under-secretary of state, the Israeli ambassador to Bonn, Eliashiv Ben Horin, and Nahum Astar, an Israeli foreign ministry official.

Witnesses said someone pushed Brandt, who was seated near the front door of the chopper, out of the door after the craft halted on a large rock.

Brandt brushed himself off and walked away, the witnesses said.

In an attempt to quell a wave of anxiety in Vancouver, home of most welfare recipients, the department of human resources has had to order social workers not to cut anybody's assistance income.

A directive dated June 5 has been circulated stating that "no allowances at present in pay during June are to be reduced."

The move comes only five days after introduction of a new, simplified schedule of assistance rates which was supposed to bring substantial increases.

Vancouver Ald. Harry Rankin, chairman of the city's social services committee, says large families which received several of Vancouver's clothing supplements face a drop in income with the new schedule.

A front-page article in the Vancouver Sun newspaper Saturday says a family of seven with children aged 2, 4, 6, 10 and 15 faced a reduction in monthly income of $14.50. As families got larger, so did the drop in income, the article said.

The drop in income is attributed to abolition of supplements in simplification of the schedule, and an inadequate estimate of current urban rents and the increase required.

But J. A. Sadler, assistant deputy minister of human resources, told the Times today nobody would receive an actual cut in income.

A spokesman in Human Resources Minister Norm Levi's office admitted that large families receiving the highest possible extras allowable by the city might not be set to receive as much by the new schedule.

"We average out extras across the whole province," the spokesman said. "In rare cases where special consideration has been given to a large family, there might be a drop in income."

He said extras were set by social workers subject to a ceiling figure, and were not scheduled.

He said a $312 per year clothing allowance for a couple used in the Sun's article was much higher than the provincial average.

City Twirlers Win Trophy

Pacific Maple Leaf Parade Corps of Victoria won the best corps trophy awarded at the National Baton Twirling Association at the B.C. championship competition in North Vancouver on Sunday.

The corps, composing girls eight to 17 years of age, was led by Drum Major Jan Graham, 17. The Victoria corps has won third place in the competition for the past two years.

This year the 38 Victoria area girls beat out five other parade corps to win the trophy.

Two members of the corps won individual awards in the competition. Christine Hughes, 10, won first prize in basic strut and fancy T strutting in her division and Kelly Johnston, 12, won first place in fancy T strutting for 12-year-olds.

The corps also won awards for best drill corps and best majorette corps at Gllangcollme Saturday.

PRACTISING ROUTINE that won them 15-and-over team title in recent B.C. synchronized swimming championships are (top to bottom) Charlene Patterson, Elizabeth Rhoades, Barbara Rhoades and Noel Gray of Victoria Crystalettes. Newly-formed Crystalettes club placed third out of 14 clubs in B.C. championships. Girls were hard at work at Crystal Pool preparing for club's Water Show set for 7 p.m. June 18, at Crystal Pool. Lawson Threatens To Void Contracts

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Senator Ed Lawson, provincial president of the Teamsters Union is threatening that the union may tear up contracts in mid-term and hold out for increased benefits.

Lawson, at a meeting here Saturday, cited action by the provincial government in 4 an provincial government in "voiding contracts in mid-term" for the Pacific National Exhibition grounds as precedent for his threat.

Lawson said the new PNE Act, which has a clause saying that contracts with the PNE lasting past Dec. 31, 1975, will have to be renegotiated, destroys the sanctity of the contract in B.C.

If the clause is proclaimed by the government, making it law, he will recommend that Teamsters either withdraw all support from the government or "adopt the philosophy" of the government, he said.

If the Teamsters follow the government's philosophy they could declare a three-year contract void in the second year and demand greater benefits, he said.

Lawson was speaking to a panel discussion on collective bargaining sponsored jointly by the Automotive Transport Association of B.C. and the Transport Labor Relations Assocation.

The two other panel members were Labor Minister Bill King and Chuck Connaghan, president of the Construction Labor Relations Association.

After the discussion Lawson said he was "deadly serious" about his threat.

He told the panel the government can bring in the PNE Act clause because it has the authority and the power to do so.

"What we lack in the former we make up in the latter," he said.

In 1965 the Teamsters rejected calls from organized labor for a general strike and still will have no part in wildcat strikes because the union believes in the sanctity of contracts, he said.

"But how in the name of heaven can you say to the men 'you must go back to work' when they can say we have a policy in this province of voiding contracts for more revenue," Lawson said.

"I don't think the government or the minister are aware of the seriousness of what they're doing," he added.

He had heard no justification for their action except a desire for more revenue, he added.

Family Flees Flames

A Mill Bay family of five escaped flames which levelled their four-bedroom home on Ferry Road early Sunday, leaving them without clothes or possessions.

The occupants were Mr. and Mrs. Mel Harry, their sons Steve, 6, and Kelly, 3, and a six-months-old baby girl.

Harry was attending vocational school in Nanaimo and has been employed in logging.

Donations of bedding, clothes, furnishings or cash may be made to St. Vincent de Paul Society or to Harry, who is staying at present with brother-in-law Roy Daniels, of Cobble Hill, 743-7541.

CLUB OPPOSES MARINA PLAN

An application to expand West Bay Marina in Esquimalt will be opposed tonight by Victoria members of the Sierra Club.

The group's president Ken Gibbard said conservationists are worried about the loss of foreshore through proposed filling of waterfront land for parking or commercial purposes.

"Once you blacktop to the edge (of the water) it is never recoverable," Gibbard said.

Council, if it approves a land use contract for the development proposed by John Melnyk, will be "giving away . . . alienating what eventually may be public foreshore" on adjoining property of Work Point Barracks, it was charged.

Gibbard said he understood Melnyk has a seven-acre foreshore lease with rights to fill about half, including defence department foreshore accessible from his own lease.

The existing marina will be expanded to provide for larger float and mooring area, marina facilities and a boat-orientated apartment building, Gibbard said.

A public hearing has been set for 7 p.m. in Esquimalt council chamber.

Skylab 2 Set to Roll

HOUSTON (UPI) — While ground crewmen moved the next Skylab rocket to the launch pad, the space station's first astronauts today added to the rich storehouse of knowledge they have gathered about the sun and earth and man.

The Skylab 2 rocket and Apollo command ship left its towering hangar at Cape Kennedy on the back of a massive crawler-transporter, a key step toward launch of three more spacemen July 27, at 7 a.m. EDT.

Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad, Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz began their day 22 minutes later when mission control gave them a "good morning" from the Canberra, Australia, tracking station.

"We're hustling around," Conrad replied.

They were in their 18th day of flight around earth with 10 more to go.

The Skylab 2 astronauts, Alan Bean, Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma, plan to double the duration of their predecessors and stay up a record 56 days. A third crew also plans to live and work for 56 days aboard Skylab later this year.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz already have taken 11,224 pictures of the sun through the most powerful solar observatory ever orbited. And their ground watching cameras have snapped 5,533 pictures of earth and its natural resources.

The crew's schedule today called for another earth resources photographic pass, the eighth of the mission, and 4½ additional hours of sunwatching.

Also on tap later in the day was another series of medical tests to measure the extent their hearts have grown lazy in the weightless environment.

THE RIGHT TO SUE URGED FOR UNBORN

LONDON (UPI) — The British Law Society today recommended giving unborn babies the right to sue for injuries sustained while in their mothers' wombs.

Any different conclusion would produce unjust and anomalous results," the organization said.

In a case submitted as an example, the lawyers cited an auto accident in which a pregnant mother and her two-year-old daughter were injured.

"Both the mother and the daughter have a right of action," it said. "To deny a similar right to the unborn child at birth in respect of injuries which might be comparable to those received by the living child is unreasonable."

Ring Those Cash Registers

The Victoria Downtown Business Association is about as subtle as a fire sale when it comes to dispensing criticism of the recently published James Bay Study. City Hall should bury its sentimentality about restoring old homes and abandon zoning restrictions in the area according to the merchants. In other words let's bang up the apartments and fill 'em up with potential customers as fast as we can.

The implication is obvious: the downtown economy is more important than what the 10,000 odd James Bay residents think. That kind of imperious attitude went out with feudalism. In the end James Bay residents must have a hand in determining their own future — not the DBA or other self-interested organizations. But the businessmen have one good point when they say "The future of the James Bay peninsula is a major factor in determining the future growth of downtown Victoria." Slapping up high and medium density apartments in James Bay might well be the thin edge of the wedge opening the door to helter-skelter highrise development in the rest of Victoria.

The city planning department's James Bay plan is a guideline only and rather vague in its encouragement of a broad range of residential structures. The vagueness may be intentional.

First and foremost, the city must consider the wishes of James Bay residents. However, there is only so much land at this end of the island and weight of numbers may eventually force the city's hand. Compromise is more familiar than democracy in Canadian political history. But the James Bay Community Association is adamant. It wants to keep the distinct neighborhood flavor and that sentiment leaves little room for multiple dwellings of any kind.

In a pragmatic sense the DBA and the James Bay Community Association represent extreme viewpoints. The former wants to pack the area with people; the latter insists on preserving the old-fashioned neighborhood atmosphere. When city council makes its final decision nobody — people being what they are — will be entirely happy. There is no question that many James Bay buildings have outlived their functional and aesthetic usefulness. But the DBA's suggestions are tantamount to razing the area and building a vast dormitory for the convenience of downtown business.

Those Chinese Wheat Sales

It was apparent during Australia's election campaign late last year that the Laborites, then in opposition, were capitalizing on the loss of the China wheat trade, which represented Australia's major grain export. Mr. Gough Whitlam attributed the result to political action by his opponents in the government. On any occasion that seemed suitable he set about wooing the Chinese market.

Since gaining power in the election he has acted consistently to strengthen trading ties with Peking.

An immediate beneficiary of Peking's aloofness to Australia under the previous regime was the Canadian wheat farmer. China placed record orders for Canadian wheat — and Canada, recognizing the dependence on this country, made highly advantageous bargains.

Now Prime Minister Whitlam's policies appear to be paying off. China and Australia have announced plans to negotiate a long-term wheat agreement, with Canberra presumably reclaiming a large share of the market lost ostensibly by earlier political action.

The prospect is reportedly being accepted with outward calm by Canada. There seems little doubt, however, that Canadian wheat sales will not enjoy the same precedence in China that once prevailed. And aggravating the situation is a reported resentment on China's part against the hard bargaining it met when it came to Canada in need of food grain last year. This is suggested as the reason for failure to offer Canada a long-term arrangement equally as favorable as that proposed for Australia.

The calm with which Canadian representatives reportedly view the new developments could be more superficial than actual. We stand to lose some business.

Pet Name

Through an error which a large number of West Coasters will applaud, Robert Innes, traffic manager of B.C. Ferries, has clung to the name of Wickaninnish for what the authorities have chosen to call Pacific Rim National Park. When he was preparing a special brochure, he explains, it appeared that public pressure would persuade Ottawa to change the prosaic name it had selected to the more euphonious one indigenous to the area. Mr. Innes was wrong in his assumption. But his publication had gone through.

If the splendid area is to be stuck with the Pacific Rim name officially, then it seems that a simple evasion is available. In the world of baseball, the towering star of a former era and continuing legend, bore the Christian names George Herman. The world called him "Babe". So whatever may be the park's formal designation, popular usage might offset it. Let Ottawa call it Pacific Rim. We'll know they mean Wickaninnish and call it that.

Pumping Up the Price

CALGARY — The 12 per cent boost recently announced in Middle East and Venezuelan crude oil prices will be reflected anon in higher prices at the gas pumps for Canadian motorists. Not even death and taxes are more certain than that. While we are waiting let's take a quick run through the never-never land of gasoline pricing on the Prairies.

As a general thing, no factor is more potent in price making than what the traffic will bear. In Edmonton the other day the price of regular gas at almost any pump in town was 51 cents a gallon. In Calgary it was one cent higher. At Medicine Hat it was 55 cents and by the time we got to Swift Current, Sask., it was 62 cents.

The logical conclusion from all this is that the price of gasoline rises with the distance from the source of supply, a reflection of the cost of transportation. Logic, as the prices in Regina and Winnipeg demonstrate, has nothing to do with it.

Competition Factor

In Regina the price was 52 cents a gallon and it was available in any number of stations in Winnipeg for 44.9 and 46.9 cents per gallon. Regina is 600 miles from the Alberta oil fields and Winnipeg is 900 miles away.

Clearly transportation costs have nothing to do with posted prices at the gas pumps. What does? Competition, or the lack of it. Mainly competition from small Canadian refineries.

The competition in Winnipeg is provided by Radio Oils, Ltd., a small St. Boniface refiner and marketer that has been giving the American major companies fits for 25 years. It, and the large Dominion Motors downtown service station, are currently undercutting major company pumps by around a nickel a gallon and have forced the Winnipeg prices to a level well below the lowest prices in Alberta where all the oil comes from.

In Regina, the major companies are still getting stiff price competition from the Co-Op refinery and from a small string of independent stations. But outside the area of competition, in Swift Current for example, the sky is the limit.

Twenty years ago the existence of a handful of smaller refineries in Alberta gave that province the lowest gasoline prices in Canada. As Royalite Oils, Purity 99, Canadian Oils, etc., were taken over by the American major companies, prices have steadily advanced until Alberta prices generally are now higher than those prevailing over most of Manitoba.

The change is apparent in more than gas prices. Twenty years ago the fierceness of the competition was spawning new service stations on every street corner. Now the trend is in reverse. The highways and roads are pockmarked by abandoned gas stations. In the cities the wreckers' hammers are obliterating them.

No Logic in Pricing

The trend away from owner-operated stations to company run super stations now has the individual enterprisers running scared to their governments for help. Gimmickry is replacing price competition and customers find the price of free car washes, dishes and premiums imbedded in their gasoline prices whether they want them or not.

In addition to king-sized service stations, the international companies are now going in for super-refineries which will make mince-meat out of the plans of the D.R.E.E. theoreticians. One company is now well into a program to close down all its refineries in western Canada and concentrate its crude oil processing in a single expanded facility in the Edmonton area.

It will pipe its gasoline and other products to storage facilities in the major cities and close down refineries in Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg. In short this company's regional economic expansion is being directed away from retarded areas in Manitoba and Saskatchewan into a most prosperous area in Alberta.

Behind such policy decisions are many factors. One is the changing formulation of gasoline required by U.S. pollution control standards of engine emissions. Such changes require major refinery modifications at very high capital cost.

In many areas, existing refineries have been fully depreciated. Scrapping them will have little impact on company profits and renovating them to required standards could be uneconomical, by company yardsticks.

Giantism Profitable

If it is more profitable to scrap existing facilities and build one gigantic facility from scratch, that will be done. Not only will that improve operating efficiency, it will give the company a spanking new facility to depreciate from the beginning.

Such abrupt company policy switches will cost hundreds of jobs across the prairies where they are badly needed in places like Moose Jaw, Regina and Winnipeg. It will create other hundreds of jobs in Edmonton, and in the United States for the vast quantity of specialized refinery equipment which will be required.

Edmonton of course and to a lesser extent Hamilton, will welcome any job-producing crumbs that fall from the major company policy computers. But where does this sort of thing leave D.R.E.E. and Ottawa's fiscal conjurers? Standing, like good old Joe Motorist at the gas pumps, in frustrated confusion before the policy making decisions of the great multi-national corporations!

An Oil-Sprayed Roadblock

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Last week, on the sixth anniversary of the 1967 Arab-Israel war, the UN Security Council set out once again, amidst massive handicaps, to ram its way through roadblocks to peace.

Prospects of early success were not bright. In the process of blasting roadblocks, there was every possibility that the roadway itself might be rendered impassable.

Yet drastic diplomatic action clearly was required. It was not an easy dilemma.

A very large segment of the world community considers Israel the principal obstacle to a peace negotiation. Not merely the Moslem world, but virtually every government in Europe and Asia and many in Africa and Latin America, place principal blame on Tel Aviv.

Despite a thin veil of diplomatic objectivity, the UN Secretary General (an Austrian) and his Mideast mediator (a Swede) agree.

U.S. Stance Critical

The critical stance, however, is still — as it has been from the beginning — that of the United States. As long as Washington provides Israel with sinews of military superiority, and (via the UN veto) a shield against meaningful diplomatic pressure, Israel plainly can and will hold out.

The Arabs are trying to make it punishingly uncomfortable for the United States to continue to play this role. And they are beginning to succeed.

In recent weeks, Washington has taken several steps to remove itself from the target area. The most conspicuous was disclosure that a $1.5 billion arms sale, including Phantom fighter-bomber, is under consideration for Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

Because these arms would, in the first instance, strengthen the recipient countries against Iraq, with which Kuwait, in particular, has an urgent border quarrel, reactions have been mixed. Left-leaning Arabs are inclined to sympathize with Iraq.

Still, the proposed deal is a sign of a more "even-handed" (I.E., less pro-Israeli) American policy than has previously existed. It appears to have sharpened Arab appetites, encouraging them to believe that continued pressure on Washington might get further results.

The Arabs have a new and potentially powerful source of leverage on Washington: the United States' increasing need for Mideast oil. By 1980, it is estimated that Americans will be depending on Mideast sources for at least half their oil supply. Already there are gasoline shortages in some parts of the country.

Phantoms for Saudi Arabia, and tanks, anti-aircraft missiles and helicopters for Kuwait, could be a hedge against the use of this oil for political pressure. It could be, in a sense, a response to such pressure in advance of its full application.

The only other way to assure a Mideast oil supply would be to win control of some oil-supplying government — directly, by an overt seizure (for example, by the Israeli army), or indirectly, through a covert operation (using local proxies).

Some Arabs, notably Libya, have professed to fear that Washington and-or Israel would undertake just such an enterprise. The Libyans became shrill, briefly, when American reconnaissance planes were discovered to be monitoring their radar.

This kind of seizure, however, would be so likely to be counter-productive as to be foolhardy. It would deliver much of the Middle East into Soviet hands, risk a nuclear war, and assure the loss of oil supplies elsewhere. This is the 20th Century, not the 19th.

Hence the encouragement of less-strained relations with receptive Arab states is the only practical course available. For that policy to be effective, however, there will also have to be visible diplomatic pressure on Israel in the peace-making field.

This was what the Arabs were looking for in the UN Security Council last week. They knew the State Department had long felt Israel was taking an unnecessarily and undesirably rigid posture. They wanted to see if the White House would let American delegate John Scali say so.

The core of the matter was and is Israel's refusal to promise that, if all other provisions of a peace treaty are satisfactory, it will restore (with minor "rectifications") the frontiers of June 5, 1967. Israel will not even say unambiguously that such restoration is a possible result of a bargaining process; she appears to rule it out completely.

No Preconditions

Israel insists that peace negotiations be wholly "without preconditions." This sounds virtuous, but aside from the fact that her stand on borders seems to the Arabs to be a severe precondition, it serves to disguise the political realities.

The principal such reality is that Arab states would not have sufficient bargaining power, in a wholly free-wheeling negotiation, to get back their pre-war frontiers. Knowing the result would be unacceptable, they refuse to enter the process. Permanent loss of territory would be, to them, intolerable.

This is the roadblock which the UN Security Council has set out to blast. The Arabs are so determined to get past it that they seem prepared to destroy all the painstaking peace work done to date by intermediaries, including the UN — and even to tear up their own promise to make peace with Israel at all, in any conditions, even if the price is right.

Preventing that kind of damage will be one of the most urgent tasks the UN will face in coming days and weeks.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Fine Articles

Once again the Times has scored full marks by publishing two fine articles "Britain's version is better" by C. L. Sulzberger and "Orwell would have recognized Nixon's cronies" by David Halberstam.

I feel that Sulzberger has covered most competently the differences between the American and British forms of government and I would only add that, to the average foreigner, it is hard to comprehend how the Americans can accept the "divine rights" of their president and that is apparently the reason why the actions of the President seem to be out of reach even of the Congress, let alone the common man.

However the safeguard of a free press seems to be the only remaining defence of the people against the powers of their president. Although this is, at least, some defence I feel that, in a democracy, the Congress should exercise this restraint. —M. P. B. Wrixon, 318 - 1680 Poplar

Pampered Prisoners

Shakespeare said: "And what makes robbers bold but too much lenity?"

In my opinion those words might well apply to the system under which imprisoned criminals in our country live today. The law has become so lenient towards these offenders that it grants them weekend passes, suspended sentences and the like at the drop of a hat." Result? More and more well-fed, pampered prisoners getting ever bolder under the soft treatment, instigate riots, kill prison guards and inmates, etc.; and after having jumped jail, they rape and murder innocent citizens.

Yet the federal government seems unconcerned about such acts of violence. Otherwise, why did its members recently renew and pass the bill on non-capital punishment for first-degree murder?

If criminals who commit this heinous crime, however, are not hanged, surely they deserve life imprisonment without leaves of absence. But no, the guilty guys are to continue being coddled at the expense of unsuspecting victims. Horrors! For goodness sake, let the rehabilitation of vicious killers be carried out behind bars, not at large where those dangerous lawbreakers can roam unguarded.

Here's hoping our minister of justice takes note of the above quote from Shakespeare and acts in accordance with it before anarchy holds sway.—Fearful.

Kilts

Through your paper I would like to publicly express my thanks and that of my association to Allan B. McKinnon, MP for Victoria and Donald Munro, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, for successfully bringing our petition for the retention of the kilt at public expense for Highland Units of the Militia before the House of Commons. — G. 60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of June 11, 1913:

LONG BEACH, California — Six men, seated in a new type submarine boat, surpassed the submergence endurance record on the bed of the ocean off here today. They went down yesterday morning at 5 o'clock, and in a message telegraphed shortly before noon over a marine cable leading from the submerged boat to shore, it was declared that the entire crew of six men were well and expected to remain down until 5 o'clock this afternoon. The old record was established in 1907 by the U.S. submarine Octopus, which remained under water 24 hours. The new boat differs from other types in having gasoline motors, which by a special exhaust device are able to run while the vessel is submerged without polluting the air for the crew.

'Tory Rebels Have Served Country by Stand'

By ANTHONY WESTELL

The Conservative party has no cause to be ashamed of the division in its ranks on bilingualism, and no cause to fear that the lack of party unity weakens its appeal to the voters. In fact, the Tory rebels standing against the majority are probably strengthening their party.

There is certainly a division of opinion in the country about the merits of trying to build a bilingual civil service. Many Canadians — more perhaps than many of us would like to admit — are strongly opposed to the spread of the French language, or at least have deep reservations. They may be bigots, and there are always plenty of those. They may be misinformed about the program and convinced that they are going to be forced to learn French. They may even have intelligent doubts about the practicality of bilingualism, and there are a lot of those right in the civil service.

But whatever their reason for opposing bilingualism, they are entitled to their point of view expressed in the Commons. Yes, even the bigots if they can manage to elect an MP which is not too difficult in some constituencies. Those of us who disagree with their views must still defend their right to be heard.

The only MPs speaking and voting for this minority, or is it possibly a secret majority? are the Tory rebels, led by John Diefenbaker. Strong they may be, but popular they certainly are among many voters. To the extent that the feeling against bilingualism is concentrated in the west, the rebels strengthen the Tory image in that region.

There is no other side to this coin. The fact that some Tories vote against bilingualism will not cost the party support in Quebec because it has very little to lose. It has held its modest share of the vote against a French-Canadian prime minister and in face of repeated charges that the party is anti-French, so it is not likely to lose it now because a few MPs who were known to oppose bilingualism have again voted against it. Nor is the party likely to forfeit new support which it might otherwise gain in Quebec, because its appeal to French Canadians to come over from the Liberals or the Social Credit party must obviously be based on something fresher and more dramatic than "me-too" bilingualism. If Robert Stanfield and his loyal supporters can offer a social and economic program which excites French Canadian voters, potential supporters will not be deterred by the fact that a few of his followers have opposed bilingualism.

Another conventional argument is that a leader and party lose credibility and public confidence if they are not completely united in the Commons. Thus we are told by some excited commentators that Tory unity has been shattered by the division over bilingualism, that Stanfield has suffered a serious personal defeat, that the Tories are exposed as a party lacking unity of purpose and discipline.

If enough people believe that sort of nonsense, it becomes true. But anybody who thinks about it for a moment must surely dismiss it as mere rhetoric.

There is no divine rule that a party must be united on every issue before the House. MPs should not be expected to behave as sheep trotting obediently behind their leaders with the party whips nipping at their heels to make sure they do not stray.

Obviously the members of a party must agree on most issues most of the time or they cease to be a party. And when a party is in government, enough members must be prepared to hide doubts and vote for its policies, or the government will fall. But on most issues there will be divisions of opinion within a political party, as there would be in any other group of persons. When the issue is of major importance and the opinions are strongly held, they should be heard in Parliament.

This is particularly the case when there is agreement among the official majorities in all parties, as there is on bilingualism. When the Liberals, Tories, New Democrats and Social Credit MPs are substantially in agreement, it falls to a few rebels to state an opposition view.

I support the policy of bilingualism. I detest the style of politics and debate practiced by Diefenbaker and some other opponents of bilingualism. But I think they have served their party and their country by arguing a case which is believed by a significant body of Canadians and which would not otherwise have been heard in the Commons.

What's Good for Bell Is Good for Canada?

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA—The story in one Ottawa paper was headed: "Business and government on same wavelength—industrialists." In another the streamer went: "Govt. thinking surprises business."

These were reports on a colloquim between "a group of top businessmen and the Government."

The spokesman for the group, one A. O. Wolff, said: "We were very pleasantly surprised at how close our thinking was at this stage."

"I feel," said Alastair Gillespie, federal Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce, "that they accepted our approach on industrial strategy for Canada."

It is heartening that official spokesmen for the Canadian Chamber, the CMA, and 11 other industrial associations, should be in such rapport with the government.

Each federal department interfaces with numbers of differing interest and lobbying groups. For example, the Department of Labor with unions and management. So a series of Ministers of Labor, including Bryce Mackasey, have declared their neutrality, above one side or the other where there is an adversary situation. This is not the case in Industry, Trade and Commerce.

Mr. Gillespie, his predecessor, Jean-Luc Pepin (indeed right back to the ministry of C.D. Howe) held it to be normal for the minister of this portfolio to see himself as dedicated to furthering trade, commerce, business and manufacture.

$151 Million Profit

Doesn't it make sense? If the private sector is perking, Canada is on the go. Thus the minister in this field is not so much the neutral, preferring the interest of constituents as against the public.

At last week's discussions on industrial strategy, Wolff and a V. O. Marquez of the Industrial Strategy Association were prominent. Now, Wolff is head of Microsystems Int'l and Marquez is chief executive officer of Northern Electric. Both firms are subsidiaries of Bell Canada. Heard of Bell before?

Bell had a profit in 1972 of $151 million, Northern Electric of $21 million. Micro-Systems was not profitable at all — on the balance sheet —but it has recently moved to establish subsidiaries in Malaysia and the U.S.

Both Northern and Microsystems have dovetailed beautifully with many federal programs. So well, indeed, one wonders at Wolff's "pleasant surprise" at the mutuality of thinking between industry and government.

For example, to the end of 1972, Northern Electric had drawn $25.2 million from the federal government out of its allotment of $31,4 million

under the DIP program, that is, the Defence Industry Productivity program.

Both Northern and Microsystems have had less weighty sums since 1967 from Manpower and Immigration for TIP and TOJ programs i.e., Training Workers within Industry and on the job.

The totals only come to a few hundred thousand but each company has been there every year, picking up this chicken feed, as well as a million or so from IRAP and PAIT, two other federal schemes to help industry.

It is hard these days to distinguish subsidiaries from parent corporations but Bell and its subsidiaries have been much argued about, particularly before the Canadian Transport Commission which recently gave Bell permission to increase its rates. This increase is under suspension while the cabinet reviews it.

It has been my recent privilege to scan a list of Bell Canada shareholders as of the corporation's list of March 13, 1973. Most interesting, for example, a number of the members of the Supreme Court of Canada or their wives hold blocks of shares in Bell.

Shares for Senators

A number of senators hold blocks of Bell shares, for example, Liberal Senator Doug Everett of Winnipeg, former Senate leader, Liberal Senator John Connelly, Liberal Senator Keith Laird of Windsor, and Liberal Mary Kinnear who recently retired from the Senate. Senator Salter Hayden held a block of 1,000 shares. Another Liberal Senator, Romuald Bourque held a block about the same size.

Several fairly senior employees of the CTC or their wives hold Bell shares. So do several Liberal MPs, even the wife of the recently-retired head of the Bank of Canada, Mrs. Rasminsky, picked up Bell shares slowly and steadily between 1952 and 1970. A clutch of senior officials in the Department of National Revenue (taxation) or their wives held Bell shares, as of March, 1973.

Lionel Chevrier, a former Minister of Transport and of Justice, held Bell shares since 1949, including the period when he was Minister of Transport. Leo Cadieux, now ambassador to France, was in the cabinet from 1965 to 1970. In 1966, he began to buy Bell shares and held 800 by the time he left the ministry. While he was in the cabinet in 1967, order-in-council 1967-257 declared that Bell was to continue to allow as expenses its deferred taxes. Last year these deferred taxes totaled $322 million. Deferred taxes have been a contention of those opposing Bell rate increases, the argument being that they should be figured as assets, not expenses.

GILLESPIE

The late mother of the Prime Minister, Mrs. Grace Trudeau, held shares in Bell. A much larger number, some 1,583 shares, was held by Trudeau Elliott, Ltd. at the same address as Mrs. Trudeau. One of Robert Stanfield's children holds shares in Bell as does Stanfield Ltd. of Truro.

Powerful Families

A Bell president or the head of one of its subsidiaries must be cheered, in all Bell's adversities, to look over the spread of Bell's shares among so many of the influential and powerful and their families. Wolff and Marquez and their friends surely need not have been surprised at the understanding they achieved with Mr. Gillespie and the government. Of course, the government, whether shareholders such as MPs, Senators, and their wives, or through other shareholders who are important in the judicial and administrative process in Ottawa, has an excellent chance to appreciate needs and requirements of corporations like Bell, Northern Electric, and Mierosystems Int'l.

A Campaign Worth Watching

THE TORONTO STAR
An Editorial

Manitoba voters will pass judgment on a personality and a philosophy in the election called for June 28 by Premier Ed Schreyer. The result could be important to the future of the New Democratic Party and of Canada.

It was one of the political surprises of the decade, not least to Walter Weir who was then the Conservative premier, when Schreyer led the New Democrats to power in 1969. His transformation from the relative obscurity of the NDP backbench in Ottawa, to party leader in Manitoba, to premier-elect, was accomplished in 18 days with the assistance in part of Weir who decided unwisely to try to catch his new opponent unawares.

Temperamentally and philosophically, Schreyer is a moderate and a gradualist, who defines himself not as a socialist but a social democrat, thus underlining his affinity with the Social Democratic parties of Scandinavia.

Politically, his task has been to advance both economic development and social justice in an underdeveloped province with a tradition of cautious government. This has called for a good deal of patience and pragmatism. Yet he has shown that he will not duck a fight when it is necessary—as in his taking on the vociferous auto insurance lobby to put through his Autopac, the government automobile insurance scheme. He has also kept a pledge to pay for medicare through taxes instead of premiums.

SCHREYER . . . enemies on all sides

The four-year record is no more than mildly reformist, but firm enough in its direction to have earned Schreyer a remarkable array of enemies and critics. The Manitoba Federation of Labor has criticized him for being "too neutral" towards unions; left-wing New Democrats have been alienated by his rejection of anti-American radicalism and by his announcement that able-bodied welfare recipients, to remain eligible, will have to work on community projects or take job training; business is increasingly suspicious of him; and the province's biggest paper, the Winnipeg Free Press, has kept hammering him vehemently and sometimes viciously as a species of Socialist ogre.

Obviously to have offended such disparate elements, a man must have been doing something right. Talk of a ganging up by Conservatives and Liberals suggests his opponents fear that a majority of the voters may think so, too. Schreyer's Manitoba, if he wins again next month, could become a laboratory of social and economic experiments for Canada—in Schreyer's own moderate way, of course.

Already his government is carrying out a pilot scheme for guaranteed income. And although he rejected Eric Kierans' proposal to nationalize mining in Manitoba, he accepted the basic proposition that the wealth from natural resources exploitation should flow mainly to the public, not the entrepreneurs. Mining companies and other provinces will be watching closely to see what comes of that.

His proposed "stay option" —whereby farmers who wanted to stay on the land could sell their farms to the government and rent them back at 5 per cent of their value per year — is a radical departure.

Government participation in the banking, drug, food and insurance industries, to lower costs to consumers, are other possibilities set out in the Schreyer government's "Guidelines for the Seventies."

The campaign will be worth watching.

The Sounds of Midnight

RUSSELL BAKER

The brain was acting up again. It had been happening more often lately. "Hey," said the brain, "wake up. Did you see that guy from Hermie's Bonanza New Car Sales?"

The best way to deal with the brain when it starts thinking is to pretend you aren't there. If you are lucky, it may turn itself off again. "Quit trying to fake me out," said the brain. "I know you're down there."

"I saw a man do a car commercial if that's what you're thinking about. So what?"

The brain was getting itself worked up.

"Exactly," it shouted. "That guy wanted you to come down to Hermie's Bonanza New Car Sales lot right away and buy a new car."

It was useless to explain television to the brain, because it detested anything that didn't make sense.

"I know what you'd think if you weren't far gone into your sixpack and dying to take your undershirt off," said the brain. "You'd think, 'it's silly of that salesman to tell me to come down there right away and buy a new car, because it's 12:30 in the morning and Hermie's isn't even open.' "

Knees flexed and locked, hip joints operated in co-ordinated rhythm, fingers agitated a dial, eyes examined a choice of pictures, lips parted to admit to esophagus chilled contents of a six-pack element and ears heard the instantly recognizable voice of Hamilton Burger crying, "I object, your honor, Counselor is making a mockery. . . ."

What luck! There was still a Perry Mason rerun going. That seldom failed to shut down the brain for the night.

"Listen," said the brain, "what's insane here isn't that the guy is telling you to come down to Hermie's right away, but that he's telling you to come at all."

That cut it. "Brain, this country has had enough of saying it's insane to go to Hermie's and buy a new car. That's pretty close to treason, brain, because Hermie is a friendly guy and buying a new car is as American as ——."

"— but Edison Pitts had already been dead for three minutes at the time Ilka Macumber was telephoing Ernest Clark at Karen Crust's lodge and talked to Mavis Poole," Perry Mason was saying.

"You're not going to lure me into that trap," said the brain. "Let's go back to Hermie's. Think now. Back there during the 11 p.m. news ——."

"They ought to call it the 11 p.m. commercials."

"I said that first, 15 years ago," the brain observed. "Don't change the subject. The big item on the 11 p.m. news was what? I'll tell you what. It was the energy crisis."

★ ★ ★

"That's right, brain, and it's terrible. There isn't going to be any gasoline or fuel oil and the lights are going to go out because all the electricity will fail, and then I'll have to sit in the dark with a warm sixpack looking at a television with no picture on it."

It was sad to contemplate. The brain was always trying to spoil people's evenings like that. It made you want to write a letter to somebody and tell them to take off the brain and put some nice game shows and soap operas up there in that skull.

"It doesn't make any sense," said the brain, "to go down to Hermie's and buy a new car if there isn't going to be enough gasoline to run it. Especially since the catalytic converter for cutting the exhaust gases of new cars makes them burn even more gasoline than your old car."

Lips sealed. That dumb brain! Where had it been during that gasoline commercial an hour or so back when Johnny Cash had said the whole trick of saving gas was not to drive faster than 50 miles an hour.

★ ★ ★

"That's more asinine than going down to Hermie's," said the brain, which had been eavesdropping. "The new cars at Hermie's have speedometer graduations up to 120 miles an hour. If you're not going to drive over 50, you need less than half of one of Hermie's new cars, and Hermie won't sell you a half."

"Hah, brain! Got you this time! It would be foolish to be caught with a 50-mile-an-hour car on our terrific new 70-mile-an-hour turnpikes once the energy crisis ends and there's plenty of gasoline again."

The brain paused. "Are you expecting the energy crisis to end soon?" it asked.

"Naturally. Just as soon as the oil companies get the price of oil raised up to where they want it and Congress approves their pipeline across Alaska. If you used my head once in a while and didn't think so much, you'd be a much smarter brain."

"Your honor," Burger was saying, "this is an outrageous. . . ."

Death Sparks Blood-Running Ban

The 22-year-old man died from anemia after selling three pints of his blood to the same clinic in less than three weeks.

The clinic was one of several hundred throughout the country which are privately run and are not regulated by health ministry standards.

The clinics buy about a pint of blood for the equivalent of $2.50 and then process it into plasma for export to Europe and the United States, where the same quantity sells for about $20.

The health ministry is undertaking an urgent inspection of these clinics and is drafting a stiff law to enforce stricter medical and safety standards.

"The man was out of work and apparently sold his blood to support his wife and family," a health official said. "He should never have died."

Donors should wait a minimum of six months between each visit to a clinic, and it should be the responsibility of the clinics to keep a check on this, he said.

"This state of most private blood clinics is deplorable," he said. Preliminary investigations had shown that most of them take blood without checking the donors first.

"The industry has been thriving for years in a state of near lawlessness," the official said.

The Red Cross national blood bank and hospitals, on the other hand, impose the most rigorous standards, he added.

Would-be donors have to undergo tests to ensure that the red cells in their blood are healthy and that they are in a good physical condition.

The national bank and hospitals also pay for blood—sometimes up to $3.50 for a pint of a rare group—but most of their supplies are used in Colombia.

The blood exporting business largely developed in Colombia because of the prices offered to donors. Most of the clients at the private clinics are poor students, panhandlers and unemployed people who could feed themselves for a week on their payment, the health official said.

The exporting is nominally controlled by the Foreign Commerce Institute, which sent $180,000 worth of plasma to Holland and the U.S. alone last year.

But health authorities are also investigating allegations that some clinics are selling plasma abroad without going through the institute which officials term blood-smuggling.

The ban on exports is expected to continue until the new government law has been sufficiently enforced to ensure both the safety of the blood donor and the perfect condition of his blood.

Rubber Erases Strife

PHNOM PENH (WP) — "Factory representatives cross the Mekong just outside of Kompong Cham carrying an official passport slip stamped on one side with the seal of the Khmer Republic . . . they pick up the rubber, pay the foreman, flip their passports over to be stamped by the Cambodians controlling the other side, and return."

"The Cambodians controling the other side" are the rebel Khner Rouge. The rubber company executive who explained the unusual bilateral arrangement between enemies is one of a handful of private businessmen involved.

Less than a year after they started, their efforts have made Cambodia a rubber-exporting country once again — 15,000 tons in nine months. And both sides profit — the rubber is grown and taxed in rebel territory, and processed and sold by the Phnom Penh government.

This enterprise is one of the most widely discussed topics among Phnof Penh's diplomats and journalists, since it involves direct trade between the opposing sides in the Cambodian conflict with at least the tacit approval of all governments concerned.

Leaders of the insurgents and of the Lon Nol government have not even met to begin direct negotiations; nevertheless, this local and unannounced agreement to trade rubber somehow has been arranged.

"We could not begin negotiations with the forest rebels until the Vietnamese left," the executive said. "Not the North Vietnamese but the ARVN (South Vietnamese Army)."

Although the east bank of the Mekong has been controlled by Cambodian rebels and some North Vietnamese troops since the war began, the ARVN did occupy parts of the hills and plantations until 1971. During that time, U.S. jets continuously bombed the plantations, causing over 8 million dollars in damage to trees and factories, according to private business calculations.

What the bombs did not destroy, the South Vietnamese dismantled. First-hand accounts from plantation workers say that every processing plant with valuable equipment was carried off to South Vietnam.

Signal Catcher On Way

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An Explorer satellite was on a true course today toward a moon orbit to record radio signals from deep space that could extend man's knowledge of the universe.

Launched from Kennedy Space Centre here Sunday, the 442-pound Explorer 49 satellite is to go into lunar orbit Friday.

Circling 682 miles above the moon's surface, the $11.1-million rocket laboratory is to make the most comprehensive study yet of low frequency signals from natural sources within the galaxy and beyond.

An earlier satellite, Explorer 38, gathered valuable information on these puzzling signals while orbiting the earth, but its data often was obscured by background noise from earth's magnetic field.

"The background noise of the earth drowned out up to 50 per cent of the cosmic signals," reported Dr. Robert Stone, project scientist from the space agency's Goddard Space Flight Centre.

While circling the moon, Explorer 49 frequently will be on the far side, isolated from the earth noise and thus be better able to record these bursts of radio energy. Most of the energy is generated by radiation sources in distant celestial objects.

Politics Kill 2,000

DACCA—More than 2,000 politicians have been murdered in the 17 months since Bangladesh gained independence, figures given here by the four main political parties indicate.

The Awami League of Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman said 1,500 of its leaders and workers have been killed. The newly-formed National Socialist party said it has lost 400, the pro-Peking National Awami party claimed 100 dead and the pro-Moscow National Awami party at least 25.

All the parties blamed their rivals for the murders, though they hinted that extremist groups might be behind some of the killings.

The wave of political violence has been worst in the northern part of the country. An Awami spokesman said local party officials and relief workers were the main targets.

Sheik Mujib told parliament that extremist elements getting help from abroad were responsible for the violence. But he said his government could not be brought down by such activities.

Interrogate Brandt?

BONN (Reuter)—The West German opposition served notice Saturday night it will attempt to have Chancellor Willy Brandt interrogated in connection with a so called "bribery-and-corruption" scandal.

A parliamentary committee of inquiry into the affair is virtually certain to be set up this week at the demand of the Christian Democrat (CDU) opposition.

Gerhard Reddemann, a leading CDU figure, told the newspaper Welt am Sonntag: "I regard interrogation of the chancellor by the committee as unavoidable."

The committee will be instructed to investigate newspaper allegations in the last few weeks that members of Brandt's Social Democrats attempted to buy off opposition votes during a crucial no confidence motion last year.

GAS SHORTAGE PAPERS DESTROYED

WASHINGTON (WP) — Federal power commission officials ordered the FPC's security officer to destroy confidential papers purporting to document the shortage of natural gas.

The destruction aborted because the commission lacked an incinerator in its new quarters and because an incinerator at a military installation was out of order, the agency's executive director, Webster Maxson, told a reporter.

Nassikas and Maxson said the papers, most of which had been torn in half, now have been reassembled with scotch tape.

The FPC aide principally involved in the attempted destruction was identified by the FPC as Lawrence Mangen, an assistant to Thomas Joyce, chief of the agency's bureau of natural gas.

Mangen was in charge of validating estimates of gas reserves for a controversial FPC study completed last month. The study indicated reserves to be lower, by 9 per cent, than the industry itself had estimated. The lower the reserves, the higher the prices consumers will pay.

Federal Trade Commission investigators, who are making an independent survey, doubt the accuracy of the FPC report.

The attempted document destruction is expected to intensify growing skepticism on Capitol Hill about the claimed gas shortage, and fuel oil, as well.

Forces Discrimination Appealed to Ottawa

Victoria's Status of Women's Action Group has written Defence Minister James Richardson protesting the discrimination against women in the armed forces.

"We would point out to you that more and more girls and women in this modern age indicate their desire to pursue job interests compatible with their merit and ability, rather than have their abilities prejudged because of their sex," the SWAG letter stated, "This opportunity must be made available to them."

SWAG president Dianne Grimmer said the group's letter pointed out that they had made a similar protest in 1972 when the defence department hired more male than female students in its summer programs.

The SWAG letter noted that this year only 10 out of 60 job vacancies were open to girls in the summer militia training program at the Bay Street Armoury.

By last Thursday, 48 males had applied and 45 females.

Of the 10 vacancies open to females, most were for clerical duties.

Female students applying for the jobs were displeased about being restricted to clerical duties.

They said they should be permitted to learn how to shoot, march and drive heavy trucks.

'Genteel' Nude Appeals

OTTAWA (CP) — The case involving an Okotoks, Alta., gal's two-minute "genteel" nude dance before about 16 Calgary lunchers reached the Supreme Court of Canada today.

Counsel of Kelly Johnson, the dancer, asked the court to overturn a conviction of being a performer in an "immoral performance" for which she was fined $50 Dec. 2, 1971.

Miss Kelly was convicted in provincial court. The Supreme Court of Alberta overturned the conviction Feb. 8, 1972, but the Alberta Appeal Court reinstated it June 3, 1972.

Miss Kelly did her dance, described as "genteel," "refined" and "beautiful" by her lawyer A. W. Macdonald, in an establishment known as Dino's Hideaway Cabaret Sept. 29, 1971.

Her lawyers said that about 16 persons paid $3 to enter Dino's to dance on a small stage to the accompaniment of a juke box.

She danced the dances in a complete bikini, two with the top off and one with top and bottom removed. Meanwhile, the clientele and a Calgary police officer ate lunch and watched the performance.

Miss Kelly's formal submission said: "The dance of the appellant was rather a beautiful performance that did not upset the detective in any way.

"The appellant did nothing offensive in any way. Shape or form, by word, gesture or any other way, while the last dance was being executed."

Basis for the appeal is that the provincial appeal court erred in basing its argument on a section of the Criminal Code that did not apply in this case. The attorney-general of Alberta says there is no error in law and the appeal should be dismissed.

Duncan Activity Centre Slated to Open Aug. 1

North Cowichan Ald. John Cannon, chairman of the centre's interim committee, said the centre will meet the needs of all ages.

"We hope to get help and encouragement from the community at large for this function. We have many talented people in this area and we hope that some of them will come forward to serve as instructors."

Cannon also thanked the city of Duncan for making the old library building available, stressing that the centre will serve the whole area.

Under the umbrella of the Cowichan Valley Regional Board, the centre will be financed at one-quarter of one mill by the electoral areas of Glenora-Sahtlam and Cowichan Bay, the city of Duncan and the North Cowichan municipality. A provincial government grant will also be available.

International Oil Slick Plan Lacking

No existing programs combat oil pollution adequately on an international scale, says a new publication by the University of Victoria geography department.

Oil Pollution as an International Problem, a study of the impact of oil on the Puget Sound and Strait of Georgia area, is the work of Dr. William A. Ross, now a faculty member at Kent State University, Ohio.

Investment Act Called Sell-Out

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canada is in poor financial shape because of "two or three generations of myopic politicians and businessmen who would be delighted to sell Parliament Hill if the price was high enough."

This is the view of John Trent, chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada.

Trent, professor of political sciences at the University of Ottawa, said the government's Foreign Investment Review Act hides the fact that "nothing is being done to control foreign investment in Canada." He said the CIC will submit a brief to the government June 21 proposing substantial amendment to the Act.

GUIDE CHARGED WITH POACHING

WATSON LAKE, Y.T. (CP) — George Dalziel, a Watson Lake big game guide, and Miles Bradford, his trapper son-in-law, have been charged with illegal hunting and possession of game following an investigation by wildlife officials and police in northern British Columbia and the Yukon.

The charges include hunting from aircraft and illegal export of furs across the B.C. Yukon border, officials said.

At least $15,000 in furs and game specimens were seized in Watson Lake and in Montreal during the three-month investigation.

The crown alleges the game was shot during closed season in February and March and the furs were taken without a trapping licence.

Police said the seizures from Dalziel's home did not include specimens from his own trophy collection, reputed to be one of the finest in Western Canada.

Both men are charged under the federal game export act with illegal possession of fur-bearing animals and with exporting big game, B.C. to the Yukon, without a licence.

They are also both charged under Yukon game laws with illegally hunting wildlife from an aircraft.

Bradford faces additional charges under the B.C. Wildlife Act of killing wildlife from an aircraft and possessing a semi-automatic shotgun without a plug making it incapable of holding more than two cartridges.

Dalziel and Bradford are due to appear in court in Watson Lake July 24 on the federal and territorial charges. The B.C charges are to be heard in nearby Lower Post, B.C., on July 25.

The case is the first of its kind since B.C. government officials said last year they suspected B.C. wildlife was being killed illegally to help feed a growing black market for game trophies in the U.S.

They said they knew then from American contacts that well-organized gangs of poachers in the U.S. were raiding endangered species to supply the exotic trophy rooms of rich collectors.

NOTICE TO SAANICH DOG OWNERS

As a convenience to dog owners and to provide employment opportunities, a house-to-house dog licence canvass started on June 6, 1973 in the Municipality of Saanich.

Canvassers are provided with dog licence tags, receipt books and identification and are authorized to collect fees and issue licences at the door. You are requested to immediately affix the dog licence and advised to retain your receipt. Your co-operation when the canvasser calls will be appreciated.

"Any person who owns, possesses or harbours any dog over the age of six months shall obtain a licence therefor in accordance with the provisions of this by-law on or before the first day of February in each year, provided however, that if he becomes the owner, possessor or harbourer of a dog after the first day of February in any year, he shall obtain a licence therefor forthwith."

A dog licence is valid for the calendar year in which it is obtained. A portion of the fee schedule from the said by-law is as follows:

"(1) for every dog over the age of six months:
(a) The sum of $5.00 for every male dog.
(b) The sum of $5.00 for each spayed female dog provided, however, that a certificate from a veterinary surgeon to the effect that a female has been spayed shall be accepted in lieu of the licence fee for the calendar year in which the same was spayed.
(c) The sum of $15.00 for each female dog which is not spayed."

For further particulars, reference should be made to By-law No. 2893.

Cominco Ups Zinc Price

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cominco Ltd. says its base price for zinc in Canada and the United States will increase by two cents per pound, effective today. Cominco also said that, effective today its base price for zinc in the world markets other than Canada and the U.S. is 205 pounds sterling per metric ton.

Chieftan

Gross revenue rose to $1,824,866 from $1,223,021.

Petrol Oil

Petrol Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., earned $95,000 or 2.4 cents a share in the first quarter of 1973 compared with $129,000 or 3.2 cents a share for the same period last year.

Gross revenue during the three month period was $309,000 up from $295,000 last year.

Net oil production for the first quarter of 1973 also decreased by 3,500 barrels to 83,600, a drop of four per cent from the same period last year.

Sunlite

Sunlite Oil Co. Ltd., earned $1,431,823 or 61 cents a share in the six months ended March 31, offsetting a net loss of $67,911 or minus 3 cents a share in the same period last year.

Gross revenue was $2,078,093 up from $120,784 in 1972.

The increased earnings were attributed primarily to the company's sale of its working interest in 385,000 acres on Ellesmere Island in the Canadian Arctic for $2 million. A three-per-cent gross overriding royalty on the acreage was maintaned.

B.C. Trust Company Expands to Alberta

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Yorkshire Trust Company has appointed a Victoria man to head its first expansion project outside British Columbia — an office in Calgary.

J. D. Jameson, Victoria manager, will be in charge of the Calgary office effective July 1.

He will be succeeded in Victoria by Stephen Myers, who was in charge of trust services for the local branch. Promootion of Myers is effective June 15.

Jameson has been in the trust business for 16 years. Born in Edmonton, he came to Victoria in 1949 and has been here ever since except for seven years with an oil company in Vancouver.

He is married and has one daughter.

Meanwhile, Montreal Trust Company has announced the appointment of George Stephen of Montreal as new vice-president of the western region.

He succeeds J. N. Bell who is retiring.

Guaranty Trust Company of Canada and Merban Invest-Trust have purchased a 50 per cent interest in Baxter Estates Ltd. from R. C. Baxter.

The Vancouver-based company has projects in Calgary, Winnipeg and eastern points.

More than 200 chartered accountants from all over B.C. will meet in Harrison Hot Springs June 13 to discuss corporate financing and stress in their professions.

Speakers will be G. Howard Eaton, vice-president of the Bank of British Columbia; Griffith M. Marshall, senior vice-president of Neonex International Ltd., L. P. Price, president of Leemac Mines Ltd., and George Tidball, president of Western Leisure Industries Ltd.

The annual meeting will also feature a panel discussion on stress in the accounting profession.

Speakers will be Dr. C. E. Gould, a Vancouver neurologist, and Patrick Easton, an industrial psychologist.

An $8 million hotel and shopping complex called Nat Bailey's Kelowna Villa will be constructed on an eight-acre site in Kelowna.

Bailey already owns the Nanaimo Villa and the Howe Street Villa.

The Kelowna project will have convention facilities for 350 and sleeping accommodations for 280.

TC to Pay More For Gas

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Export Gas and Oil of Calgary has signed an agreement with TransCanada Pipelines giving CEGO higher prices for Alberta gas to Eastern Canada.

Under the agreement, CEGO will continue to supply TransCanada 12 million cubic feet a day but the price per thousand cubic feet will be increased to 26 cents from about 16 cents, effective Nov. 1.

A release said the contract with TransCanada represents about half of CEGO's net gas production and will give CEGO $400,000 more in income each year after payment of royalties.

The agreement provides for another review of prices in 1974 and every second year thereafter.

MONTREAL (CP)—U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds at noon today was down 2-25 at $0.99 39-50. Pound sterling down 37-50 at $2.56 4-5.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was up 2-25 at $1.00 11-50. Pound sterling down 7-50 at $2.57 9-25.

Lumber 'Crisis' Faces Furniture Makers

MONTREAL (CP) — Consumers watching their budgets may have to wait to purchase new furniture if present trends continue, says Rene Cimon, president of the Quebec Furniture Manufacturers' Association.

"The cost of lumber has risen between 50 and 100 per cent over the last 18 months," Cimon added. "Depending on the lumber content of each item, furniture prices will increase from eight to 20 per cent by August."

Cimon said that, while the over-all consumer price index jumped 13 per cent during last three years, furniture costs have risen only seven per cent in the same period.

He attributed this lag in price increase to factory without the industry: "Improved methods increased production which absorbed costs."

Cimon warned, however, that manufacturers could no longer continue to offset costs.

"Right now we're being pushed against the wall, pushed into a position where we can't compete with other industries."

He said the industry fears being knocked out of the market and, as a result, it has made numerous efforts to cut costs and transportation, find substitute materials, new methods of production and new products.

Cimon, as the association's president, represents 150 members responsible for the manufacture of between 75 and 80 per cent of all furniture in Quebec.

STEMS FROM SHORTAGE

He said the present crisis results from a lumber shortage, and added that two factors have brought the shortage about.

Hardwood trees such as elm, maple and birch are continuously felled but never replaced by saplings. Hardwoods take 80 to 125 years to mature in Quebec's climate. As a result, the supply is rapidly dwindling, and nothing is being done: "Quebec has no reforestation policy where these trees are concerned."

The second reason, and the most important, Cimon said, is the export of about one-half of Quebec's 200 million board feet cut each year. A board foot is 12 inches square by one inch thick.

"And last year, all Quebec's select maple went to Japan where it was used to make bowling alley lanes."

Cimon said that the Japanese paid far more for the lumber than Quebec manufacturers had in the past. "If we'd known it was going to leave the country, we would have matched their prices."

The present allocation system for lumber was also blamed.

Pulp and paper manufacturers get first choice for the province's lumber but "they take care of themselves, cut down the wood they need then give hardwood to the local farmers."

The association has tried to alert the provincial government to its plight, but to no avail.

"We're told we can't have a quota because this would be setting a precedent. But the pulp and paper industry already has one.

"We've had interviews with the government and we've presented briefs. But all they do is scream at us about employment."

Cimon said it takes five men to process one tree but only one man to cut it for export in its raw state. It thus stands to reason that, the more raw materials exported, the more unemployment goes with it, he said.

"How long can we keep exporting our raw materials and keep alive? We're just selling our raw material and watching people sell it back to us as finished products."

SUPER SIDEROWF SHOT MARKED BRITISH FINAL

PORTHCAWL, Wales (AP) — Dick Siderowf, of the United States, battled through the winds that suddenly invaded the British Amateur golf championship Saturday and won the title, beating England's Peter Moody, 5 and 3, in the 36-hole final.

The finest and strangest moment for the 35-year-old New York stockbroker came at the 21st hole, where his second shot hit a rock on the seashore and ricocheted to the other side of the fairway, leaving him farther away from the hole than before.

He calmly hit a massive three-wood shot into the heart of the green and canned a 12-foot putt, winning the hole he seemed certain to lose.

Siderowf, one of 50 U.S. starters in the six-day match play tournament over Royal Porthcawl's rolling links, was the 16th American champion in the 87-year history of the championship.

Welsh Side Erupts After Canucks Lead

TORONTO — Canada, captained by Ken Wilke of Victoria Castaways and including six other Vancouver Island players, socked it to Wales in the first half of an international rugby match here Saturday.

With a torrid forward display, in which Hugh Windham of Calgary scored two tries and hooker Dave Docherty of Victoria's Oak Bay Wanderers notched another try, Canada shot into a 16-13 halftime lead.

But Wales, with precision running and handling in the 85-degree heat, piled on 45 points in the second half to defeat Canada 58-20.

It was the fifth straight victory for the Welshmen on a five-game tour of Canada. Wales downed British Columbia 31-6 in Vancouver, crushed Alberta 76-9, beat Easter Canada All-Stars 44-6, and trounced Ontario 79-0.

Captain and scrum-half Gareth Edwards and standoff-half Phill Bennett, probably the best halfback combination in the world today, and running fullback John Williams did most of the damage in the second half.

Edwards and Bennett broke so quickly from the scrums and rucks that the Welsh back line had plenty of room to show its pace and Williams provided that extra bit of thrust by dashing into the line on several occasions.

Bennett was the points leader, kicking two penalty goals and seven conversions and adding a try for 24 points.

Keith Hughes and Tommy David scored two tries each and other try seorers were John Taylor, Williams, John Bevan and Phil Llewellyn. Taylor also kicked a conversion.

Prop Rob Hindson of Victoria Castaways, who performed brilliantly well in the Canadian forwards, booted a 45-yard penalty goal and Frank Deacy of Ontario kicked a penalty goal. Forward Leigh Hillier of University of British Columbia Thunderbirds had a conversion.

The other Vancouver Island players in the Canadian team were Tim Cummings of Oak Bay, Gillie Greig of Castaways, who was vice-captain, Stu Barber of James Bay Athletic Association and Gudmund Gudmunseth of Cowichan. Bruce Howe of Oak Bay was a reserve but didn't play.

Sizzling Stretch Drive By Keep Your Promise

Spectacular speed in the stretch produced a comfortable three-length victory Saturday for Keep Your Promise in the $10,000 Lieutenant-Governor's Handicap at Exhibition Park in Vancouver.

Under the handling of Andy Smith, the four-year-old roan colt collected his second triumph in three starts this year as he moved between horses going into the final turn and charged past Coral Isle midway in the home stretch.

Coral Isle held on for second place, three lengths clear of Dominguin II, which was followed by Hallman and Shadows Dividend.

Keep Your Promise was one second off the track record as covered the mile and one sixteenth in 1:43.8.

FAVORITES BEATEN

On United States tracks Saturday, two with horses with limited racing experience chalked up victories over favorites.

Carry the Banner, who didn't start as a two-year-old and who had earned only $11,325, wasn't given much of a chance to win the $66,200 Argonaut Handicap at Inglewood, Calif.

However, the 16-1 longshot outran highly-rated Rod and Out for his third win in six starts, picking up $39,220 for his owner at Hollywood Park.

Carry the Banner, with Alvaro Pineda aboard, zipped through the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:41.1 on a fast track and returned $35.20. In the process, he equalled the record for the Argonaut, set by TV Lark in 1960.

Rod and Out, ridden by Bill Shoemaker, finished a nose behind with the 2-1 favorite, Out of the East, third in the field of eight three-year-olds.

FOURTH STRAIGHT WIN

Bemo, making only the fifth start of his career, scored his fourth straight victory at Oceanport, N.J., taking the $28,850 Long Branch Stakes over the experienced Warbucks and eight other three-year-olds.

The gelding finished half a length in front of Warbucks in the mile and one-sixteenth race with Hey Rube another three lengths back in the third position. Odds-on favorite Royal and Regal, winner of the Florida Derby earlier this season, finished sixth.

Bemo ran the distance in 1:36.8 and returned $13.40.

Third in the mile and one-sixteenth event for three-year-old fillies was Out Cold as Caraggiose hit the wire in 1:42.6 and earned $17,310.

Running before 20,309 at Chicago's Arlington Park, Twixt carried jockey Bobby Breen to a half-length victory over Fussy Girl in the $28,450 Janice H. Handicap—a mile race for older fillies and mares. Royal Pussycat was third with Main Tan, the 9-5 favorite, a disappointing fourth.

Jockey Don Homes made the racing news at Detroit, getting eight mounts into the money and winning six races, a feat that has been performed only three times in the 25-year history of Hazel Park.

Favorites Extended In Oak Bay Tourney

Seeded players all reached the quarter-final stage when play continued Sunday in the Oak Bay Tennis Club championships — but a couple of them were given quite a fright by unhearalded young rivals.

Nina Bland, 13, who joined the club this season, put up a fighting display before going down 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 to a veteran campaigner, third-seeded Ruth Trelawny, in women's singles.

Another newcomer, 20-year-old Roger Thompson, shocked second-seeded Marty Taylor by grabbing the first set 6-4. Taylor recovered to win 6-2, 6-1.

Youngsters Joe Lachmund and Heather Graham also put up a great fight in the mixed doubles before losing 5-7, 6-2, 7-5 to defending champions Jim Hassard and Felicity Graham.

The tournament continues all week and ends with finals of all events Saturday.

Tonight's draw:

5:30 p.m. — Tony Simnett and Howard Tooby vs. Paul Moss and Ernie Wilson; Ted Davies and John Nichol vs. Bud Brice and John Lambeth; Scott Braley and John Fawcett vs. Peter Bousefield and Tim Cummings; Sandra Moss vs. Nancy Hill.
7 p.m. — Lyn Davis and Bob Schwengers vs. Ruth Trelawny and Tony Simnett; Cliff Harrington and Gerry Foard vs. Trevor Jones and Bob Hutton; Ivor Goodmanson and Marty Taylor vs. Dave Tooby and Jim Hassard; Kathy Metcalfe vs. Val Scott.

New Anusol Plus does first things first.

Since the pain of hemorrhoids can be unbearable, new Anusol Plus contains a topical anaesthetic. This relieves even intense hemorrhoid pain almost as soon as you apply it. It cools that burning, searing sensation. And numbs that maddening itch. And while it does all this within minutes, the relief that it gives will last for hours.

Since twisted hemorrhoid veins often swell and become tender, new Anusol Plus helps to reduce this swelling with a gentle decongestant ingredient. To soothe and protect tender hemorrhoid tissues, it contains a smooth, rich emollient. And it has two antiseptic agents that curb infection—thus helping your hemorrhoids to heal.

In addition, new Anusol Plus now comes in a silky smooth cream form. This means that it goes on easily. Even in areas where the skin is sore and inflamed.

New Anusol Plus, in cream or suppository form, is now on sale at your nearest pharmacy. It'll give you quick relief from your painful hemorrhoid symptoms. And that's a promise.

Strong Start Helps Burrards Clip Irish

Vancouver Burrards recovered from their upset by the Irish last Wednesday and edged Victoria Shamrocks 12-10 at Memorial Arena Saturday night.

Victory enabled Burrards to regain their four-point lead over Coquitlam Adanacs atop the Western Lacrosse Association. Adanacs and moved to within two points of the leaders last Thursday by pounding New Westminster Salmonbellies 25-13.

Playing easily their best lacrosse of the season, Shamrocks upset the high-flying Burrards 13-7 in Victoria Wednesday but, except for a brief spell early in the third period, never looked like pulling off a repeat Saturday night.

Unlike Wednesday's game, when Burrards were slow to get going and trailed 10-0 before getting on the scoreboard, Vancouver held the edge from the start Saturday, leading 5-3 after the first period and 8-6 at the end of two sessions.

Shamrocks rebounded early in the third period and had the crowd of 1,496 fans buzzing when they scored four goals in less than six minutes to pull within one goal.

But a penalty to Shamrocks' Jack Kastelein gave Ross McDonald a chance to score a power-play goal and Victoria couldn't close the two-goal gap again.

Bob Salt, whose powerful checking was a highlight of the game, scored four goals and had three assists to lead Vancouver. Dave Tasker, Bill Foote and Ross McDonald scored two goals each.

Captain and scoring leader Ivan Thompson returned to the Shamrocks' lineup after missing Wednesday's game with a bruised back and collected one goal and three assists to move one point ahead of Paul Parnell of New Westminster at the top of the WLA's individual scoring.

But it was Ivan's brother, Brian Thompson, who led the club in goal scoring, notching four tallies. Tom Somner also had a good game, finishing with two goals and one assist, and Ranjit Dillon had one goal and two assists.

Three Wins By Griffin At Richmond

RICHMOND — Tom Griffin of Victoria Mercuries topped a fine effort by Vancouver Island athletes Saturday but Richmond Track Club still won a dual track and field meet against the Island team 850-800.

Griffin raced to victory in 400, 800 and 1,500-metre events and placed second in the 200 metres.

Four Island athletes were double winners at the one-day meet for 15-and-under athletes. Kathy Weich of Mercuries took 100 and 200-metre events; Tom Nielson of Duncan CeeVacs won the shot put and discus; Jim Bissesden of Victoria Track Club placed first in 100 metres and long jump; and Ted Roberts of Port Alberni had wins in 100 and 200-metre contests.

City Vets Take Lead

Made up mostly of veterans of the Pacific Coast League and Victoria and District League teams from the 1950s and 60s, the Victoria squad dominated play and got goals from Ian Harris, George Paul and Gordie Cameron. Harry McTaggart scored for Vancouver.

Second leg of the two-game, total-goal series will be played in Vancouver June 23.

Ranger Wounded

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Relief pitcher Charlie Hudson of the Texas Rangers has been placed on the disabled list by the American League baseball club, following a shooting accident.

Checking a pistol at his apartment, Hudson shot himself in the right middle finger, which was saved in an operation, club officials said.

Cowichan Cricketers Crack Six-a-Side Jinx

Cowichan has won the Victoria and District Cricket Association's league title 10 times in the last 11 years.

But the Cowichan cricketers had never once managed to win the Albion Club's six-a-side tournament in its 13-year history.

They put that right Sunday.

Cowichan limited an Oak Bay Club "B" team to only 28 runs for four wickets in the allotted five, six-ball overs and then made 29 without losing a wicket to easily win the final.

In the first round of the 12-team knockout tournament, Cowichan beat host Albion and then got past Castaways with a score of 52 runs to 35 in a semi-final.

Biggest shock of the tourney was the win by the Oak Bay "B" team, captained by Ken Aziz, over Incogs, the defending champions.

Both teams made 44 runs to end their semi-final tied but Oak Bay went through to the final because it had lost only two wickets. Incogs had three batsmen out.

In league matches Saturday, Castaways climbed into third place by scoring a 10-wicket victory over Oak Bay at Beacon Hill Park and Albion increased its lead with a 76-run win over Alcos at Windsor Park.

Captain David Auld, in a fine display of bowling, took six wickets for only 24 runs to help get Oak Bay all out for 72.

Only Oak Bay batsman to withstand the bowling was Prakash Chatralia, who made 24 runs.

Then, Dave Shaw and Dave Clarke got together for some big hitting as Castaways reached 75 without loss. Shaw made 51 not out and Clarke hit 24 not out.

Keith Dixon scored 82 runs and Mal Shanks got 35 to lead Albions to 150 for six declared. Best of the Alcos bowlers was John Moss, who took two for 21.

Moss, who made 27, was also the best of the Alcos batsmen. He got little support and Alcos were all out for 74. Shanks took two for three and Alec Porter got four for 27.

Century Survives Southpaw's Shift

George Welling didn't have to go very far to find action, and Century Inn almost was sorry to see him go.

Almost, but not quite.

Miffed because he wasn't being used as a starter, the southpaw pitcher Sunday evening asked for and was granted his release from Century Inn. He walked across the Central Park infield and promptly donned a Labatts jersey.

Welling held the hard-hitting Century squad to five hits, and it was an unearned run in the fifth inning that spoiled his Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League starting assignment. Century won, 2-1, to pull a half game ahead of Seaboard Construction.

Even though the loss dropped Labs to the bottom of the 10-team league, Welling's addition could be welcomed by a club that has relied almost exclusively on the right arm of Russ Carruthers.

The league's biggest winner, Bill Polz boosted his record to 8-1 by checking Labs on three singles, including a pair by Elwood Thomas.

Tennis Pros Warned

International Tennis officials have got tough with the players and have told the top stars that if they boycott Wimbledon, the tournament will carry on without them.

The Association of Tennis Professionals has threatened to withdraw its 96 members from next week's tournament at Hamburg in Germany and from Wimbledon starting June 25, unless Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia is allowed to compete.

Pilic has been suspended by the International Lawn Tennis Federation until the end of June because he refused to play for Yugoslavia in the Davis Cup.

Herman David, chairman of the All-England Club which runs Wimbledon, said his club is firmly behind the ILTF.

"If players walk out, then we are quite prepared to carry on without them," David said.

"On the playing scene Sunday, Evonne Goolagong of Australia stunned top-seeded Chris Evert of the United States 7-6, 6-0 in the women's singles final in the $135,000 Italian championships in Rome.

It was Miss Goolagong's first victory over Miss Evert in four tournament finals this year.

Defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain outlasted Tom Okker of the Netherlands 3-6, 7-6, 6-3, 4-6, 7-6 in a three-and-a-half hour match to reach the men's singles final.

Billie Jean King of the United States downed Francois Durr of France 6-3, 7-5 to win $4,000 in a $15,000 professional women's event in Mobile, Ala.

Describing Secretariat Newest Game in Racing

NEW YORK (AP) — They're still trying to find a word to describe Secretariat.

"Some horse . . . a hell of a horse," trainer Lucien Laurin said Sunday, but the former Montreal jockey knew that wasn't enough to say.

After all, Secretariat had become the first Triple Crown winner in 25 years, chopping more than a bitesize chunk off the Belmont Stakes record and winning by 31 lengths.

"He's the people's horse, and I think it was good for those people who were here to see him do it," said jockey Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B. "It's just a shame for those who didn't."

A lot of those who did see it didn't believe it.

"I knew we were rolling, but I didn't have any idea we were going that fast," Turcotte said. "I just knew my horse was running good and settling into a long, smooth stride.

"I saw the cumulative timer just as it hit 2:20 and thought, 'Oh, I can make it,' so I urged him a little in just the last few yards—about as far as from here to the end of the barn."

The result, very simply, was a Belmont victory in two minutes and 24 seconds, nearly three seconds faster than Gallant Man's 16-year-old record of 2:26 3-5, six lengths more than the legendary Count Fleet's margin 30 years ago.

And without so much as a thought of using the whip.

Oh, Turcotte carries one.

"You wouldn't go to war without a gun would you" he asked. But with Secretariat, the whip has been used so seldom the new leather smell hasn't worn off.

INCREASE EARNINGS

Secretariat's Belmont victory put another $90,120 in the Meadow Stable bank account — making him just a little more than $100,000 short of $1 million—and had everybody asking: "What's next?"

The big, reddish son of Bold Ruler has been syndicated for a record $6.08 million for breeding purposes.

"Mrs. John Tweedy hasn't made a decision yet, but I'd think he'll go in the Travers Stakes in August, with maybe one race before then," Laurin said, referring to the operator of Meadow Stable.

"But he'll definitely race again," he added.

For a half mile in the Belmont, there was a race. Sham, a 2½-length loser to Secretariat in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, dueled the king for the lead.

"Sham even got in front of me that one time, maybe a neck, maybe half a length," Turcotte said. "But then I took the lead back and Sham started dropping back.

"Once he started dropping back, he backed off so fast that I looked around to see what happened. I was surprised that he backed up that early."

What happened was that Secretariat soared from a 2½-length lead after three-quarters of a mile to seven at the mile and an amazing 20 after a mile and a quarter.

In fact, he ran the 10 furlongs faster than he did when he broke the track record in the Kentucky Derby for that distance.

Sham was so discouraged that he finished last, with Twice a Prince second and My Gallant third ahead of Pvt. Smiles.

But none was within shouting distance of the winner. He simply went faster than any horse had ever gone 1½ miles on the dirt in North America.

Will one ever go faster? "If one does, I sure hope I'm on him," Turcotte said.

STRICTLY A HAM

NEW YORK — Once in a lifetime a great champion comes along who makes a shambles of the deeds of his predecessors.

He is fashioned for eternity.

He is Jack Dempsey mauling gigantic Jess Willard. He is Babe Ruth hitting 714 home runs. He is Jim Thorpe, excelling in many sports as no man ever did before. He is another Man O' War. He is the heavyweight king of the world.

"He knows he is good," said Penny Tweedy, the operator of Meadow Stable, after watching Secretariat win the Belmont Stakes in record time and become the first horse in 25 years to take thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

"I am in absolute awe of him. His size, his good looks, his astounding speed — he must be frightening to other horses. But to me, he's like a mischievous kid.

"He is so full of himself, he doesn't know what to do. He is one big mass of energy, always ready and eager to run.

Yes, I think he knows he is a champion. He is a ham.

"All you have to do is click a camera and his ears will perk up and he will strike up a profile. You'd think he was in Hollywood."

"I guess you have to say now that he's a great horse."

That's what Jimmy Jones says of Secretariat. Jones trained Citation, the last colt to sweep the Triple Crown. That was for Calumet Farm in 1948.

Jones earlier had refrained from giving unqualified approval to Secretariat.

Thousands of tickets on Secretariat weren't cashed.

Roberta Landa of Mexico City bought a $10 win ticket, and when he realized what he had, he wouldn't cash it.

"I'm just glad to be here at a time like this — to be part of it."

The post-race interviews taxed the vocabularies of those who talked about the horse. Superlatives weren't enough. What words could they use that would really articulate what they felt?

One writer said: "God, I wish that horse could talk."

That One by Jeevan Rates High on List

Statistics provide strong backing for the good-goaltending reputation John Hamilton enjoys around Pacific Coast Junior "A" Lacrosse League centres.

The figures, however, fail to indicate some of the unsung helpers who support the goalie for Victoria McDonalds. Jeevan Dillon, for example.

Hamilton was the picture of steadiness in an otherwise-erratic Victoria performance. The defence was adequate, and Dillon did his thing by scoring a shorthanded goal.

Normally, Jerry Kustaski's three goals and one assist might rate the greater applause than Jeevan's one-goal effort. Dillon's goal rates mention because it was his eighth of the season — all eight being scored while the Macs have played shorthanded.

Good penalty-killing is a must if Hamilton must uphold his reputation. Also, it points the "completeness" coaches Barry Forbes and Bill Munroe are attempting to achieve in pointing the Macs in the direction of the Minto Cup and a Canadian championship.

The Macs, despite a 54-49 edge in shots, weren't awe-inspiring Sunday before 1,064 fans. But Victoria did get an early jump, 4-0 after the first period and 11-5 after the second, and made it stand up for a victory that pushed them six points ahead of second-place Burnaby Cables.

In addition to Kustaski and Dillon, McDonalds were given single-goal efforts by Jim Lynch, Lorry Gloeckner, Norm Baker, Rick Baker, Dan Green, Kim Bowles and Rick Lapointe.

Harry Powless, with four tallies, powered the Jay-Hawks. Norm Leuszler added a pair and singles went to Gary Holte and Jim Alward.

Victoria's move ahead of the pack was assisted Sunday by Surrey Salmonbellies, the team Macs meet tonight on the mainland. Surrey, sparked by Al Benson's six goals, struck for 10 goals in the first period and upset Burnaby 18-15.

Expos Talk Pennant!

MONTREAL (CP) — The mighty San Francisco Giants strode into town late last week, sitting pretty with a 3½-game lead atop the west division of baseball's National League.

The Giants left here Sunday, their lead over second-place Los Angeles Dodgers shaved to 1½ games, following a 7-6 loss to Montreal Expos Sunday.

The win gave the Expos a sweep of their three-game set against the Giants, a series in which the Montreal club outscored its West Coast opponent 33-15. The series left Expos in second place in the East Division, 5½ games back of Chicago Cubs.

And now, there is talk of pennant in this baseball-mad city, which got a major league franchise only five years ago.

"It's the greatest moment since 1969," said team president John McHale. "I've been around for quite a few situations like this one. It's pretty early yet. But Gene (manager Gene Mauch) has confidence. That's what's important."

The Expos reached the .500 plateau with their 25th win of the year Sunday. Never have they had such a good record so late in the season. Still, there is more than two-thirds of the season to go.

NEVER CAN TELL

"If we get a few breaks from upstairs, you never can tell what might happen," said Ron Hunt, a former Giant who enjoyed a successful weekend series against his former teammates.

Can the Expos get above .500 and stay there and perhaps repeat the performance of the Miracle New York Mets of 1969?

"You don't need a big start," said Jorgensen. "When you play good baseball, you can beat anybody. We've proved that. The Mets proved it."

"This team has as much talent as the Mets," added shortstop Tim Foli. "We have a lot more drive and hunger. We're going to find ourselves."

In other National League games Sunday Roric Harrison pitched a one-hitter for eight innings and hit a home run to give Atlanta Braves a split with St. Louis after the Cardinals had won the first game 4-3; Houston stopped Pittsburgh 7-1; Chicago downed Cincinnati 9-7; Los Angeles banked New York 4-0; and Philadelphia whipped San Diego 11-0. Rick Monday hit two home runs for the Cubs.

In the American League, Milwaukee Brewers moved to within two games of first place New York Yankees with an 8-6 victory over California and a sweep of the weekend series with the Angels. It was Milwaukee's third straight win.

In Sunday's other games, Kansas City Royals beat the Yankees 7-4, Minnesota Twins mauled Baltimore 11-4, Oakland Athletics blanked Detroit 5-0, Boston topped Texas Rangers 10-1 and Chicago White Sox split a double-header with Cleveland, winning 5-3, and losing 6-5.

INDY DRIVER REMAINS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Race car driver Swede Savage remains in critical condition in hospital with burns and other injuries received in a fiery crash during the May 30 Indianapolis 500.

Another driver, David Salt Walther of Dayton, Ohio, who crashed in the first start of the rain-delayed race May 28, remains in serious condition at the University of Michigan burn centre at Ann Arbor.

Two spectators who were burned by flying fuel from Walther's crash now are listed in fair condition.

Murdoch's a Happy Guy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bidding war for defenceman Bob Murdoch is over, and the happiest guy in the world about the outcome is Murdoch.

"This is the happiest moment of my career," the 26-year-old native of Kirkland Lake, Ont., said Sunday after signing a five-year contract for an unannounced amount with Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League. He also had been sought by Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association after his contract expired last season.

"Most of the players in the league have felt the Kings needed only a little help to challenge Chicago. They are the team of the future and I'm happy to join them."

The six-foot, 195-pound Murdoch played regularly with the Canadiens last year and had a plus-40 record: the Canadiens scored 40 more goals than were scored against them when he was on the ice. Bobby Orr, acclaimed the NHL's best defenceman, had a plus 53.

Broker-Turned-Driver Wins Mosport Can-Am

A virtual unknown in major car-racing circles, Charlie Kemp of Jackson, Miss., drove his turbo-charged Porsche to victory Sunday in the opening race of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series at Mosport, Ont.

The 38-year-old driver, who gave up the stock brokerage business for racing, won $15,000 and accessory money added annother $3,200 to his take.

Accidents and mechanical troubles plagued such favorites as Mark Donohue and George Follmer of the United States, Jody Scheckter of South Africa and Jackie Oliver of England.

Kemp had little thought of winning and actually cut the boost on his turbo charger to save gasoline and avoid a pit stop.

"I was aware that I had enough gas for 88 laps," he said. "But I was concerned about finishing so I turned the boost down."

Two of the finishers were Canadians, John Cannon of Montreal in sixth place and John Cordts of Huntsville, Ont., in ninth place.

In France, Henri Pescarolo and Gerard Larrousse of France drove their Matra Simca to victory Sunday in the 24 Hours of Le Mans endurance race, holding the lead for the final seven hours after two front-running Ferraris were eliminated by mechanical problems.

Arturo Merzario of Italy and Carlos Pace of Brazil finished second in a Ferrari and Frenchmen Jean Pierre Jabouille and Jean Pierre Jassaud were third in another Matra Simca.

Bobby Unser of the U.S. drove his Eagle Offenhauser from the pole position to victory Sunday in the Rex Mays Memorial 150 race for Indianapolis type cars in Milwaukee.

And in College Station, Texas, Richard Petty broke away from a neck-and-neck duel with Buddy Baker on the 214th lap Sunday and won the Alamo 500 stock car race at Texas World Speedway.

Al Mengert Coasts Home

SPOKANE (AP) — Al Mengert, a part-time touring pro from Spokane now playing out of Birmingham, Mich., "came home" at the weekend to score rounds of 69, 67, 71 for a six-under-par 207 and a six-stroke victory in the $15,000 Lincoln Open golf tournament here.

Seattle amateur Jeff Marsh, 69-69-75—213, took second place. Three Vancouver, B.C., golfers finished in the top 20. Bob Cox was fifth with 73-71-72—216, Doug Robb eighth with 218 and Tom Whittle 19th with 223.

Horses Die

AYLMER, Que. (CP) — Nine racehorses died early Sunday when fire destroyed a stable.

The horses, which raced at Connaught racetrack in nearby Ottawa, were owned by Bob Carisse, who said the stable was worth $20,000 and one of the dead horses $32,000.

CALLED OUT by umpire Charlie Pye is Maxine Stoval of CAV Electronics in final game of two-day Victoria Senior Women's Softball League tourney at Hyacinth Park. On third base for MacDonalds Furniture is Marjorie Ratcliffe. CAV needed extra inning to edge MacDonalds 6-5 in final after hammering them 13-1 earlier in double knockout tourney. Esquimalt Cambos were third in eight-team event. Barb Guy of CAV picked up tourney's best-batter award, clubmate Sharon Farrell was best pitcher and Sally Polson of MacDonalds won most-valuable-player award. (Times photo by John McKay.)

Oak Bay Student Takes Bike Title

Phillip Quillevere of Oak Bay Sunday won the first annual Victoria junior high schools bicycle race.

Quillevere hung on to beat brothers Patrick Peron, who finished second, and Michel Peron, who was third, both from Cedar Hill Junior High School, in the 17-mile race on Happy Valley Road circuit.

The event, sponsored by Victoria Wheelers bicycle club, was a final, with the field reduced to nine riders after two previously-run heats.

Four riders, although not injured, were eliminated in a crash on the first lap and another rider later pulled out.

A KISS was Mary Wills' way of showing appreciation after rolling in downhill, 30-foot putt for birdie on 15th hole in Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament Sunday at Sutton, Mass. Finishing with six birdies on last nine holes, Miss Wills scored three-under-par 70 and 72-hole total of 288 to claim first tournament victory since 1970. Betty Burfeindt finished one stroke behind while Kathy Whitworth was third with 291, Janie Blalock and Donna Caponi Young tied for fourth with 292 totals.

Cec, You Can Say, Is Back

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Cec Ferguson has a perfect batting average in the City Amateur golf tournament—he's one-for-one, or 1.000 per cent—but he couldn't get into a softball game Sunday night because of an oversight.

Arriving late at Central Park, Ferguson didn't qualify for a Stuffy McGinnis Men's League game because Labatts' manager neglected to include his catcher's name on the eligibility lineup.

The victory makes it an impressive comeback to golf. The former city junior champion never hit a competitive stroke at all last year and virtually ignored the game for almost three years.

He started playing again "just after Christmas" and, in order to qualify for district events, took out membership at the nine-hole Gregarah club.

Surprisingly, this was the first time Ferguson had entered the City Amateur.

"Don't ask me why," said Cec, who celebrated his 23rd birthday last month. "I just never did get around to entering it until this year."

The co-leader after the first round at Colwood the previous Sunday, Ferguson pulled away from all challengers with a fine, back-nine run at Gorge Vale.

Getting a big lift from a birdie on the ninth, Ferguson toured the back nine in three-under 32. He scored an eagle three on the par-five 11th, birdies on the 13th and 15th, a bogey on the 14th and five pars.

The birdie on the ninth set him off.

"It was the first birdie I had in 27 holes, and the putts started to roll in after that," he said.

His drives pointed the way as he hit 15 of the 18 greens in regulation figures. All his tee shots were straight and long. On the 444-yard 11th, he hit a booming tee shot and went into the green with a nine iron. The ball wound up 12 feet from the cup and Ferguson sank it for his eagle.

The closing charge enabled him to pull away from Mick and Marty Richards, who shared the first-round lead with Ferguson. Mick finished with a 74 on his home course and Richards, the Glen Meadows club champ, came in with a 75 to take third place with a 149 total.

Defending champion Bob Hunt rebounded strongly from his opening-round 79 to also score a 71 and finish in a tie for fourth place with Cedar Hill's Gord Rands.

Rod Turner completed a "good day" for the softball set. The one-time pitcher, now retired, captured the Matson Trophy, emblematic of the city handicap championship.

A 16-handicapper in golf, Turner scored rounds of 87 and 81 to finish with a net 136. He finished three strokes ahead of Ferguson and five ahead of Glen Meadows' John Russell.

Seven players finished in a group at 142.

GORGE PAIR TIES FOR TOP

Shirley Naysmith and Peg Matthews, both of Gorge Vale, each scored a 75 to tie for low gross honors Sunday in the eighth annual women's field day at Cedar Hill Golf Club.

Ruby Niemeyer of Glen Meadows finished third with a 79.

... And Weiskopf Is Hot

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Nicklaus will be the favorite in this week's United States Open, but the hottest golfer en route to Oakmont Country Club today for the tournament has to be Tom Weiskopf.

The 30-year-old Weiskopf won the $150,000 Philadelphia tournament Sunday with a 14-underpar 274 for his third triumph on the pro tour in the last four he's played. The $30,045 first prize raised his earnings to $151,867 for the year, and moved him ahead of Lee Trevino into third place on the money list.

Here's an idea of the kind of golfer the 6-foot-3 Weiskopf is playing.

He has registered 17 straight rounds at par or less —four in the Philadelphia event at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club. He shot 67-71-65-71 over the 6,708-yard, par-72 course and won by four strokes over upstart Jim Barber of Clearwater, Fla.

The 24-year-old Barber with a tie for 24th as his best showing previously in 10 tournaments, shot 65-67-76-70 for a 10-under-par 278.

Nicklaus, the top money winner and a four-time victor on the tour this year, rallied from 10 strokes back at the start of the last round to shoot a five-under-par 67 to finish at 280, six strokes off the pace.

Ben Kern of Toronto had rounds of 70-72-71-72—285 to pick up $976, while George Knudson of Toronto had a 288 total from scores of 69-71-75-73 to earn $511.

Weiskopf continued his new policy of positive thinking at Whitemarsh. He said Friday when he was six strokes back of the leader, "I'm not out of it," and Saturday fired a seven-under-par 65 to move in front by three.

"I had a lot of confidence Sunday," said Weiskopf after his comparatively easy triumph. "I was driving out to the course with my wife and I said—They're just not going to beat me. I can't shoot over par today. That may sound cocky, but it was how I felt."

Weiskopf said his goal at Whitemarsh was to win for the second straight week—he won a week ago at Charlotte.

"Now I've set another goal," said the former Ohio State golfer, "I want to win the U.S. Open. I'll have to drive a little bit better, but my irons and my putting are fine. I have a chance."

Practice Helps But Peek Doesn't

TORONTO (CP) — Golfer Rafe Botts has two main rules he follows on the professional tour—practise hard and never look to see what the other fellow is doing.

Botts stuck to the first rule, forgot the second one, but still survived to win the Ontario Open golf championship Sunday at the Islington Golf Club.

The 36-year-old from Los Angeles, veteran of 12 years in North American pro tournament golf, won by three strokes over John Jacobs of San Diego. He shot a final-round 71 on the par-70 Islington layout for a three-round total of 211.

"My putting was as good today as it was bad yesterday," said Botts after he collected the $3,000 winner's cheque in the $16,000 tournament.

His peek at the scoreboard at that point showed him leading by seven strokes after he scored consecutive birdies on the 10th, 11th and 12th holes.

"I just lit up with glee and then I just psychologically eased up. It was the first time in the tournament that I let up."

Easing up meant he took a bogey on the 14th and a triple-bogey six on the 15th, leaving him one over par for the day and the tournament.

But by the time Botts got past the 15th, there was no one close enough to catch him as he parred the last three holes.

Describing Secretariat Newest Game in Racing

NEW YORK (AP) — They're still trying to find a word to describe Secretariat.

"Some horse . . . a hell of a horse," trainer Lucien Laurin said Sunday, but the former Montreal jockey knew that wasn't enough to say.

After all, Secretariat had become the first Triple Crown winner in 25 years, chopping more than a bitesize chunk off the Belmont Stakes record and winning by 31 lengths.

"He's the people's horse, and I think it was good for those people who were here to see him do it," said jockey Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B. "It's just a shame for those who didn't."

A lot of those who did see it didn't believe it.

"I knew we were rolling, but I didn't have any idea we were going that fast," Turcotte said. "I just knew my horse was running good and settling into a long, smooth stride.

"I saw the cumulative timer just as it hit 2:20 and thought, 'Oh, I can make it,' so I urged him a little in just the last few yards—about as far as from here to the end of the barn."

The result, very simply, was a Belmont victory in two minutes and 24 seconds, nearly three seconds faster than Gallant Man's 16-year-old record of 2:26 3-5, six lengths more than the legendary Count Fleet's margin 30 years ago.

And without so much as a thought of using the whip.

Oh, Turcotte carries one.

"You wouldn't go to war without a gun would you" he asked. But with Secretariat, the whip has been used so seldom the new leather smell hasn't worn off.

INCREASE EARNINGS

Secretariat's Belmont victory put another $90,120 in the Meadow Stable bank account — making him just a little more than $100,000 short of $1 million—and had everybody asking: "What's next?"

The big, reddish son of Bold Ruler has been syndicated for a record $6.08 million for breeding purposes.

"Mrs. John Tweedy hasn't made a decision yet, but I'd think he'll go in the Travers Stakes in August, with maybe one race before then," Laurin said, referring to the operator of Meadow Stable.

"But he'll definitely race again," he added.

For a half mile in the Belmont, there was a race. Sham, a 2½-length loser to Secretariat in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, dueled the king for the lead.

"Sham even got in front of me that one time, maybe a neck, maybe half a length," Turcotte said. "But then I took the lead back and Sham started dropping back.

"Once he started dropping back, he backed off so fast that I looked around to see what happened. I was surprised that he backed up that early."

What happened was that Secretariat soared from a 2½-length lead after three-quarters of a mile to seven at the mile and an amazing 20 after a mile and a quarter.

In fact, he ran the 10 furlongs faster than he did when he broke the track record in the Kentucky Derby for that distance.

Sham was so discouraged that he finished last, with Twice a Prince second and My Gallant third ahead of Pvt. Smiles.

But none was within shouting distance of the winner. He simply went faster than any horse had ever gone 1½ miles on the dirt in North America.

Will one ever go faster? "If one does, I sure hope I'm on him," Turcotte said.

STRICTLY A HAM

NEW YORK — Once in a lifetime a great champion comes along who makes a shambles of the deeds of his predecessors.

He is fashioned for eternity.

He is Jack Dempsey mauling gigantic Jess Willard. He is Babe Ruth hitting 714 home runs. He is Jim Thorpe, excelling in many sports as no man ever did before. He is another Man O' War. He is the heavyweight king of the world.

"He knows he is good," said Penny Tweedy, the operator of Meadow Stable, after watching Secretariat win the Belmont Stakes in record time and become the first horse in 25 years to take thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

"I am in absolute awe of him. His size, his good looks, his astounding speed — he must be frightening to other horses. But to me, he's like a mischievous kid.

"He is so full of himself, he doesn't know what to do. He is one big mass of energy, always ready and eager to run.

Yes, I think he knows he is a champion. He is a ham.

"All you have to do is click a camera and his ears will perk up and he will strike up a profile. You'd think he was in Hollywood."

"I guess you have to say now that he's a great horse."

That's what Jimmy Jones says of Secretariat. Jones trained Citation, the last colt to sweep the Triple Crown. That was for Calumet Farm in 1948.

Jones earlier had refrained from giving unqualified approval to Secretariat.

Thousands of tickets on Secretariat weren't cashed.

Roberta Landa of Mexico City bought a $10 win ticket, and when he realized what he had, he wouldn't cash it.

The post-race interviews taxed the vocabularies of those who talked about the horse. Superlatives weren't enough. What words could they use that would really articulate what they felt?

One writer said: "God, I wish that horse could talk."

That One by Jeevan Rates High on List

Statistics provide strong backing for the good-goaltending reputation John Hamilton enjoys around Pacific Coast Junior "A" Lacrosse League centres.

The figures, however, fail to indicate some of the unsung helpers who support the goalie for Victoria McDonalds. Jeevan Dillon, for example.

Hamilton was the picture of steadiness in an otherwise-erratic Victoria performance. The defence was adequate, and Dillon did his thing by scoring a shorthanded goal.

Normally, Jerry Kustaski's three goals and one assist might rate the greater applause than Jeevan's one-goal effort. Dillon's goal rates mention because it was his eighth of the season — all eight being scored while the Macs have played shorthanded.

Good penalty-killing is a must if Hamilton must uphold his reputation. Also, it points the "completeness" coaches Barry Forbes and Bill Munroe are attempting to achieve in pointing the Macs in the direction of the Minto Cup and a Canadian championship.

The Macs, despite a 54-49 edge in shots, weren't awe-inspiring Sunday before 1,064 fans. But Victoria did get an early jump, 4-0 after the first period and 11-5 after the second, and made it stand up for a victory that pushed them six points ahead of second-place Burnaby Cables.

In addition to Kustaski and Dillon, McDonalds were given single-goal efforts by Jim Lynch, Lorry Gloeckner, Norm Baker, Rick Baker, Dan Green, Kim Bowles and Rick Lapointe.

Victoria's move ahead of the pack was assisted Sunday by Surrey Salmonbellies, the team Macs meet tonight on the mainland. Surrey, sparked by Al Benson's six goals, struck for 10 goals in the first period and upset Burnaby 18-15.

Murdoch's a Happy Guy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bidding war for defenceman Bob Murdoch is over, and the happiest guy in the world about the outcome is Murdoch.

"This is the happiest moment of my career," the 26-year-old native of Kirkland Lake, Ont., said Sunday after signing a five-year contract for an unannounced amount with Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League. He also had been sought by Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association after his contract expired last season.

"Most of the players in the league have felt the Kings needed only a little help to challenge Chicago. They are the team of the future and I'm happy to join them."

The six-foot, 195-pound Murdoch played regularly with the Canadiens last year and had a plus-40 record: the Canadiens scored 40 more goals than were scored against them when he was on the ice. Bobby Orr, acclaimed the NHL's best defenceman, had a plus 53.

Al Mengert Coasts Home

SPOKANE (AP) — Al Mengert, a part-time touring pro from Spokane now playing out of Birmingham, Mich., "came home" at the weekend to score rounds of 69, 67, 71 for a six-under-par 207 and a six-stroke victory in the $15,000 Lincoln Open golf tournament here.

Seattle amateur Jeff Marsh, 69-69-75—213, took second place. Three Vancouver, B.C., golfers finished in the top 20, Bob Cox was fifth with 73-71-72—216, Doug Robb eighth with 218 and Tom Whittle 19th with 223.

Horses Die

AYLMER, Que. (CP) — Nine racehorses died early Sunday when fire destroyed a stable.

The horses, which raced at Connaught racetrack in nearby Ottawa, were owned by Bob Carisse, who said the stable was worth $20,000 and one of the dead horses $32,000.

Expos Talk Pennant!

MONTREAL (CP) — The mighty San Francisco Giants strode into town late last week, sitting pretty with a 3½-game lead atop the west division of baseball's National League.

The Giants left here Sunday, their lead over second-place Los Angeles Dodgers shaved to 1½ games, following a 7-6 loss to Montreal Expos Sunday.

The win gave the Expos a sweep of their three-game set against the Giants, a series in which the Montreal club outscored its West Coast opponent 33-15. The series left Expos in second place in the East Division, 5½ games back of Chicago Cubs.

And now, there is talk of pennant in this baseball-mad city, which got a major league franchise only five years ago.

"It's the greatest moment since 1969," said team president John McHale. "I've been around for quite a few situations like this one. It's pretty early yet. But Gene (manager Gene Mauch) has confidence. That's what's important."

The Expos reached the .500 plateau with their 25th win of the year Sunday. Never have they had such a good record so late in the season. Still, there is more than two-thirds of the season to go.

NEVER CAN TELL

"If we get a few breaks from upstairs, you never can tell what might happen," said Ron Hunt, a former Giant who enjoyed a successful weekend series against his former teammates.

Can the Expos get above .500 and stay there and perhaps repeat the performance of the Miracle New York Mets of 1969?

"You don't need a big start," said Jorgensen. "When you play good baseball, you can beat anybody. We've proved that. The Mets proved it."

"This team has as much talent as the Mets," added shortstop Tim Foli. "We have a lot more drive and hunger. We're going to find ourselves."

In other National League games Sunday Roric Harrison pitched a one-hitter for eight innings and hit a home run to give Atlanta Braves a split with St. Louis after the Cardinals had won the first game 4-3; Houston stopped Pittsburgh 7-1; Chicago downed Cininnati 9-7; Los Angeles banked New York 4-0; and Philadelphia whipped San Diego 11-0. Rick Monday hit two home runs for the Cubs.

In the American League, Milwaukee Brewers moved to within two games of first place New York Yankees with an 8-6 victory over California and a sweep of the weekend series with the Angels. It was Milwaukee's third straight win.

In Sunday's other games, Kansas City Royals beat the Yankees 7-4, Minnesota Twins mauled Baltimore 11-4, Oakland Athletics blanked Detroit 5-0, Boston topped Texas Rangers 10-1 and Chicago White Sox split a double-header with Cleveland, winning 5-3, and losing 6-5.

INDY DRIVER REMAINS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Race car driver Swede Savage remains in critical condition in hospital with burns and other injuries received in a fiery crash during the May 30 Indianapolis 500.

Another driver, David Salt Walther of Dayton, Ohio, who crashed in the first start of the rain-delayed race May 28, remains in serious condition at the University of Michigan burn centre at Ann Arbor.

Two spectators who were burned by flying fuel from Walther's crash now are listed in fair condition.

Broker-Turned-Driver Wins Mosport Can-Am

A virtual unknown in major car-racing circles, Charlie Kemp of Jackson, Miss., drove his turbo-charged Porsche to victory Sunday in the opening race of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series at Mosport, Ont.

The 38-year-old driver, who gave up the stock brokerage business for racing, won $15,000 and accessory money added annother $3,200 to his take.

Accidents and mechanical troubles plagued such favorites as Mark Donohue and George Follmer of the United States, Jody Scheckter of South Africa and Jackie Oliver of England.

Kemp had little thought of winning and actually cut the boost on his turbo charger to save gasoline and avoid a pit stop.

"I was aware that I had enough gas for 88 laps," he said. "But I was concerned about finishing so I turned the boost down."

Two of the finishers were Canadians, John Cannon of Montreal in sixth place and John Cordts of Huntsville, Ont., in ninth place.

In France, Henri Pescarolo and Gerard Larrousse of France drove their Matra Simca to victory Sunday in the 24 Hours of Le Mans endurance race, holding the lead for the final seven hours after two front-running Ferraris were eliminated by mechanical problems.

Arturo Merzario of Italy and Carlos Pace of Brazil finished second in a Ferrari and Frenchmen Jean Pierre Jabouille and Jean Pierre Jassaud were third in another Matra Simca.

Bobby Unser of the U.S. drove his Eagle Offenhauser from the pole position to victory Sunday in the Rex Mays Memorial 150 race for Indianapolis type cars in Milwaukee.

And in College Station, Texas, Richard Petty broke away from a neck-and-neck duel with Buddy Baker on the 214th lap Sunday and won the Alamo 500 stock car race at Texas World Speedway.

Oak Bay Student Takes Bike Title

Quillevere hung on to beat brothers Patrick Peron, who finished second, and Michel Peron, who was third, both from Cedar Hill Junior High School, in the 17-mile race on Happy Valley Road circuit.

The event, sponsored by Victoria Wheelers bicycle club, was a final, with the field reduced to nine riders after two previously-run heats.

Four riders, although not injured, were eliminated in a crash on the first lap and another rider later pulled out.

A KISS was Mary Wills' way of showing appreciation after rolling in downhill, 30-foot putt for birdie on 15th hole in Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament Sunday at Sutton, Mass. Finishing with six birdies on last nine holes, Miss Wills scored three-under-par 70 and 72-hole total of 288 to claim first tournament victory since 1970. Betty Burfeindt finished one stroke behind while Kathy Whitworth was third with 291. Janie Blalock and Donna Caponi Young tied for fourth with 292 totals.

Cec, You Can Say, Is Back

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Cec Ferguson has a perfect batting average in the City Amateur golf tournament—he's one-for-one, or 1.000 per cent—but he couldn't get into a softball game Sunday night because of an oversight.

Arriving late at Central Park, Ferguson didn't qualify for a Stuffy McGinnis Men's League game because Labatts' manager neglected to include his catcher's name on the eligibility lineup.

The victory makes it an impressive comeback to golf. The former city junior champion never hit a competitive stroke at all last year and virtually ignored the game for almost three years.

He started playing again "just after Christmas" and, in order to qualify for district events, took out membership at the nine-hole Gregarah club.

Surprisingly, this was the first time Ferguson had entered the City Amateur.

"Don't ask me why," said Cec, who celebrated his 23rd birthday last month. "I just never did get around to entering it until this year."

The co-leader after the first round at Colwood the previous Sunday, Ferguson pulled away from all challengers with a fine, back-nine run at Gorge Vale.

Getting a big lift from a birdie on the ninth, Ferguson toured the back nine in three-under 32. He scored an eagle three on the par-five 11th, birdies on the 13th and 15th, a bogey on the 14th and five pars.

The birdie on the ninth set him off.

"It was the first birdie I had in 27 holes, and the putts started to roll in after that," he said.

His drives pointed the way as he hit 15 of the 18 greens in regulation figures. All his tee shots were straight and long. On the 444-yard 11th, he hit a booming tee shot and went into the green with a nine iron. The ball wound up 12 feet from the cup and Ferguson sank it for his eagle.

The closing charge enabled him to pull away from Mick and Marty Richards, who shared the first-round lead with Ferguson. Mick finished with a 74 on his home course and Richards, the Glen Meadows club champ, came in with a 75 to take third place with a 149 total.

Defending champion Bob Hunt rebounded strongly from his opening-round 79 to also score a 71 and finish in a tie for fourth place with Cedar Hill's Gord Rands.

Rod Turner completed a "good day" for the softball set. The one-time pitcher, now retired, captured the Matson Trophy, emblematic of the city handicap championship.

A 16-handicapper in golf, Turner scored rounds of 87 and 81 to finish with a net 136. He finished three strokes ahead of Ferguson and five ahead of Glen Meadows' John Russell.

Seven players finished in a group at 142.

GORGE PAIR TIES FOR TOP

Shirley Naysmith and Peg Matthews, both of Gorge Vale, each scored a 75 to tie for low gross honors Sunday in the eighth annual women's field day at Cedar Hill Golf Club.

Ruby Niemeyer of Glen Meadows finished third with a 79.

... And Weiskopf Is Hot

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Nicklaus will be the favorite in this week's United States Open, but the hottest golfer en route to Oakmont Country Club today for the tournament has to be Tom Weiskopf.

The 30-year-old Weiskopf won the $150,000 Philadelphia tournament Sunday with a 14-underpar 274 for his third triumph on the pro tour in the last four he's played. The $30,045 first prize raised his earnings to $151,867 for the year, and moved him ahead of Lee Trevino into third place on the money list.

Here's an idea of the kind of golfer the 6-foot-3 Weiskopf is playing.

He has registered 17 straight rounds at par or less —four in the Philadelphia event at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club. He shot 67-71-65-71 over the 6,708-yard, par-72 course and won by four strokes over upstart Jim Barber of Clearwater, Fla.

The 24-year-old Barber with a tie for 24th as his best showing previously in 10 tournaments, shot 65-67-76-70 for a 10-under-par 278.

Young Johnny Miller with a final-round 69 and Forest Fezler, another of the new breed in golf, with a finishing 72, each wound up at nine-under-par 274 for his third

Nicklaus, the top money winner and a four-time victor on the tour this year, rallied from 10 strokes back at the start of the last round to shoot a five-under-par 67 to finish at 280, six strokes off the pace.

Ben Kern of Toronto had rounds of 70-72-71-72—285 to pick up $976, while George Knudson of Toronto had a 288 total from scores of 69-71-75-73 to earn $511.

Weiskopf continued his new policy of positive thinking at Whitemarsh. He said Friday when he was six strokes back of the leader, "I'm not out of it," and Saturday fired a seven-under-par 65 to move in front by three.

"I had a lot of confidence Sunday," said Weiskopf after his comparatively easy triumph. "I was driving out to the course with my wife and I said—They're just not going to beat me. I can't shoot over par today. That may sound cocky, but it was how I felt."

Weiskopf said his goal at Whitemarsh was to win for the second straight week—he won a week ago at Charlotte.

"Now I've set another goal," said the former Ohio State golfer, "I want to win the U.S. Open. I'll have to drive a little bit better, but my irons and my putting are fine. I have a chance."

Practice Helps But Peek Doesn't

TORONTO (CP) — Golfer Rafe Botts has two main rules he follows on the professional tour—practise hard and never look to see what the other fellow is doing.

Botts stuck to the first rule, forgot the second one, but still survived to win the Ontario Open golf championship Sunday at the Islington Golf Club.

The 36-year-old from Los Angeles, veteran of 12 years in North American pro tournament golf, won by three strokes over John Jacobs of San Diego. He shot a final-round 71 on the par-70 Islington layout for a three-round total of 211.

"My putting was as good today as it was bad yesterday," said Botts after he collected the $3,000 winner's cheque in the $16,000 tournament.

His peek at the scoreboard at that point showed him leading by seven strokes after he scored consecutive birdies on the 10th, 11th and 12th holes.

"I just lit up with glee and then I just psychologically eased up. It was the first time in the tournament that I let up."

Easing up meant he took a bogey on the 14th and a triple-bogey six on the 15th, leaving him one over par for the day and the tournament.

But by the time Botts got past the 15th, there was no one close enough to catch him as he parred the last three holes.

VICTORIA PAIR FALLS ON 15TH MATCH POINT

But it was a day of heartbreak for young Wendy Barlow and a team of Victoria "oldsters."

Bradshaw, 15, defeated Jeff Pantages of Trail 6-1, 6-3, in the final of the under-18 event but 13-year-old Wendy found the going a bit tough in that age group, going down 6-2, 6-2 to 16-year-old Pat Morran of Vancouver in the final.

Blaise Zekely of Trail came back twice to overcome Victoria veteran John Nichol 7-6, 3-6, 7-5 in the men's singles final.

Ruth Trelawny of Victoria was edged 7-6, 6-4 by Irene Will of Nakusp in the women's singles final and Mrs. Trelawny and Felicity Graham lost a 2-6, 7-6, 6-4 women's doubles final to Gisele LaJoie and Muriel Taggart of Coquitlam.

But the most incredible final was in the men's doubles where Vancouver Island champions Tony Simnett and Ivor Goodmanson survived 14 match points before going down 6-2, 6-7, 7-6 to Gordon Betcher and Bruce Wilson of Coquitlam.

Blues Take Playoff Title By Blanking Gorge Squad

VANCOUVER — League champions New Westminster Blues blanked Victoria Gorge Molsons 2-0 Sunday to win the Pacific Coast Soccer League playoff title.

Both teams were let down by poor shooting in the first half, particularly Blues who dominated play in the early minutes.

The first goal came at the 37-minute mark when John Connor made a great run down the wing, evaded three Gorge defenders and crossed to Peter Nolan, who beat goalkeeper Graham Lee with a hard shot.

But for some fine work on defence by Doug Marshall, who saved one shot right on the line, and Mark Robb, who marked the dangerous Connor effectively, Gorge would have been down more than 1-0 at half time.

Molsons came back strongly in the second half and kept the ball in the Blues' half for almost 20 minutes.

Dan Henry hit a post with one shot and fired another just over the crossbar. The rest of the Gorge scoring attempts were handled competently by goalkeeper Robin Davies, who recorded his 15th shutout of the season.

The league champions then went on the defensive for the last 15 minutes and had only one more scoring chance, which was foiled when Lee made one of the best saves seen in the Coast League all season.

Ron McDonald caught Lee going the wrong way and fired a hard drive from 10 feet — only to see the goalkeeper turn and drive across the goalmouth and pluck the ball out of the air.

Jim Irvine of Victoria West-United, which finished second in the league, was chosen most-valuable player in the Coast League and was one of four Victorians named to the league all-star team.

Joining him were teammates Ken Ross and Dan Lomas and George Hyne of Gorge.

There was a tie in voting for the forwards, so 12 all-stars were named.

The rest of the squad includes goalkeeper Greg Weber of University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, Gerry Heany, Sandy Beveridge, Ron McDonald, John Connors and scoring champion Gary Thompson, all of Blues, Sergio Zanatta of Paul's Canadians and Chris Bennett of North Shore United.

Evie Third In Masters

KITCHENER, Ont. — Evie Weinberger of Victoria finished third in the women's division of the Canadian Masters fivepin bowling championships Saturday.

Ebba Anderson of Edmonton defeated Jenny Irving of Saskatoon in the match-play final to win the women's event and pick up $350.

Mrs. Weinberger was second with 2,120 in the eight-game qualifying round, which was led by Mrs. Irving with 2,146. Betty Lou Childs of Dorchester, Ont. was third in qualifiers with 1,935 while Mrs. Anderson had only 1,654 points and placed last.

Ray Walz of Vancouver was third.

Gorman led the men's qualifiers with 2,347, Walz was second with 2,145, Larry Ellert of Calgary was third with 1,802 and Brown was fourth with 1,762.

The bowlers reached the national finals by heading masters standings in a series of provincial tournaments.

O'Dell Wins Another

That was the important action Saturday night as O'Dell recorded his second straight main event victory at Western Speedway before 2,975 fans.

O'Dell, responding to opportunity, took the lead on the 23rd lap of the 35-lap super-stock race, then breezed to a comfortable victory when Forsyth encountered motor problems.

Forsyth appeared ready to make a serious bid for the lead about the 28th lap when his car suddenly experienced mechanical difficulties.

Forsyth, the drivers' points leader, finished third behind O'Dell and second-place finisher Roy Haslam.

Vic Bing and Chris Van de Water set the early pace and held off pursers until O'Dell finally pulled ahead on the 23rd lap.

Wayne Sidorko, with an assist from officials and a leaky gas tank, won the 15-lap claimers' man event. Trophy Dash-winner George Doucette appeared to have the race wrapped up but was flagged to the sidelines on the 10th lap when his gas tank sprung a leak.

Defeat, Victory In Derek's Day

Pitcher Derek Drinkwater was a loser and a winner Sunday.

Drinkwater picked up the pitching loss when Greaves Movers went under 2-1 to Gorge Hotel in a Victoria Senior Baseball League game at Lambrick Park that was continued after being called because of darkness May 21.

Terry Tweedy hit a two-out single to score Russ Holmes in the ninth inning. The game had been called at 1-1 after seven innings.

Drinkwater came back strongly for a triumph in the scheduled meeting between the clubs, striking out 11 batters, walking eight and hurling a three-hitter as Greaves edged Gorge this time, again 2-1 and again in nine innings.

In Sunday's other game, winning pitcher Tom Holmes, who tossed a five-hitter, also starred with the bat, hitting a double and single to spark a seven-run third inning as Al's Home Service cruised to a 7-0 win over second-place Farmer Construction.

Victory lifted Al's out of the basement and into a third-place tie with Greaves.

England in Sight Of Test Triumph

When play ended Saturday night New Zealand, which needed 479 to win, were 56 for two—and the men out included their free-scoring opening batsman Glenn Turner.

Vic West Trio Captures Cup

Victoria West's combination of Jim McGregor, John Wright and Paul Jenkins are the new holders of the Greater Victoria Lawn Bowling Association's Corby-Wiser Cup.

They topped the 14-team, men's triples competition at Vic West by defeating Burnside's Colin Fleck, Jim Allan and Alex Donald in the final.

MORRIS WINS CRITERIUM

Morris covered the 26.4-mile course in one hour, one minute and 34 seconds to beat Bill Wild of Port Moody and third-place George Streadwick of Vancouver.

SOCCER PRIDE SAVED

MOSCOW (Reuter) — England, which lost 2-0 to Poland last week, salvaged its soccer pride Sunday with a 2-1 victory over the Soviet Union in an exhibition game before 85,000 fans.

The winners opened scoring in the 11th minute on a goal by Martin Chivers. The second was deflected in by a Russian in the 55th minute.

PLAYWRIGHT INGE GASSES HIMSELF

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — William Inge, 60, one of America's leading modern playwrights, who sank deep in depression in recent years over the paralysis of his talents, shut himself in a garage Sunday and inhaled automobile exhaust until he died.

Police classified the death as a suicide.

Inge's works included Come Back Little Sheba, Picnic, which won the Pulitzer Prize and New York Drama Critics award, the movie Splendor in the Grass, for which he won an academy award in 1962, Bus Stop and Dark at the Top of the Stairs.

Acquaintances said that during the past 10 years, Inge had become increasingly morose over commercial or dramatic failures, a series of personal problems and the feeling that he "no longer had anything to say."

His body was found behind the wheel of his car in the garage at his home overlooking the Sunset Strip by his sister, Helene Connell, who had lived with him for the past two years.

Police said that on his living room table when Inge died was an envelope from a New York publisher containing the manuscript to a novel, The Boy from the Circus. Inge had not bothered to open the envelope before he took his life, detectives said.

The manuscript was accompanied by a letter of rejection.

The end came only five days after Inge left the psychiatric section at UCLA Medical Centre, where he was hospitalized June 2 after taking an overdose of sleeping pills, secobarbitol. He signed out on his own responsibility.

"He was discouraged about not having anything more to say," Mrs. Connell said. "But it wasn't only that. He knew he was more discouraged than he had a reason to be. It was the depression itself that he was fighting."

Inge was born in 1913 in Independence, Kan. He taught for a while at a women's college, and in 1943 became drama-music-art critic for the St. Louis Star-Times.

His first try at Broadway was an immediate hit. Come Back Little Sheba in 1950, which won Inge the "most promising playwright of the season" award from the New York drama critics, and made a star of Shirley Booth.

Alger Hiss Sees Chance Watergate Will Clear Him

DETROIT (AP) — Alger Hiss says he hopes the investigation of the Watergate political espionage scandal will bring to light some of the people and tactics he believes were used to smear him as a traitor in the early days of the Cold War.

"I'm hoping for the surfacing of the people who know about political dirty tricks that were used in my case," he said in a telephone interview published Sunday in the Detroit Free Press.

Convicted Watergate conspirator James McCord and others are coming forward, he said.

"They may know some of the people who were involved in my case."

Hiss, 68, was convicted in January, 1950, of perjury on the basis of testimony by the late Whitaker Chambers, a senior editor of Time magazine, who said he was a Soviet agent in the 1930s and received documents from Hiss.

Hiss, a high state department official at the time, always contended that political hysteria generated by the then Congressman Richard Nixon led to his conviction.

HISS
... still hopeful

Nixon was responsible for having Hiss called for extended questioning before the House of Representatives un-American activities committee in 1949, setting up the testimony upon which the perjury conviction was based.

Hiss said tactics like those used by Nixon administration officials probably were used against him to get a conviction.

Referring to a secret document alleged to have been copied by him on his typewriter and passed on to the Soviet Union, Hiss said:

"When I was sentenced I made the statement that some day we would know how forgery by typewriter was carried out."

Convicted Watergate conspirator Howard Hunt has admitted he forged a cable that implicated President Kennedy in the assassination of South Vietnamese President Diem, Hiss noted.

Hiss also said his phone had been tapped for years before his trial and that his lawyers' phones were tapped during his trial. The government refused to make the tapped information available, Hiss said.

Hiss said the American Civil Liberties Union now is trying to obtain a release on all information in his case.

SMALLWOOD RAVES OVER CUBA VISIT

WOLFVILLE, N.S.—Joseph Smallwood, former premier of Newfoundland, says he is an unabashed admirer of what Communist regimes have achieved in China and Cuba and would have been a Communist had he lived in those countries in the pre-revolutionary period.

Just returned from a seven-day stay to Cuba where he met briefly with Premier Fidel Castro, Smallwood bubbled with enthusiasm as he told the annual banquet of the Annapolis Valley Affiliated Boards of Trade Saturday it would be "thrilling" if Canadians could learn Cuba's "almost reckless dedication" to education and the "sheer, undefiled, relentless, joyous love of land" he found there.

TOKYO—Japanese customs officials said they have prohibited import of 20 drawings by the late Pablo Picasso because, they said, the pictures are "obscene."

The banned drawings depict nude men and women. They were to be displayed at an exhibition scheduled for Tokyo's Sogo department store.

PILADELPHIA — A neighbor noticed that teenagers were going in and out of the home of Frances Kelly. Police investigaged and Mrs. Kelly, 90, was arrested for possession of narcotics.

Police said several women had complained Mrs. Kelly was selling drugs. They said the arresting officer had to chase Mrs. Kelly before catching her when she failed in her attempt to climb a wall.

MOOSE JAW—Legislation to limit election expenses must be given top priority by the federal government, David Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, said Friday.

"This parliament will produce it or it will not last as long as it may expect," said the NDP leader whose party holds the balance of power in the commons.

"The prime minister has been promising legislation to reform election financing at least since the 1968 election campaign and he now has an opportunity to carry out his promises.

"Now that it appears this parliament could go on for some time, he has no excuse for his failure to present legislation so that it can be in effect for the next election."

LONDON—Neighbors Patricia Higgins and Jeanette Wheatley were sunbathing on the lawn outside their apartment building when they glanced up and saw a small boy hanging out of a window 50 feet above them.

They grabbed the blanket they were sitting on and held it out just in time to catch 4-year-old Omo Osmond as he slipped from the window.

"Omo was unhurt, and too surprised to cry," said Mrs. Wheatley.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti—Aristotle Onassis and his wife, Jacqueline, visited President Jean-Claude Duvalier at the national palace last week, palace sources said. John F. Kennedy Jr., Mrs. Onassis' son, went along for the visit.

VANCOUVER—Tourists travelling through British Columbia will have no problem buying gas this summer, says R. N. Bubbs, president of the B.C. Petroleum Association.

Bubbs said "rationing of gasoline is not contemplated in B.C. and is not expected to be at all necessary at this time. A canvass of B.C. gasoline refiners indicates that all of them expect to meet the normal and increased demands of the tourist traffic, as well as those of local customers."

NICE, France—Drug-possession charges against Rolling Stones guitarist Keith Richard and actress Anita Pallenberg have been set down for trial Oct. 15, a Nice court announced.

Similar charges against other members of the Rolling Stones pop group were dropped last month

'They Ain't As Mean Now'

JACKSON, Miss (UPI) — Fayette Mayor Charles Evers, reviewing improvements in Mississippi race relations since the slaying of his brother 10 years ago, said Sunday "white folks ain't quite as mean as they used to be."

Evers spoke to a gathering at the New Hope Baptist Church, where the state NAACP held memorial services for Medgar Evers. Evers was state field director of the NAACP when he was shot down in the driveway of his Jackson home June 12, 1963, by a sniper.

"Mississippi is going ahead — in the next few years it is going to be the greatest state in the world," Evers said.

Many of the 200 persons in the church cried softly as Evers spoke from the pulpit. Before them was a large portrait of Medgar, flanked with orange and white arrangements of gladioli.

Evers spoke not to the congregation so much as to his late brother.

Evers pointed to the success of the voting rights struggle in Mississippi. Before Medgar's death "we were scared to register to vote in this state," he said, "now there are over 250,000 blacks registered.

Mississippi, he said, "now has the third highest number of elected black officials in the country, behind New York and Ohio."

Speaking to his brother again, Evers added "and there ain't a school in this state you did not help to get blacks in."

Gas Deal Cuts N-Threat

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The chief architect of a $10 billion natural gas deal with the Soviet Union says such trade will reduce the chance of a nuclear war.

Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman of the board of Occidental Petroleum Co., says "deals of this kind can go a long way toward bringing peace."

Hammer was here Saturday to accept an award for his contributions to the art world and to participate in a fund raising ball.

"I think with the deal we have made an historic breakthrough. It is a sign the Russians are looking to us for expanded trade," Hammer told newsmen.

He said he thinks the "danger of atomic war is greatly removed" by such transactions between the east and west.

JOHN CREASEY DIES

SALISBURY, England (AP) — Novelist John Creasey, 64, the one-man thriller-factory who progressed from hundreds of rejection slips to hundreds of successful books, died Saturday.

In 40 years he wrote 560 books, most of them crime thrillers, mystery stories and other action-packed adventures.

His novels were estimated to have sold 60 million copies and were translated into 23 languages.

Creasey realized that publishers would take only one or two titles a year from any one author. So he created a string of pen-names for himself, such as Anthony Morton, Michael Halliday, Norman Deanne, J. J. Marric, Gordon Ashe, Jeremy York and Peter Manton.

The author died three weeks after his fourth marriage. His bride was Diana Farrell, who came to nurse him after a heart attack last October.

'Air Disaster' Screaming Success

KAMLOOPS (CP)—More than 130 high school students simulated critically injured victims of an air disaster here Saturday to test emergency facilities and services.

"It went better than expected," said Dr. Miro Spruss, chairman of the hospital's disaster committee. "A total of 23 doctors out of a possible 100 answered the emergency call." Considering they weren't told in advance and it was a Saturday afternoon, it went quite well.

The exercise started at 3 p.m. and the students, made up with realistic injuries, groaned and screamed on the ground around three old Mitchell bombers.

"First to arrive at the disaster scene was the airport fire department at 3:01," said civil defence spokesman Gerry Hutchinson. "The city RCMP got here at 3:06, the first municipal fire turck got here at 3:09 and the first ambulance arrived at 3:10."

★

FERNIE (CP)—Peter Zeith of Sparwood put his Kaiser Resources mine rescue team through the paces to capture first place in the East Kootenay mine rescue competition here Saturday. The Kaiser team will represent the East Kootenay district in the provincial mine rescue championships next Saturday at Kamloops.

★

PEACHLAND (CP)—A resolution expressing sympathy with non-union California lettuce and grape workers was adopted at the New Democratic party provincial council's bimonthly meeting here Saturday where Roland Cachionni of Kelowna was re-elected by acclamation to his third one-year term as president of the party's Okanagan Boundary constituency association.

★

VANCOUVER (CP)—Marjorie Cantryn, executive director of the Vancouver Indian Friendship Centre and president of the provincial association of centres, announced Sunday that human resources Minister Norm Levi has promised a grant of $15,000 to 11 native friendship centres.

★

NARAMATA (CP)—A resolution aimed at preventing social workers from pressuring foster parents to adopt their charges was passed at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Federation of Foster Parents association here Sunday. The resolution asks that foster children in permanent foster home not be removed without the full consent of the foster parents.

Traffic Claims Eleven

By The Canadian Press

At least 11 persons died accidentally in British Columbia during the weekend, all in traffic accidents.

Three men were killed in a three-car collision Sunday 12 miles south of Lytton.

A man and woman were killed Sunday in Vancouver when a sports car collided with a bus.

On Cortes Island, a man believed to be from the Squirrel Cove reserve was killed Sunday when a pickup truck hit a tree and overturned.

Pot Bronchitis Strikes Youths

VANCOUVER (CP) — An increasing number of university students are reporting to doctors with symptoms that simulate tuberculosis but in fact are related to "pot bronchitis."

So says Dr. Thomas Petty, head of the division of pulmonary disease at the University of Colorado school of medicine.

He was in Vancouver to address the 1973 National Congress of Physiotherapists.

In a later interview, Petty explained that marijuana "is actually a bronchodilator (dilates the airways) but is also tremendously irritating to the lungs and surrounding areas.

"I now see college kids all the time that come in referred for possible tuberculosis because of their bad cough.

"What they have is pot bronchitis. The technique of smoking pot is to take a big drag and hold it as long as you can and pot is irritating. Kids who smoke two or three a day get a pretty active bronchitis."

The problem is just one to be added to the growing dilemma in both Canada and the U.S. of respiratory diseases such as emphysema (a morbid swelling or inflation due to the presence of air in the lungs), bronchitis (inflammation of the bronchial tubes) and asthma.

"In the U.S.," said Petty, "more than 40 million people now suffer with emphysema while four million have asthma."

He stressed however, that many sufferers have a family history of such disorders "and seem to be predisposed to the conditions."

He also stressed that cigarette smoking is probably the biggest associated factor contributing to the worsening of such illnesses.

Nightclub Blaze

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Four persons were injured Sunday as fire destroyed Atlantic City's most famous night spot, the 500 Club. A fire department spokesman said the early afternoon blaze took 2½ hours to bring under control.

CHANGES ON WAY IN FAMILY LAWS

NARAMATA (CP) — Overdue changes in human resources legislation in British Columbia, including a comprehensive Family and Child Act which integrates with public health, mental health probation and other services can be expected by 1975, Iris Priddy, deputy supervisor of provincial child welfare, said here Sunday.

Mrs. Priddy, who substituted for minister Norm Levi has expressed concern that only the wishes of the parents, and not those of the children, are considered in child custody cases.

She said he has also urged development of intensive treatment teams who would treat problem children within the school situation.

Ray Kane of Duncan, retiring president of the association, said: "Preventive measures in family relationships are going to cost a lot of money in the years ahead but it is a better approach than paying the high cost of curing that bad situation."

WOBBLIES SEEK BAN ON SCABS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Wobblies want provincial labor laws amended to outlaw scabbing, to permit in-plant organizing, and to give wide publicity to workers' rights and better enforcement of employers' duties.

The proposals are contained in a brief submitted to Labor Minister Bill King.

The brief was released simultaneously to the press by the Vancouver general membership branch Canadian administration of the Industrial Workers of the World, part of IWW founded in 1905 and better known as The Wobblies.

Rainbow Stops The Show

Maritime flavor was in the forefront when about 5,000 Greater Victoria residents attended this year's Armed Forces Day in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt Saturday. day.

Star of this year's show, however, was the submarine HMCS Rainbow, at right. Queues lined up all afternoon to see what life in an underwater vessel is like. They were still lining up when Armed Forces Day came to an end for another year.

Municipal Leaders Cheer Chance to Control Grants

Spokesmen for Greater Victoria municipalities today welcomed a weekend statement by federal Environment Minister Jack Davis that the federal government may turn over the administration of Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiative programs to municipalities.

The unanimous view is that supervision at the local level is long overdue, to provide a better system of grant allocation and ensure municipalities aren't left "holding the baby" when federal funding dries up.

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen, the most vocal critic of the present situation, was not available for comment today, but Ald. Bill Tindall said the city strongly favors some form of local control.

Tindall said Victoria's main complaint has been that programs are set up without reference to an over-all framework of community needs, funded for a couple of years and then abandoned by Ottawa "so that the responsibility falls squarely on the shoulders of the municipality to carry them on."

There won't be any "blood bath" as a result of municipalities exercising their proposed new powers and cutting back drastically on useful programs, Tindall said. But some adjustments would have to be made to suit municipalities' pocketbooks.

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford said she can't believe there will be no strings attached to the granting of municipal control, but in any case she considers Davis' announcement encouraging.

"We have been asking for this power in order to avoid duplication, overlapping and the expenditure of tax money on programs which we might well feel are are not at all suitable," she said.

Agreement Put Foot in Door

Elford noted that Greater Victoria municipalities achieved a small improvement last year, with agreement from Canada Manpower and the provincial department of municipal affairs that there should be a local representative on the selection committee for OFY and LIP programs.

Garth Homer, executive director of the Community Council, acted in that capacity but was not as influential as the municipalities would have liked because the "final decisions were still made in Vancouver," the mayor added.

Ald. Les Passmore, deputy mayor of Saanich, recalled that he has had some "pretty strong opinions" on the administration of the programs and expressed willingness to serve as an adjudicator of grant applications.

He made it clear, too, that if he'd had a say in things there would have been no money forthcoming for the group of young men who were recently helped with federal cash to "communicate with whales."

Passmore added, however: "We do need a fish ladder from Colquitz Creek to Beaver Lake and if they'd come forward with a proposal like that I'd say O.K."

Davis said at a Vancouver Liberal meeting he considers project screening, selection and follow-up should be "entirely a municipal responsibility" and the federal government is considering such a move.

Asked if OFY and LIP would be merged into a year-round "opportunities for people" program, as suggested earlier by State Secretary Hugh Faulkner, Davis replied: "I would argue strongly for that."

Curtis Seeks Shared Landlord-Tenant Board

Cost of a landlord-tenant advisory bureau in Greater Victoria should be borne by all municipalities working through a single bureau, Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich has told the Community Council.

Setting up a separate bureau in Saanich as suggested last week by Ald. Alan Newberry "would be very expensive for Saanich", Curtis said.

"Staff studies into the cost are under way but I would estimate that we could be talking of a figure between $7,000 to $12,000 annually, perhaps more in terms of full time staffing," the mayor said in a weekend letter to Community Council chairman B. A. Tobin.

For the past year the city of Victoria has underwritten the Community Council's operation of a bureau, which has performed services in other municipalities on a free basis.

Legislation has been passed to make it mandatory for municipalities to provide landlord-tenant advisory services and the Community Council has offered to do this in Greater Victoria.

At a Saanich council meeting last week, Newberry said it might be less costly in the long run for Saanich to provide its own advisory service.

"I cannot accept his particular point of view and I am puzzled as to his reasons for taking such a strong position on this point," Curtis said.

The "equitable basis" for Saanich to share costs of a Greater Victoria bureau would be other than the usual intermunicipal cost-sharing formula, he said.

The mayor said the usual formula would not serve because Saanich has fewer tenants than Victoria "and must therefore have fewer complaints."

Quick Call Keeps Home From Ruin

An Oak Bay fire department spokesman said today a fire broke out in the kitchen of a home at 2112 Granite Road at 4:30 p.m. while Dierdre Johnson, 16, was alone in the house.

The girl received second degree burns to her hands and face, but on her way out of the house stopped long enough to phone the fire department.

Miss Johnson is in fair condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. The fire was contained to the kitchen.

"She did well to get that call through before panicking and running out of the house," a fire department spokesman said today.

"Even an adult would have to think quick to do that. The house would have gone up if it had been left much longer. She did a really good job."

Firemen estimate damage to property and contents at $4,000.

Purple, White and Blue Tells the Mailing Story

Victoria deadlines for next-day delivery locally, regionally and nationally (as far east as Winnipeg) are spelled out on the stripes themselves instead of being listed on a card fixed to the front of the box.

Post office spokesman Ken Stofer said there were complaints that the cards were hard to read because of "fine print" and the fact that sunshine faded the ink.

There will be 113 of the new style boxes on arterial streets of Victoria 21 of which were placed Sunday.

The remaining 255 residential mailboxes will also have tops painted white to make them more conspicuous and consistent with the downtown boxes, as soon as contractors can get to them.

A blue band on arterial boxes carries a 10:30 a.m. deadline for next-day assured delivery east to Winnipeg; the white band indicates 3 p.m. for regional delivery the following day (Vancouver Island and the Fraser Valley); and the purple band means 5:30 p.m. deadline for local delivery next day in Greater Victoria up to Sidney.

The latter deadline is declared for the first time, Stofer said.

A similar system operates across Canada, but local box-clearing deadlines vary according to local conditions. Mail travelling west-to-east moves against time zones and therefore next-day delivery cannot be assured at all points.

Resort Beauty Protected in Sale

Gerry Hill, 79, owner of the long-established Yellow Point Lodge near Nanaimo is selling out to a recording company, based in Vancouver and Toronto.

In selling, however, the man who carved the resort out of timber and rock, has laid down stringent regulations to guard against the land being subdivided or logged for timber.

The value of the land has been assessed at $1.2 million but Hill said today he had sold for less than that to Timbre Sound Industries Ltd.

He said he was unable to give the selling price:

"I promised I wouldn't say anything until their tax people have been able to look at the thing," he said.

"I know people won't believe me," he added, "but I've had six offers over the past three years, some for much more money. But it was my restrictions that stopped the sale."

Hill said he has a five-year contract in which the company agrees not to subdivide or to cut any tree on the choice waterfront property without Hill's permission.

"Some of the trees here," he said, "have six-foot boles and the timber here would be worth an awful lot of money. I wanted to protect the natural environment for all time. My contract, plus regional and provisional controls will do this."

HILL
... laid down rules

Timbre Sound Industries, he said, would take over the operation of the lodge when he bows out Oct. 15.

The main idea of buying the property, he said, was to build a studio.

Vancouver architect Gerald Hamilton will design the studio, to be built in a clearing about 400 feet away from the existing log lodge.

"Their main business," Hill said, "is 24-track computerized spectacular recordings. They wanted a natural place to which they could bring their artists — where they wouldn't be bothered with autograph hunters.

"They'll have some big names here and this will be the only such studio between here and Los Angeles and west of Toronto. They'll only have to cut down one tree to build the studio."

TSI vice-president Arnold Smith of Vancouver confirmed Hill's assertion that Yellow Point will remain unspoiled.

"All we have to do is remove one tree to build our recording studio," he said.

CHILDREN'S FARMYARD TO OPEN SATURDAY

Garry Oak Farm, a children's farmyard in Beacon Hill Park, will be officially opened Saturday at 1 p.m. by Ald. Malcolm Anderson.

The farm will be home to a Shetland pony named Samba, two calves, three piglets, a ewe and two lambs, three young goats, deer, plus rabbits and guinea pigs, ducks and geese.

The farmyard will take up 32,000 square feet in the animal enclosure area of the park, and the large deer enclosure will take another 10,000 square feet.

Part of the deer shelter will be used as a security area to house the animals overnight.

The farmyard will be open from June to September four hours a day, with 1 to 5 p.m. the hours tentatively set.

RCAF Women's Division Marks 32nd Anniversary

TORONTO (CP) — All the old jokes, the old friendships, were new again at the weekend for 700 former WDs attending a reunion of RCAF WD at York University.

About 17,000 women served as WDs.

Former Sgt. Allison Craig of Toronto, in charge of it all, said:

"There was a very special feeling among service girls. Even when your're strangers, if you were WDs, you're family.

"That band of friendship, of kinship, has lasted all these 30 years."

Mrs. Craig spent most of her service years in Ottawa at the chief casualties office.

"The last reunion was in 1966, for our 25th anniversary. We're getting older and I thought, if we wait another 10 years for a reunion on the 35th, we'll get fewer and fewer."

The women were shown the original recruiting film, We Serve that Men May Fly. They were given small RCAF flags. But there were no speeches, nothing heavy. The keynote appeared to be laughter.

She said that in that pre-women's lib atmosphere, she left a party early one evening, because her presence was obviously inhibiting the story telling.

The next day several of the men apologized to her, but not one aging civilian veteran who had been a regimental sergeant major.

Miss Ball became squadron officer Ball. She spent an interesting time in the national library in Aberystwyth, Wales, working on a history of the RCAF, and she finished at Allerton Park, in England.

"I was in Canada when war broke out, so I joined up, hoping they'd post me overseas, which they didn't do until December, 1946."

"Flight Sgt. Wright was putting us through our paces and I think he'd been told he must moderate his parade-square language with us.

"He said 'AW2 so and so, if you're as tired as you look, you'd better go lie down in your bunk in the barrack block.'

And, to our horror, she came smartly to attention and marched off the square."

When they got back to barracks, breathless with apprehension, there she was, resting peacefully.

"I was far more tired than I looked, so I thought I'd better obey his orders."

Nest-Building With Wool

elizabeth forbes

Friends of mine in Penticton, whom I visited recently, give a big assist at this season of the year, to the birds that make nests in their tree-shaded garden.

They hang bits of wool on a revolving clothesline at the edge of their backyard patio. Then they sit back and watch the birds carry it away.

So great is the demand they must renew the supply each day. They have also discovered that white wool is the favorite. Indeed, the birds almost completely ignore bright or garish colors.

That they use the wool with dried grasses and twigs in making their nests is an undisputed fact. My friends have a last year's effort, blown out of the apricot tree in an early spring storm. Carefully woven into it are teazled bit of wool from the lot set out in 1972.

The nest itself is an amazing bit of work. Soft and yet strong to the touch. Rough on the outside and smooth as silk on the inside.

Twigs, grasses and the wool are all interwoven in such a way that they blend together into a complete whole.

That the birds will go to tremendous effort to get the wool is substantiated by a story my friends tell of a bird that somehow got one bit of wood it wanted, entangled over the clothesline wire.

The bird worked for the best part of a morning to release that wool.

That story reminded me of a morning awhile back when I watched a robin outside my apartment window, struggle with a piece of string at least two feet long.

The bird was trying to get it up into a tree where, I'm sure, there was a nest in the making.

It would get one end of the string in its beak, make a cunning leap and a hop, then fly straight up to a limb of the tree, where it dropped the end of the string and fluttered back to the ground.

After a short rest, the other end was picked up and dropped over the branch.

Next move was to try and get the string to the nest. Time after time the robin was stymied by smaller branches.

Each time the bird would flutter back to the ground with the string in its beak and start all over again.

Eventually, after many tries, the two ends were looped over the proper branch. Then the robin picked up one end, flew deep into the tree . . . and gradually, bit by bit, that string disappeared. The truth . . . so help me!

While we are on the subject of birds and I'm in the mood for a bit of whimsy, let me ask you—who or what was responsible for that refreshing day of rain last week?

The weather man? Low pressures? Bob Fortune? Uh . . . uh! You are all wrong!

According to a Victoria friend who has a lovely garden out in the north end of the city, it was the robins.

Day before the welcome moisture (which came on Wednesday) and when the sky was blue, the sun shining and no hint of rain, there was a robin on the topmost branch of her apple tree, crying out its rain call.

Over and over again, as she worked amongst her roses, that robin repeated its call. Eventually other robins joined in and the garden echoed to the cry.

"I knew it was going to rain," she says, "I told my next door neighbor it would rain . . . and she laughed at me!"

In the morning, when the rains came, every shrub and tree in the garden was alive with birds, all twittering and singing.

Again the robins were crying out but in a completely different rhythm to the rain call.

Now it was a song of thanksgiving, this bird lover said. And she could easily believe they were shouting "praise be . . . praise be!"

Female Bullfighter Busy Outside Ring

MADRID (Reuter) — Women have broken into many male occupations in the last few years, but 24-year-old Angela Hernandez is having an unusually tough struggle to achieve her ambition: She wants to be a bullfighter.

Technically she already is, since she recently became a member of the official Spanish Bullfighters Association.

But before she can take part in a fight, Angela has to overcome fierce opposition in traditional bullfighting circles.

She also faces a law passed in 1908 which forbids women to fight bulls except on horseback.

Miss Hernandez has already made her name as an artist in the "rejoneo," as the horseback style of bullfighting is known in Spain. She ras even fought and killed bulls in the better-known style, where the matador confronts the bull on foot, but never in public.

Miss Hernandez, who comes from the eastern Spanish city of Alicante, says she gave up playing with dolls at age 9 and began playing with a matador's cape instead.

From there she made the long and difficult climb to membership of the bullfighters' association.

She has been gored three times, and had to go through two years of tough legal wrangling before she was granted membership.

If she does break into the tight circle of bullfighters who appear regularly and command big fees, she will not be the first woman to do so.

In the last century, several women have made the grade in Spain and in recent years have often appeared in South American bull rings. But almost always they have been considered novelties rather than artists in their own right.

The legal question of whether Angela can fight is still confused. Jose Briones, the lawyer who has represented her throughout her struggle, says: "Legally, we are right."

But even if the legal problem were cleared up tomorrow, Angela would have difficulty getting her first public fight.

It's Time to Take Heat Off Cook

By HILDA BEASTALL

A few days of warm weather will make us think of easy meals, quick to prepare, yet full of nutrition to take each member of the family through the extra activities that come with summer. Why not keep a special file labelled "warm weather meals"? Into it put ideas and recipes to have for instant use.

One way to have a good meal at suppertime without extra heat from oven cooking is to make up in the morning a favorite casserole dish to enjoy cold for either lunch or supper; at the same time baking a fruit dessert or a batch of wholegrain cookies.

The second way is to choose recipes which can be made in a covered electric frypan, or a covered porcelain-on-steel frypan using your electric, gas or oil range. These are not fried meals using fat, but steamed either with the juices of the ingredients or using additional vegetable juice, gravy or water in small quantities.

Most vegetables cook in 10 minutes if cut into thin strips with a mouli shredder, and the pan lid is kept tightly closed for the cooking period. If you work fast, there is little nutrient loss.

In an average 9 or 10-inch diameter pan, three kinds of vegetables can be cooked in separate mounds at the same time, enough for three or four servings. Use the lowest heat which keeps a gentle simmering action. After 5 minutes cooking, sprinkle on top a half cup of grated cheese and chopped spinach leaves or parsley and chives. Replace lid, and finish cooking for another 5 minutes, still on low heat.

Vegetables cooked in this way are not just a mixture. I serve them separately by the spoonful to each plate, so that each vegetable retains its color and own flavor.

Variations for topping a group of any three vegetables —chopped cooked meat, fish or chicken; chopped raw mushrooms. These last are added for the second half of the total cooking period.

An egg for each serving, broken out from the shell and poached on top until the yolk coats over, rounds out a light supper or a lunch.

In a frypan of any type sandwiches are lightly browned in a little fat on one side only. Make up the sandwiches with fillings of meat, cheese, sardines or soft boiled eggs, spread only one slice with butter, using the remainder of the normal allowance for the pan browning. This prevents too much fat soaking into the fillings.

Remove the sandwiches from the pan with a broad spatula, reversing on the plate so that the browned side is uppermost. Green salad additions to complete these quick meals are served on each plate.

Quick meals are needed in every home at some time. Warm weather is one time when we tend to stay outdoors until the last moment before needing a meal. As usual it is the planning ahead to have ideas and supplies ready for instant action which enables us to turn a quick snack into a nourishing meal.

These ideas are interesting enough and easy enough to encourage young people to forage for their quick meals at home where they have access to good basic foods. With a bit of guidance and plenty of leeway they will come up with mighty tasty warm weather meals.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tues., June 12
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What had been a money misunderstanding with mate, partner can be ironed out — be flexible enough to make concession. Friend who confides "disturbance" deserves sympathy. Keep confidences. Favors you do will be returned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lie low. Do more listening than talking. You have rare opportunity to observe and learn. Contractual obligation will become more of a pleasure, less of a burden. Don't push, rush or insist. Scorpio will play important role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Exciting changes, opportunities for creative expression are on tap. Virgo, Pisces persons play key roles. Young person who was obstinate will have change of heart. Be a gracious "winner." Steer clear of "I told you so's!"

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emotions tend to dominate. Key is to give logic "equal time." Family member has right to be informed. Acting completely on impulse results in loss. Genuine bargain is available for luxury item if you are patient, persistent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Hold off on short journeys. Don't argue with neighbors, relatives. Your judgment may be slightly off centre. Know it and be analytical. Count to 10 before expressing views. Some around you are envious. Ride with the tide.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Guard valuables. Get money's worth. Don't mix sentiment with sound business reasoning. Capricorn shows you the way. Be receptive. Obtain valid hint from Leo message. Give yourself time to make intelligent decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Let go of losing proposition. Some persons have been very good— at making promises. Now you have right to see results. If only more promises are forthcoming, draw line. Avoid throwing "good" money after "bad."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New start in different direction could be constructive. Leo, Aquarius individuals are in picture. Accent is on coming to terms with older family member. Question concerning home, property can be favorably resolved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Follow through on hunch. Don't vacillate. Be practical without burying intuitive intellect. Be quiet within. Know that being alone is not same as being lonely. Take time to gather emotional resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Highlight flexibility. Be receptive to suggestions from Sagittarian. Friends provide tips which can be turned into profit. You are due for pleasant surprises. One in authority tears down to make room for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can take steady steps. Details are taken care of, your obstacles are removed. Path is smoothed and the rest is up to you. Leo and Scorpio persons are involved. Stick to what is familiar. Don't duck basic issues.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Some preconceived notions could get airing. You may change philosophical concepts. Realize this is a sign of life. Cherish your doubts. Give full play to your intellectual curiosity. Cancer person is involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are bright, have sense of humor, tend to be restless, artistic and, at times, have difficulty finishing what you start. You draw to you many born under Sagittarius. This month, June should be your most significant of 1973. You never are satisfied to know something merely happened — you want to know "why" it occurred. Many of your questions are due to be answered.

Less Help Needed

DEAR ABBY: I've been married two months. My husband is 44, and I am 41. For years he lived alone, ate plain meals, and didn't have a very exciting life.

He loves photography, takes good pictures, and wants to become a professional.

In the short time we've been together I have booked him for an exhibit at a good gallery, I got some of his pictures published, and I've set up a future exhibit at a museum. I'm presently working on getting us a free trip to Europe with a group of professional photographers.

I am his wife, agent, cook, mentor, and lover. So tonight I prepared a really jazzy meal with candles and the works. When we sat down, I asked him: "Are you happy?"

Well, I didn't expect Robert Browning's sonnets. A simple "yes" would have sufficed. You can imagine my shock when the dirty dog says: "Well, I'm not too unhappy."

That really turned me off. I mean, I couldn't get excited over him again for the next 100 years.

Please tell me where I went wrong. Maybe if I did nothing like some wives he'd appreciate me more. What now?—Disgusted with Him

DEAR DISGUSTED: A helpmate can do to much to help. He'd probably prefer eating baked beans in the dark with a woman for whom HE put the beans on the table. Give him a chance to see what he can do for himself — and you.

DEAR ABBY: Joe Blow and I were married and had three children. Then Joe Blow and I were divorced. I then married John Doe. Now I learn that John Doe had several wives before he married me — none of whom he bothered to divorce!

Question One: Am I still legally Mrs. Joe Blow? I certainly can't be Mrs. John Doe if he is a bigamist, can I?

Question Two: Is there a central United States bureau or agency where ALL divorces are recorded so a person can find out who is legally divorced?—Who Am I?

DEAR WHO: Answer One: You are still Mrs. Joe Blow — in name only if John Doe is a bigamist. Answer Two: There is no central bureau or agency where all divorces are recorded.

Most Canadians are familiar with the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways, but they don't stop to think that these coast-to-coast lines were formed many, many years ago by linking several smaller railway lines.

The 10-page Brief Summary of Canadian Railway History points out that this history started in 1832 when "The Company of the Proprietors of the Champlain and the St. Lawrence Railroad was incorporated to build a line from a point on the St. Lawrence opposite Montreal to the village of Dorchester, now known as the city of St. John's. It is interesting, that according to the charter, the promoters of this pioneer line considered it only a 'portage' link in the water route to New York. Even later, railway charters contained the right to operate vessels and build canals.

The leaflet devotes considerable space to explaining why Canada adopted the standard guage of 4 feet 8½ inches. Canada's first railway built for this gauge, probably because the American lines directly south of the border already used this width.

The publication also draws attention to an amazing fact. Namely, that recent archaeological research in Italy, has shown that the chariot roads of the ancient Romans were built for vehicles whose wheels were 4 feet 8½ inches apart!

Trip Gives Lift to Seniors

OTTAWA (CP) — "We were saying the other night that none of us had ever tried drugs, so maybe we ought to have a mash (sic) party tonight before it's too late," said vivacious Gertrude Cahill of Summerside, P.E.I.

"Not me. And you don't want to waste your time trying it either," said Elwood Craig of Dawson Creek.

But both agreed they are having "a swinging time" with their 100 companions at a week-long government-sponsored visit to Ottawa.

They are two of 1,000 elderly people given Ottawa visits this summer under a $200,000 grant from the secretary of state's office.

Most are on limited incomes, said Liz McNair, of the Society for the Study of the Heritage of Canada, the non-profit group organizing the tours.

It's costing him and his wife $30 for the week-long visit. They stay in a University of Ottawa residence, take tours through the capital area, have sing-songs and parties in the evenings and "just thoroughly enjoy ourselves."

Mrs. Cahill, 65, is the widow of Charles Cahill, who was playing professional hockey for Boston Bruins in the 1930s when they were married. A widow for more than 20 years, she is a prime example of an active senior citizen.

She is director of the Centennial Senior Citizens of Summerside and has organized a Local Initiative Program L.I.P. project which hired 14 "young people — you know, under 40" — to help set up craft programs for shut-in senior citizens.

She's also director of two choirs and was asked by the Heritage Society to stay an extra week to help as tour leader because of her ability to get a party going. She paid $20 for her visit.

"We have lots of parties," she said in an interview. "That's why I said that about mash — or whatever-you-call-it." What she meant was hashish.

Miss McNair, who works out of the Heritage headquarters in Toronto said:

"There are a lot of programs for youth, but we wanted to offer something for those who already have done so much for this country."

NOT OLDER but better in their own estimation are Elwood Craig, 78, and Gertrude Cahill, 65, who tackled a little necking on Parliament Hill. Both agreed they are having a "swinging time" with their 100 companions in a week-long visit to Ottawa.

Arthritics Need to Adjust For Happy Married Life

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Arthritis causes major sexual problems that may be responsible for many divorces, but sufferers from the disease can be counselled on how to cope, according to a report to the annual medical meeting of the Arthritis Foundation.

"Patients with rheumatoid arthritis have a higher divorce rate than patients with any other chronic disease," said the report by three researchers from the University of Michigan Medical centre.

"Difficulties in sexual functioning may be part of the cause," they said.

"Patients with arthritis must learn to handle sex functions, like homemaking, shopping, holding a job and practically all else in life," they said.

Dr. Marjorie Becker and medical social workers Jan Onder and Donna Lachniet said they set up a sex counselling group for arthritis patients after a number of female patients had asked for such advice.

"One woman patient whose arthritis restricted her hips reported that intercourse had become sheer agony," the study said. "Pain for this patient came after the fact, but the memory of it was strong enough to keep her from wanting to face it again."

A man with an arthritic wife who "inflicts such pain often feels such a heel that he too becomes reluctant to face sex," the report said, resulting in "impotency within the relationship or seeking new sexual partners."

Arthritics, the report advised "should plan their sexual activity in advance. The hours when the woman feels most rested are optimal. Avoid periods of fatigue. Special activities which might precede intercourse, such as climbing stairs, should be considered.

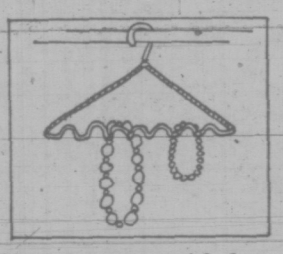
If I was ever called upon to design an apron, I would create one with tremendous pockets. Small pockets really are useless especially on laundry day when clothespins have to be at your fingertips. A pocket supply always runs out long before the wash does. Down with aprons and their pockets. Here is a pincaddy that takes only seconds of your time.

Wash a plastic, gallon-size bleach container and make an oval cutout in the upper section. Paint the container with a high gloss paint and insert plastic flowers into the open mouth. Hang one container on each side of the clothesline and fill with clothespins.

BATIK DYES

Most of the articles written about batik fail to mention the fact that commercial dyes, found at the notions counter, do an excellent job.



Batik dyes are highly concentrated powdered dyes, sold in envelope packets. A little goes a long way. With these dyes, a second ingredient has to be added to set the dyes. Commercial dyes already have this additive. Many professionals find that working with commercial dyes affords more control than the highly concentrated batik dyes.

NECKLACE RACK

I made a necklace holder with a wire coat hanger. With pliers, I bent about eight U-shapes on the bottom wire. I wrapped ribbon on the upper section. I hang necklaces over the loops.

LINEN TRIM

Beautiful bed linens can make a big dent on a limited budget. With less than $3, you can create a luxurious set of linens. Purchase enough yardage of lace or braid to trim two pillowcases and one top sheet. Machine-stitch the lace to the linen, following the stitching of hems on the pillowcases and sheet.

BOTTLE USE

Nicely shaped bottles can be decorated with decoupage, paint or decals. You might also try covering a glass bottle with a thin coating of plaster of paris. When the plaster has dried throughly, sand. Paint a design on the plaster with water color paints. A child's paint set will do wonders. For a glazed pottery look, give bottle several coats of a high gloss varnish.

I make vases with empty jars. I spread glue on the outside of the jars, then sprinkle parakeet gravel over it. When glue is dry I paint the jars.

HEARING PROBLEM

Is your Hearing Problem one of the following?

"Normal" hearing in one ear but little or no hearing in the other — Conversation is heard but not understood —Cannot tolerate an ear-mold in the ear — Have tried hearing aids but could not tolerate background noises.

If any of the above problems are yours you may be able to hear well with a Radioear CROS hearing aid. CROS is being acclaimed as one of the major contributions to better hearing in the past decade.

F.P. ASKS SHARE MOVE

EDMONTON (CP) — F.P. Publications Ltd. and Cygnus Corp. Ltd. have requested permission from the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) to approve a transfer of shares in Community Antenna Television Ltd., a Calgary cable television operation.

The transfer, if approved, would not affect controlling interest in the company.

Under the proposed transfer, the cable company would issue 6,187 common shares to F.P. and 10,313 to Cygnus. F.P. would get another 5,813 and Cygnus would obtain an additional 9,687 shares in a transfer from a stockholder.

The application said that under the proposed capitalization of the company, 40 per cent of the shares would be held by individuals, 25 per cent by Cygnus, 15 per cent by F.P. and 20 per cent by two Calgary television stations.

If the transfer is approved, Cygnus would hold 37.5 per cent and F.P. 22.5 per cent, with the remaining 40 per cent still in the hands of individuals.

"The granting of the options will make more equitable F.P.'s shareholdings in the company, but still its financial obligations are far greater proportionately than its shareholdings," said Richard Malone, assistant to the president of F.P. Publications.

"There is nothing in the various agreements relating to the financing of the company that gives F.P. any preferential right to management or control other than the fact that it is entitled to elect one director on a board of five directors."

Malone said the CRTC's decision should not be influenced by the fact that it has ordered F.P. to dispose of its holdings in the company in three years.

"As long as F.P. is a shareholder, it intends to act as a good shareholder should and do all that it can to assist in the affairs of the company and to assure the success of the enterprise. It does not intend to act as a sort of second-class shareholder."

The newly-purchased shares would also have to be sold in three years.

Northern Land Talk Terms Set

WATSON LAKE, Y.T. (CP) — Negotiating teams representing the federal government and Yukon Indians held their first formal meetng here Sunday.

The teams are to negotiate a cash and land settlement involving about 6,000 natives represented by the Yukon Indian Brotherhood and The Yukon Association of Non-Status Indians.

Following the hour-long meeting chief Elijah Smith of the brotherhood read a brief statement which said merely that the teams have agreed to a procedure to be followed in other meetings and that the teams will get together for a second time in Vancouver in mid-July.

Victoria lawyer R. B. Hutchison, leader of the Ottawa team, declined to elaborate on the statement but said the Sunday meeting was "an historic one."

3-DAY TOUR

It was the first time in that settlement of Indian land claims was the topic of federal and Indian discussion, he noted.

Hutchison also said the Ottawa team was able to get a better appreciation of the Yukon claims following a three-day tour of territorial Indian villages which ended Sunday.

Father Shoots Whole Family

BOSTON (UPI) — A security guard who once complained his family was "a noose around my neck" killed his wife and five of his six children before taking his own life with an overdose of drugs.

Police said Sunday that George O'Leary shot his wife, Thelma, and five children; George Jr., 13; Colleen, 11; Kathleen, 10; and Michael and Melinda, 8-year-old twins, some time Friday or Saturday.

Their bodies were discovered by the eldest daughter, Theresa, 14, Sunday when she returned from a week-long stay at Boston City Hospital.

Police said the girl had been taken back to the hospital where she was resting comfortably.

Medical examiner George Curtis said the bodies were badly decomposed. "It's difficult to come to a decision on the period of their death, but 24-48 hours is a rough estimate," Curtis said.

Neighbors described O'Leary as a difficult man to get along with. He and his family lived in a two-storey, one-family house in a quiet residential neighborhood of Boston's Dorchester section. The neighbors said O'Leary kept as many as eight dogs on the property, all of them trained as "vicious watchdogs." Occasionally, they said, he would brandish the pistol he owned as part of his job on a security detail.

One woman said O'Leary once told her, "my family is a noose around my neck and someday I'm gonna kill them all."

David Hosmer, owner of the house O'Leary rented, said he and O'Leary were to paint the house Sunday afternoon. Hosmer said he found a note taped to the inside of a kitchen window, written in a childish scrawl and poorly spelled.

It read, "David—I had to go to work—I'm sorry. Do not disturb Thelma, she and kids got virus and I had doctor—appreciate if you could do it tomorrow. I am bad at spalling—they are sleeping, please . . ."George."

Guitarists Offered Classes

Band and guitar classes will be held this summer in Edward Milne and Belmont Secondary Schools for any students in Sooke School District.

The four-week session of classes begins July 2 and fee for each course is $10. Students should bring their own instruments.

Guitar instruction will be given by Laurence Floyd, who can help both begnners and advanced students. Band students should have some experience prior to the summer class.

Application forms for the classes will be available from every school in the district.

Three Blood Clinics

The Red Cross in Greater Victoria will hold three blood donor clinics this week, the first at Sanscha Hall in Sidney today, from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. and 7 to 8:30 this evening.

The clinic will be on the second floor of Simpson Sears, from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:15 to 4 p.m. Tuesday.

The clinic Wednesday is in the nurses' residence at Victoria General Hospital, from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:15 to 4:15 p.m.

Objective for the three clinics is 275 donors.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 23-year-old Victoria man will be sentenced June 21 for trafficking 123 caps of MDA, possession of 19 caps of MDA and possession of one ounce of hashish.

When he was arrested at home late Friday, police found marked bills, and a quantity of hashish and MDA.

A 48-year-old man, who admitted drinking four bottles of beer, four glasses of beer and a 26-ounce bottle of rye before he was picked up for impaired driving June 8, was sentenced to six months in prison.

John Brenton, 1997 Idlemorr, Sooke, admitted driving while impaired, hitting a parked car on Balmoral, and pushing it into another car causing a total of $950 damage.

When arrested about 10:30 p.m., he said the sun had blinded him.

"You were a menace," said Ostler after court was told Brenton had previous similar convictions.

Martin Turner, 20, of no fixed address was fined $75 for possession of hashish when he was stopped June 9 at 3 a.m. in the 600-block Fort.

Long Strike In Italy Over

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Two months of strikes by 800,000 textile workers ended today after union and industry negotiators signed a new contract calling for substantial increases in wages and benefits.

The contract, still to be ratified by the union rank and file, calls for a monthly pay increase of $30.60, an increase in vacation from three weeks to four and up to six months of paid sick leave.

The strike had depressed the Italian textile industry and forced some factories to close.

Apartment Balconies Should Have Live Plants

Tubs and planters on apartment balconies are one way for people to keep in touch with the land. When living and working constantly in large buildings, nothing is easier than losing this sense of contact.

The planter idea is good for a lively argument as the point of view varies with every personality.

However, live plants are the things to have, not artificials. You need the change of seasons and the continuous change in plant growth if you are to receive maximum benefit from having a balcony.

Some groups of plants will thrive on a balcony whatever its aspect. Admittedly, northeast is the most difficult for winter success because this is where our most harmful winds come from.

★ ★ ★

But west can be difficult in summer, for more hot sunshine reaches the tubs and planters from this angle than from the south. The sun is pretty well overhead at noon and a due-south apartment balcony with only a south aspect gets less direct sun than an east- or west-facing balcony.

During summer, you may find it necessary to contrive some form of sun baffle for your containers. Not for the stems, leaves or flowers, but for the root area.

Plant roots are normally protected by large volumes of surrounding soil. This acts as insulation against cold as well as against heat.

In a tub, the soil volume is restricted to a quantity vital for about five years of growth for permanent shrubby plants. With annual top dressing this can be extended to seven or even eight years.

But the soil gets warm, even hot in summer, and most plants will suffer damage to the fine root hairs which take in the moisture containing nutrients.

Results will be browning of leaves or other types of foliage, and perhaps ultimate loss of the plants.

Providing a sun baffle for the tub is a matter for experimenting. Air circulation plays a great part in reducing the effect of heat in a greenhouse or dwelling. That heat is built up by reflection of the sun's rays on any surface.

One method is to attach a length of bamboo material, such as is used for window drapes and table place-mats, to the top edge of the tub or planter, allowing it to hang loosely to the floor. Air is able to penetrate the bamboo slats and circulate between the bamboo and the planter, thus carrying away the heat before danger point is reached.

As a trial, you might take cardboard cartons, preferably with corrugation inside for air spaces, paint the outside with a pale color for light reflection, and tack these to the upper edge of container sides which get sun. When an inch of space is left between container and cardboard, better insulation results.

If you find healthier looking plants as a result, the same scheme would be worth using in winter to keep frost from penetrating container sides to reach root areas.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

On the subject of "Rome wasn't built in a day," a little story was going the rounds at tournaments this past fall.

Two young ladies enter a bridge school, and one of them says: "My friend has never played bridge before, and she wants to take some lessons." "Fine," says the receptionist, "and how about you?" The reply is instantaneous: "Oh, no, I learned yesterday."

As a graphic demonstration of the fact that it takes years and years to become a good bridge player, observe today's deal, in which mere technical knowledge was not sufficient to yield the best result. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

Opening lead: Jack of hearts.

West's opening heart lead was captured by dummy's queen. It was obvious to declarer that he had eight top tricks, and that the ninth could be made only in the spade suit.

It was equally apparent to him that when the opponents obtained the lead via the spade ace, they would almost surely attack in dummy's weakest suit, clubs. The defenders would, in this case, make either four or five club tricks, thus sending declarer down to defeat. But declarer prevented this from happening, by applying a bit of top-level chicanery.

At trick two, he led a low club off dummy, and inserted his nine-spot when East played low. West captured this trick with the queen, and paused for reflection.

It is axiomatic that when declarer attacks a suit at no trump, it is because he has length and-or strength in that suit, and is trying to create winning tricks in it. Hence, it is accepted logic that the defenders shy away from leading that suit, for to do so would assist declarer in attaining his objective.

And so West, upon winning the second trick with his club queen, concluded that it had to be wrong to lead clubs. With the wishful thinking that his partner held the spade king, at trick three he led the deuce of spades.

As is evident, South captured this spade lead for his ninth trick. His ability to capitalize on the knowledge of how the opponents would be thinking had paid a dividend.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Harry stopped the car at the main entrance. "Here we are, exactly seven minutes late," he said. "And this time I averaged 30 miles per hour just to please you."

"I know, dear, and a few minutes doesn't really matter," Amelia told him. "Last time we did the trip you were five minutes early, and we started the same time."

What was the distance?

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Monday Movies and Specials

Movies

The Caddy (xx), on 11 at 8. A better-than-average 1953 Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis comedy that's a spoof of the golfing world. Golfers Ben Hogan and Sam Snead make cameo appearances.

White Heat (xxx), on 13 at 8. James Cagney gives a realistic portrait of a hood in this exciting 1949 gangster melodrama that co-stars Virginia Mayo and Edmond O'Brien. Cagney plays a heartless killer in a story definitely not for the squeamish.

Red Tomahawk (xx), on 4 at 9. Routine 1967 western drama with some familiar faces including Howard Keel, Broderick Crawford and Scott Brady.

Half a Sixpence (xxx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. Lovely scenery and lively tunes and dances highlight this 1967 film adaptation of the Broadway and London stage hit. Tommy Steele repeats his winning stage role as Arthur Kipps, a turn-of-the-century English shop clerk who inherits a fortune—and the headaches of becoming a gentleman.

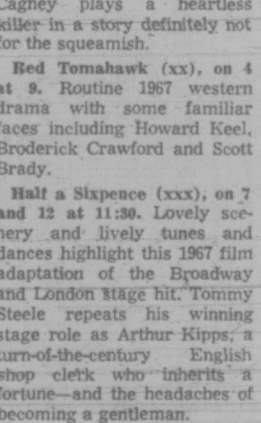
Eye of the Cat (xx), on 8 at midnight. Michael Sarrazin, Gayle Hunnicutt and Eleanor Parker star in this 1969 mystery drama about deception and murder in a house full of felines.

East of Sumatra (xx), on 13 at midnight. Action and romance spark this 1953 adventure about the opposing efforts of two men to set up tin mining operations on a Pacific island. Starring are Jeff Chandler, Anthony Quinn and Marilyn Maxwell.



TOMMY STEELE

10:30 (AM) CBC Playhouse —"Our Man in Yakutsk," by David Hughes. This original comedy series of three plays by actor-writer Hughes also star him as Captain Tharp, and Jimmy Johnston as his batman Godfrey, with Ted Greenhalgh, Judy Sinclair and Roger Norman.

11:03 (AM) Ideas — Strategy and Tactics: The Rise of America: Strategy and tactics of war. Fifth in a series of seven programs.

11:03 (FM) That Midnight Jazz — Host: Bob Smith. Program looks at various aspects of jazz including the "blues" ballads and contrasting and parallel performances. From Vancouver.

Specials

Joyce Chen's China, on 9 at 8. An American family tours the People's Republic of China. Boston businesswoman Joyce Chen had not seen her homeland in 24 years when she returned last fall with her daughter and son (who recorded their visit on film). (60 mins.)

Dick Cavett, on 4 at 11:30. Dick begins his week with a rare appearance by actor Robert Michum, and the Giglottos, an Illinois couple mistakenly raided by narcotics agents last month. (90 mins.)

Early Tuesday

23 Paces to Baker Street (xx), on 4 at 9:30. Van Johnson and Vera Miles star in this well-made 1956 mystery drama about a blind playwright's desperate search for a murderer in fog-shrouded London.

The Forty-Eight Hour Mile (xx), on 13 at 10:30. A private eye becomes involved in the case of a millionaire with too many women in this 1969 TV mystery starring Darren McGavin, William Windom and Carrie Snodgrass.

A Kiss in the Dark (xx), on 13 at 12:15. David Niven and Jane Wyman star in this frothy 1948 comedy about a timid concert pianist who invests his money in a business enterprise and becomes involved with an attractive model.

Woman of the River, on 6 and 8 at 12:45. No rating is available on this Italian-made 1956 drama about a romance that develops between a young smuggler and a factory girl starring Sophia Loren and Gerard Oury.

Treasure of San Gennaro (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Senta Berger and Harry Guardino star in this Italian-made 1966 comedy about a bungled robbery.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

'We Can Outsell Japanese'

British Columbia can outperform Japan in selling sawmilling equipment and technical expertise in Southeast Asia, says Leslie Hempsall, provincial deputy minister of industrial development, trade and commerce.

He said Malaysians in particular are interested in B.C. technology, which could double the lumber production of mills constructed and run by the Japanese.

British Columbia's plan would be to set up mills and train Malaysians to work in them, although there would be continuing contacts for advice and export of spare parts.

Hempsall was commenting on a report released by his department today: The Market for British Columbia Logging and Sawmilling Equipment in Southeast Asia.

He said in making the study the department was not concerned about the concept of assisting a potential competitor for B.C.'s lumber export market.

Southeast Asia is developing its lumber mills in any case and will do it with Japanaese help if B.C. does not respond to the challenge.

Japanese equipment is less expensive than the B.C. product but B.C. is still in a favorable position to compete because of our broader and more complete knowledge of the forestry industry, Hempsall said.

The report was prepared by Norman Bedford, a Vancouver consulting engineer who toured Southeast Asia to conduct local interviews before compiling his findings.

On the question of Japanese competition, Bedford's report says:

"The more sophisticated buyers in Southeast Asia are finding the Japanese equipment to be too light, that it has a tendency to go out of alignment or begin to deteriorate after a two to three year period and often, before five years, it has to be replaced.

"This is particularly so with sawmilling equipment. Up to this time the majority of buyers of logging and sawmilling equipment in Southeast Asia have been looking for quick returns on their investments and, therefore, have purchased the cheapest equipment available.

"However, as governments are becoming more involved in the logging and sawmilling industires in their countries and are looking towards building more efficient and long-term operations with resulting long-term payouts they are, therefore, looking for more utilitarian equipment."

British Columbia equipment can also compete favorably with the competition from Australia, New Zealand, Europe and the United States.

The report also urged companies to approach the federal export development corporation for assistance in the early stages of negotiation to arrange for an export credits insurance policy which will be used by a bank for collateral security.

The EDC will cover 90 per cent of a loss until the equipment is accepted by a buyer at which time a 100 per cent guarantee will be given to the bank.

Malaysia and Indonesia are two developing nations that offer particularly good prospects because the governments of the two nations are taking an active role in the forestry industry.

Under government direction a substantial number of new sawmills and plywood plants will be established during the next five years.

The market is so attractive that B.C. firms should consider making the first sales as loss leaders in order to establish a name in the area, the report concludes.

B.C. Egg Men May Join Plan

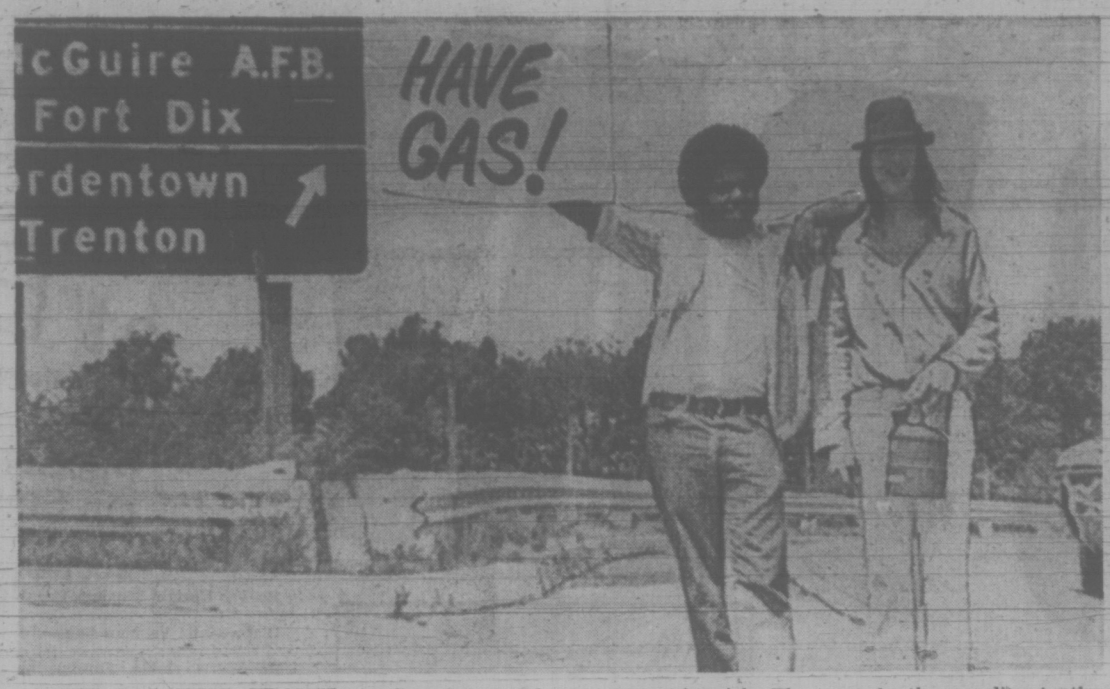
Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said today he is hopeful agreement will be reached this week to allow B.C. egg producers to join a national scheme for marketing eggs.

After a series of meetings last week with representatives of the National Council of Egg Marketing Boards, Stupich said he was written a letter to the national body, setting out areas where concessions will be necessary in order for B.C. to join.

Stupich kept the province out of the scheme when it started two weeks ago because, he said, B.C. producers would suffer from participation.

Under the national scheme, Stupich said, eggs produced by farmers in each province would be bought by the national egg agency at a minimum price which would vary from province to province.

B.C. is also interested in taking part in a study of the cost of producing eggs in each province. Stupich said the government is prepared to have B.C. producers pay "a little" for their participation in the national scheme, but does not want to see the prices they get for their eggs vary far apart from production costs.



HAVE GAS, WILL TRAVEL, is the message of Justin Fran, left, and Michael Bodine, both of New York city, hitch-hiking to Washington, as they try a new gimmick. They supply the gasoline in the wake of some fuel shortages as they await a lift near Bordentown, N.J.

Viet Peace Fading Further And Further Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect for genuine peace in Indochina appears bleak more than four months after the Paris cease-fire was signed, a United States Senate staff report says.

"If the United States thought that the leaders in Hanoi would abandon their lifelong objectives or that President Thieu would be willing to risk the tenuous security won for him by the United Staes, we may have miscalculated badly," the study says.

The study, prepared for the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on security agreements by James Lowenstein and Richard Moose, was released Sunday.

For instance, the report said, the Central Intelligence Agency pays combat flight bonuses to Laotian pilots not to fly combat missions.

SOLDIERS NON-EXISTANT

Aso, theU.S. military has paid salaries of nonexistent Cambodian troops.

The Senate investigators said they were told the Cambodian information minister that when the military payroll stood at 300,000, as many as one-third of the men may have been fictional.

U.S. estimates of Cambodia's effective fighting force vary from 150,000 to 275,000, the report said, adding that "there is no greater mystery than the size of the Cambodian government's armed forces."

The report gave this view of the situation in four countries:

Vietnam—U.S. intelligence analysts predict there will be no general communist offensive in the next four months but the North Vietnamese could be capable of launching a major attack by fall.

"There appears to be little prospect that peace will be restored by political means, given the apparent continued determination by Hanoi and the Provisional Revolutionary Government (Viet Cong) to displace the existing structure in the south and given the South Vietnamese government's adamant refusal to afford either the communists or the non-communist opposition any meaningful role in political life," the study said.

INSIDE OPPOSITION

Cambodia—Only half of the 5,000 North Vietnamese troops in the country are engaging the government forces of Lon Nol. Some 50,000 opposition troops come from the Khmer Rouge (Cambodian Communist) movement.

Thailand—The U.S. military presence has remained at 44,000 men, the level reached during the communist offensive in spring 1972. U.S. aid in 1972, which was widely assumed to be in the range of $60 million, actually was more than twice that because of special and excess U.S. military equipment allotted to "improve the military readiness and capability of the Royal Thai armed forces."

Laos—The United States allocated $116.7 million in fiscal 1973 to pay Thai "irregular" forces fighting the Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese in Laos. The number of irregulars was 17,330 in April.

TIME TO TURN A DIEF EAR

WASHINGTON (AP)—Punsters here, tired of jokes about the Watergate caper, have come up with a new game, Stennis, Anyone?

They take the last names of members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives and put two or more together to make the name of a special piece of make-believe legislation.

For example, there's the Pepper-Rooney Pizza Standards Bill. And the Devine-Wright Presidential Succession Bill. And, unfortunately, the Tunney-Fish Salmonella Control Bill.

Canadian MPs and senators are fair game too. Some examples:

The Goode-Brewin alcohol amendment.
The Sharp-Roche channel-marker bill.

Ice Fouls Lobster Traps

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP) — Woodrow Philpott, an official of the Newfoundland Fishermen, Food and Allied Workers Union, says between 7,000 and 9,000 lobster traps have been lost during the last two weeks in Notre Dame Bay off northern Newfoundland.

Mr. Philpott, who had just toured the area, said in a weekend interview he knew of some fishermen who lost up to 2,000 traps this season because ice destroyed their buoys.

He said he did not think governments realized the gravity of the situation. Most of the fishermen in the Notre Dame Bay area had lost all their gear and needed immediate aid.

MORE AID FOR FARMS

As many as 20 pieces of legislation specifically designed to improve the lot of British Columbia farmers will be introduced in the fall session of the legislature, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said today.

Stupich said that when the legislature was debating the controversial Land Commission Act, which restricts urban development of agricultural land, the government said it would be bringing in measures to make farming a more viable occupation in the province.

That legislation will be seen this fall, he said today, and although some pieces will not have a major impact, all will aid the farming community.

Stupich said compensation for farmers whose intention to dispose of their land was vetoed by the land commission act was not provided because the government wanted to see the land continuing to be used for agricultural purposes.

The plan is now to make sure that farming is made an attractive profession in order to keep people on the land.

The minister said the legislative committee on agriculture which is presently on a

Bank Again Acts To Cool Economy

Times News Services

OTTAWA — For the second time in less than a month the Bank of Canada has moved to curb credit and cool inflation through an increase in the prime lending rate.

The central bank announced Sunday that the rate would rise to 6¼ per cent beginning today, from the 5¾ per cent in effect since May 14. A month before, on April 9, the rate was boosted to 5¼ per cent, the first increase since October, 1971, when it was increased to 4¾.

Loans for a variety of other purposes from short-term business borrowings to mortgage rates for new houses will undoubtedly cost more because of the action.

In turn the private firms have been loaning money at the prime rate of 7.25 per cent, with a special rate of 6.75 for small businesses.

This can be expected to rise to 7.75 and 7.25 because of the increased cost of borrowing funds from the Bank of Canada, a Victoria bank manager said.

Most Victoria banks loan funds to consumers at 11.9 per cent for regular customers, 10.9 for preferred consumer risks.

The new general rate for consumer loans could be expected to rise shortly to about 12.5 per cent.

Also the U.S. Federal Reserve Board's increase in its discount rate to 6.5 per cent from six per cent becomes effective today.

Gerald K. Bouey, governor of the central bank since February, explained the latest squeeze on credit as a response to the "extraordinarily rapid growth" in bank credit so far this year.

The federal bank manipulates credit and spending conditions through its controls on money supply and interest rates. The double jump in rates constitutes efforts to keep borrowing and spending in check without squeezing productive activity to the point that jobs are lost.

Yet the government continues to heat up the economy with such things as proposed tax cuts and deficit spending outlined in the Feb. 19 budget.

The latest rate increase comes a day ahead of the monthly Statistics Canada report on consumer prices. They shot up 1.1 per cent in April from 145.7 in March and 145.3 in February. The two earlier bank rate boosts also were closely timed to the price index announcement.

Bouey said the heavy demand for credit is related to the "very strong performance of the economy."

But coincident pressure on short-term interest rates domestically and on foreign countries created a need for yet another economic braking action.

The rate increase seems certain to be regarded as a further attempt to ease the inflationary impact on the economy.

This inflationary aspect is derived largely from the international aspect of the export market, including a rate of expansion in American economy which has led to forecasts of a sharp recession as early as 1974.

Calculated on a yearly basis, bank credit had been growing at a rate of 30 per cent since January.

At the same time, Bouey maintained that monetary growth would be sufficient to sustain economic expansion and employment.

Strike Vote At Mills

The major union in British Columbia's pulp and paper industry is taking a strike vote this week following the breaking off of negotiations last Friday.

The United Paperworkers International Union has 7,200 members at 11 mills. This includes the paper machines at Crofton and the entire mills at Port Alberni, Campbell River and Port Alice on Vancouver Island.

Another union, the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, has 4,500 members at eight mills. Talks between this union and the industry recessed last week with negotiators returning to individual mills to deal with local bargaining issues.

The deadline for UPIU locals to complete strike votes is June 19, regional vice-president Pat O'Neal said today.

He said negotiations "foundered mainly on money matters" including union proposals on health and welfare, long-term disability, pensions, vacations, adjustments for steam plant and maintenance personnel and the main wage demand of 10½ per cent, with a minimum of 55 cents an hour, in each year of a two-year agreement.

The Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the companies, has offered both unions a two-year package including a 7½ per cent wage increase with a minimum of 33½ cents this year and a further 7½ per cent next year.

The present base labor rate is $4.08½ cents an hour and the mechanics rate is $5.70 an hour.

O'Neal said "considerable progress" was made since bargaining began May 7 "but in the opinion of the delegates insufficient to justify a settlement in view of the excellent state of the industry and the rocketing pace of inflation."

He said bureau demands for changes in work schedules during the Easter shutdown and the right to select relief foremen without regard to seniority "also created problems.

"Their refusal to discuss contracting out, job security and their adament "no" to the union's request for full disclosure on the millions of dollars tied up in pension funds further aggravated the situation."

Industry negotiator Don Lanskail said "we felt that negotiations had been proceeding in a constructive manner and in fact many of the issues are resolved." He expressed regret that UPIU chose to break off talks.

He said the industry's wage offer to both unions would cost $25 million.

Difficulties arose, he said, from the fact that simultaneous negotiations had to be conducted with both unions.

The industry wage offer also included a dental plan and "substantial improvements" in fringe areas such as vacations, health and welfare and pensions.

Both men indicated negotiations will resume after the strike votes have been taken.

Arrests Inflate Heroin

The local street price of heroin is fluctuating between $30 and $40 a cap as a result of Vancouver's recent crackdown, head of Victoria drug squad Sgt. David Staples said today.

Prices skyrocketed from the normal $20 a cap after Vancouver police arrested 173 persons last week in connection with the heroin trade.

In Vancouver the price of one cap reached $50 at one point but it has now dropped back to between $15 and $20, said Staples.

It is not known whether or not prices have gone that high in Victoria.

Most of Victoria's 500 known addicts have been "pretty sick" lately, said Staples, because heroin coming into the city has been cut by as much as 50 per cent with baking soda or other powders.

The situation is the same all over Vancouver Island, said Staples, prices jump every time "the heat's on."

Last week Staples said a $500,000 cocaine seizure in Vancouver and another in Los Angeles which netted $700,000 worth of cocaine would have no effect in Victoria.

Asked if the drug squad is planning raids similar to those in Vancouver, Staples said he could obviously not answer but did say, "We've always got something in the making."

All Flights On Time

Filghts in and out of Victoria International Airport continued normal today despite a 24-hour strike by members of the International Association of Machinists which extended to eight of the country's provincial capitals and Ottawa.

Only Toronto and Charlottetown (which isn't served by Air Canada) were not hit by the rotating strike tactic of the IAM in its contract renewal dispute with the company. More than 700 union members were involved in today's walkouts.

In Victoria, 23 baggage handlers and loaders didn't report for work this morning. But no picket lines were established.

"We are operating everything on schedule so far," said Air Canada's local manager, Stan Mooney. Supervisors did the work.

11 PWA FLIGHTS

Air Canada has four flights in and out today and Pacific Western Airlines has 11. Air Canada ground crews service PWA in Victoria.

A 24-hour walkout hit Vancouver Saturday, the second since IAM began the rotating strikes. Today's was the first for Victoria.

Airline officials said the Vancouver strike caused a few minor delays but no flight cancellations.

In the east, Air Canada said it anticipated "some delays, particularly in the Maritimes. We are trying to space out our arriavls at the affected airports."

Talks between the IAM and Air Canada broke down last week. IAM said it won't go back to bargaining until Air Canada changes its position on issues.

STUMBLING BLOCKS

The airline said wages were the major stumbling block, but IAM said there are other important issues, including discrimination against union members in layoffs and language requirements for some jobs.

The layoff issue arose from last year's air traffic controllers strike when IAM complained its mechanics were laid off when they had work to do but clerical and supervisory personnel remained on the job with no work.

The union has sought a 20 per cent wage increase in a two-year contract while Air Canada has offered 15 per cent over 25 months. Mechanics with two years experience now earn between $4.99 and $5.49 an hour.

WARREN RUNNING

KELOWNA (CP) — B.C. Conservative leader Derril Warren said today he will seek his party's nomination to contest the Okanagan South byelection to fill the seat left vacant by the resignation last week of former premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Bennett, MLA for the riding since 1941, resigned his seat last Tuesday. On Friday the 34-year-old Conservative leader, defeated in his bid to win a legislative seat in North Vancouver-Seymour last August, was invited by the Conservative's local executive to let his name stand.

Warren said he has accepted a position with a Kelowna law firm and intends to make this city a permanent home for his family "win, lose or draw."

Warren said that he and his wife are both natives of Kelowna and were married here in 1960.

The date for the byelection has not yet been set.

NEWS BRIEFS

Oil Takeover

BEIRUT (UPI) — Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy announced today the nationalization of the Texas-owned Bunker Hunt Oil Co. Khadafy told a mass rally in Tripoli, "the revolution command council has decided to nationalize the Bunker Hunt American Oil company."

Hijack Haul

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Police in three Indian states launched a search today for three men who hijacked a Royal Nepal Airlines plane Sunday and diverted it to an abandoned airfield, where they escaped with a $400,000 bank shipment.

Hunger Strike

MOSCOW (UPI) — Seven Soviet Jewish scientists said today they have started a hunger strike to protest their "forcible detainment" in the Soviet Union and are prepared to take their lives if not allowed to emigrate.

Arms Seized

BEIRUT (AP) — Security forces seized a truckload of arms near the Syrian border early today after a five-minute gun battle in which one of the truck's occupants was killed.

TOMMIES HURT

SUFFIELD, Alta. (CP) — Fourteen members of the Third Company No. 1 Dragoon Guards, a British regiment, were injured early today when a live shell exploded on the training range at CFB Suffield, 50 miles northeast of Medicine Hat.

LAUNDROMAT A KILLER

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A young housewife was beaten to death by the fins in a laundromat dryer when her bra strap became entangled in the drum, police reported Sunday.

Mrs. Michiko Ogawa, 30, was found dead Friday near the door of the laundromat and there was a trail of blood from the dryer. Police first thought she had been murdered.

However, further investigation showed that when her bra strap became caught in the spinning drum, her head was dragged into such a position that it was struck repeatedly by the fins in the drum.

ICCS Clamps Lifted

SAIGON (CP) — Restrictions on the movement of Canadian military personnel with the international truce force were lifted today after officials decided security risks had diminished considerably.

The 240 or so military personnel with the International Commission of Control and Spervision (ICCS) were confined to barracks, except for essential movements, Saturday during a major flare-up in hostilities across South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, in the besieged provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, two Canadian officers and other ICCS representatives are remaining in a sandbagged bunker near their compound to protect themselves from heavy artillery fire in the area.

In Paris, negotiations over a new pact continued today as Kissinger's top aide, William Sullivan, and his North Vietnamese counterpart, Nguyen To Thach, met in the Paris suburb of Le Vesinet for discussions. The two were thought unlikely to conduct any top-level bargaining.

HEAD START on picket preparation is taken in Edmonton as Bruce Woodrow, one of 1,000 support staff workers at Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton has pertinent strike information penned on his pate by co-worker Cliff Ward. The support staff walked off the job at the hospital this morning over wage demands. In anticipation of the walkout, the hospital had already pared patient population by two-thirds.

Reject Drugs Dumped in B.C.: Cocke

The problem of poor-quality drugs coming into British Columbia is one that government and pharmacists must tackle together, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said today.

Cocke told delegates to the B.C. Pharmacy Convention at the Empress Hotel that he's had many reports of poor-quality drugs entering the province since Ontario's Parcost program was set up.

"Maybe we'll have to have our own Parcost," he said.

Parcost is a program of the Ontario government which tests different drugs, especially low-cost drugs, and sends pharmacists a list of drugs that have been tested and approved. Object is to provide high-quality drugs at the lowest possible prices.

Since it was set up, there have been reports that drugs that didn't win Parcost approval are being dumped in other provinces instead.

The federal government's drug-testing program, QUAD (Quality Drugs) has so far tested few drugs, Cocke said.

B.C. could possibly set up a Parcost scheme together with two or three other provinces, he said.

Cocke reminded the pharmacists that the government is still looking closely at setting up a government core drug purchasing program.

"A lot of the reason for the high (drug) prices is because of the fantastic advertising and . . . a very close relationship between drug companies," he said.

Aim of the government bulk-buying scheme would be lower drug prices, said Cocke.

He urged the pharmacists to break through the "semi-isolation" they now work in, and begin to work more closely with the rest of the health care team.

"If we don't do anything else we must provide ourselves with a communications network in the delivery of health care," he said.

The conference, which ends Wednesday, combines the annual meetings of the Pharmaceutical Association of B.C. and the B.C. Professional Pharmacists' Society. More than 100 pharmacists are attending.

Rainbow Stops The Show

Maritime flavor was in the forefront when about 5,000 Greater Victoria residents attended this years Armed Forces Day in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt on Saturday.

Star of this year's show, however, was the submarine HMCS Rainbow, at right. Queues lined up all afternoon to see what life in an underwater vessel is like. They were still lining up when Armed Forces Day came to an end for another year.

Municipal Leaders Cheer Chance to Control Grants

Spokesmen for Greater Victoria municipalities today welcomed a weekend statement by federal Environment Minister Jack Davis that the federal government may turn over the administration of Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiative programs to municipalities.

The unanimous view is that supervision at the local level is long overdue, to provide a better system of grant allocation and ensure municipalities aren't left "holding the baby" when federal funding dries up.

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen, the most vocal critic of the present situation, was not available for comment today, but Ald. Bill Tindall said the city strongly favors some form of local control.

Tindall said Victoria's main complaint has been that programs are set up without reference to an over-all framework of community needs, funded for a couple of years and then abandoned by Ottawa "so that the responsibility falls squarely on the shoulders of the municipality to carry them on."

There won't be any "blood bath" as a result of municipalities exercising their proposed new powers and cutting back drastically on useful programs, Tindall said. But some adjustments would have to be made to suit municipalities' pocketbooks.

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford said she can't believe there will be no strings attached to the granting of municipal control, but in any case she considers Davis' announcement encouraging.

"We have been asking for this power in order to avoid duplication, overlapping and the expenditure of tax money on programs which we might well feel are are not at all suitable," she said.

Agreement Put Foot in Door

Elford noted that Greater Victoria municipalities achieved a small improvement last year, with agreement from Canada Manpower and the provincial department of municipal affairs that there should be a local representative on the selection committee for OFY and LIP programs.

Garth Homer, executive director of the Community Council, acted in that capacity but was not as influential as the municipalities would have liked because the "final decisions were still made in Vancouver," the mayor added.

Ald. Les Passmore, deputy mayor of Saanich, recalled that he has had some "pretty strong opinions" on the administration of the programs and expressed willingness to serve as an adjudicator of grant applications.

He made it clear, too, that if he'd had a say in things there would have been no money forthcoming for the group of young men who were recently helped with federal cash to "communicate with whales."

Passmore added, however: "We do need a fish ladder from Colquitz Creek to Beaver Lake and if they'd come forward with a proposal like that I'd say O.K."

Davis said at a Vancouver Liberal meeting he considers project screening, selection and follow-up should be "entirely a municipal responsibility" and the federal government is considering such a move.

Asked if OFY and LIP would be merged into a year-round "opportunities for people" program, as suggested earlier by State Secretary Hugh Faulkner, Davis replied: "I would argue strongly for that."

Curtis Seeks Shared Landlord-Tenant Board

Cost of a landlord-tenant advisory bureau in Greater Victoria should be borne by all municipalities working through a single bureau, Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich has told the Community Council.

Setting up a separate bureau in Saanich as suggested last week by Ald. Alan Newberry "would be very expensive for Saanich", Curtis said.

"Staff studies into the cost are under way but I would estimate that we could be talking of a figure between $7,000 to $12,000 annually, perhaps more in terms of full time staffing," the mayor said in a weekend letter to Community Council chairman B. A. Tobin.

For the past year the city of Victoria has underwritten the Community Council's operation of a bureau, which has performed services in other municipalities on a free basis.

Legislation has been passed to make it mandatory for municipalities to provide landlord-tenant advisory services and the Community Council has offered to do this in Greater Victoria.

At a Saanich council meeting last week, Newberry said it might be less costly in the long run for Saanich to provide its own advisory service.

"I cannot accept his particular point of view and I am puzzled as to his reasons for taking such a strong position in this point," Curtis said.

The "equitable basis" for Saanich to share costs of a Greater Victoria bureau would be other than the usual inter-municipal cost-sharing formula, he said.

The mayor said the usual formula would not serve because Saanich has fewer tenants than Victoria "and must therefore have fewer complaints."

Quick Call Keeps Home From Ruin

An Oak Bay fire department spokesman said today a fire broke out in the kitchen of a home at 2112 Granite Road at 4:30 p.m. while Diedre Johnson, 16, was alone in the house.

The girl received second degree burns to her hands and face, but on her way out of the house stopped long enough to phone the fire department.

Miss Johnson is in fair condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. The fire was contained to the kitchen.

"She did well to get that call through before panicking and running out of the house," a fire department spokesman said today.

"Even an adult would have to think quick to do that. The house would have gone up if it had been left much longer. She did a really good job."

Firemen estimate damage to property and contents at $4,000.

Purple, White and Blue Tells the Mailing Story

New mail boxes seen on downtown streets today should solve the fine print problem for people confused about box-clearing times.

Bold white-topped red boxes with purple, white and blue bands bearing assured-delivery mailing deadlines are the latest post office department refinements to speed service.

Victoria deadlines for next-day delivery locally, regionally and nationally (as far east as Winnipeg) are spelled out on the stripes themselves instead of being listed on a card fixed to the front of the box.

Post office spokesman Ken Stofer said there were complaints that the cards were hard to read because of "fine print" and the fact that sunshine faded the ink.

There will be 113 of the new style boxes on arterial streets of Victoria—21 of which were placed Sunday.

The remaining 255 residential mailboxes will also have tops painted white to make them more conspicuous and consistent with the downtown boxes, as soon as contractors can get to them.

A blue band on arterial boxes carries a 10:30 a.m. deadline for next-day assured delivery east to Winnipeg; the white band indicates 3 p.m. for regional delivery the following day (Vancouver Island and the Fraser Valley); and the purple band means 5:30 p.m. deadline for local delivery next day in Greater Victoria up to Sidney.

The latter deadline is declared for the first time, Stofer said.

A similar system operates across Canada, but local box-clearing deadlines vary according to local conditions. Mail travelling west-to-east moves against time zones and therefore next-day delivery cannot be assured at all points.

Resort Beauty Protected in Sale

Gerry Hill, 79, owner of the long-established Yellow Point Lodge near Nanaimo is selling out to a recording company, based in Vancouver and Toronto.

In selling, however, the man who carved the resort out of timber and rock, has laid down stringent regulations to guard against the land being subdivided or logged for timber.

The value of the land has been assessed at $1.2 million but Hill said today he had sold for less than that to Timbre Sound Industries Ltd.

He said he was unable to give the selling price:

"I promised I wouldn't say anything until their tax people have been able to look at the thing," he said.

"I know people won't believe me," he added, "but I've had six offers over the past three years, some for much more money. But it was my restrictions that stopped the sale."

Hill said he has a five-year contract in which the company agrees not to subdivide or to cut any tree on the choice waterfront property without Hill's permission.

"Some of the trees here," he said, "have six-foot boles and the timber here would be worth an awful lot of money. I wanted to protect the natural environment for all time. My contract, plus regional and provisional controls will do this."

. . . laid down rules

Timbre Sound Industries, he said, would take over the operation of the lodge when he bows out Oct. 15.

The main idea of buying the property, he said, was to build a studio.

Vancouver architect Gerald Hamilton will design the studio, to be built in a clearing about 400 feet away from the existing log lodge.

"Their main business," Hill said, "is 24-track computerized spectacular recordings. They wanted a natural place to which they could bring their artists — where they wouldn't be bothered with autograph hunters.

"They'll have some big names here and this will be the only such studio between here and Los Angeles and west of Toronto. They'll only have to cut down one tree to build the studio."

"All we have to do is remove one tree to build our recording studio," he said.

CHILDREN'S FARMYARD TO OPEN SATURDAY

Garry Oak Farm, a children's farmyard in Beacon Hill Park, will be officially opened Saturday at 1 p.m. by Ald. Malcolm Anderson.

The farm will be home to a Shetland pony named Samba, two calves, three piglets, a ewe and two lambs, three young goats, deer, plus rabbits and guinea pigs, ducks and geese.

The farmyard will take up 32,000 square feet in the animal enclosure area of the park, and the large deer enclosure will take another 10,000 square feet.

Part of the deer shelter will be used as a security area to house the animals overnight.

The farmyard will be open from June to September four hours a day, with 1 to 5 p.m. the hours tentatively set.

MORE AID FOR FARMS

As many as 20 pieces of legislation specifically designed to improve the lot of British Columbia farmers will be introduced in the fall session of the legislature, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said today.

Stupich said that when the legislature was debating the controversial Land Commission Act, which restricts urban development of agricultural land, the government said it would be bringing in measures to make farming a more viable occupation in the province.

That legislation will be seen this fall, he said today, and although some pieces will not have a major impact, all will aid the farming community.

Stupich said compensation for farmers whose intention to dispose of their land was vetoed by the land commission act was not provided because the government wanted to see the land continuing to be used for agricultural purposes.

The plan is now to make sure that farming is made an attractive profession in order to keep people on the land.

The minister said the legislative committee on agriculture which is presently on a

Bank Again Acts To Cool Economy

Times News Services

OTTAWA — For the second time in less than a month the Bank of Canada has moved to curb credit and cool inflation through an increase in the prime lending rate.

The central bank announced Sunday that the rate would rise to 6¼ per cent beginning today, from the 5¾ per cent in effect since May 14. A month before, on April 9, the rate was boosted to 5¼ per cent, the first increase since October, 1971, when it was increased to 4¾.

Loans for a variety of other purposes from short-term business borrowings to mortgage rates for new houses will undoubtedly cost more because of the action.

The discount rate is the level at which the government bank loans money to private banks.

In turn the private firms have been loaning money at the prime rate of 7.25 per cent, with a special rate of 6.75 for small businesses.

This can be expected to rise to 7.75 and 7.25 because of the increased cost of borrowing funds from the Bank of Canada, a Victoria bank manager said.

Most Victoria banks loan funds to consumers at 11.9 per cent for regular customers, 10.9 for preferred consumer risks.

The new general rate for consumer loans could be expected to rise shortly to about 12.5 per cent.

Royal Bank was the first to raise its prime lending rate for small and large businesses a well as interest paid on non-chequable savings accounts by one-half of one per cent.

The increase brings its prime lending base rate on small business loans of under $200,000 to 7¼ per cent and the regular prime lending rate to 7¾ per cent, effective June 13.

The interest rate charged for consumer loans remain unchanged at 12 per cent and mortgage rates remain unchanged at 9½ per cent, the bank said.

Gerald K. Bouey, governor of the central bank since February, explained the latest squeeze on credit as a response to the "extraordinarily rapid growth" in bank credit so far this year.

The federal bank manipulates credit and spending conditions through its controls on money supply and interest rates. The double jump in rates constitutes efforts to keep borrowing and spending in check without squeezing productive activity to the point that jobs are lost.

Yet the government continues to heat up the economy with such things as proposed tax cuts and deficit spending outlined in the Feb. 19 budget.

The latest rate increase comes a day ahead of the monthly Statistics Canada report on consumer prices. They shot up 1.1 per cent in April, from 145.7 in March and 145.3 in February. The two earlier bank rate boosts also were closely timed to the price index announcement.

Bouey said the heavy demand for credit is related to the "very strong performance of the economy."

But coincident pressure on short-term interest rates domestically and on foreign countries created a need for yet another economic braking action.

The rate increase seems certain to be regarded as a further attempt to ease the inflationary impact on the economy.

Calculated on a yearly basis, bank credit had been growing at a rate of 30 per cent since January.

At the same time, Bouey maintained that monetary growth would be sufficient to sustain economic expansion and employment.

A "more moderate pace of bank lending" would simply lessen the risk of excessive demand in the months ahead.

LAUNDROMAT A KILLER

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A young housewife was beaten to death by the fins in a laundromat dryer when her bra strap became entangled in the drum, police reported Sunday.

Mrs. Michiko Ogawa, 30, was found dead Friday near the door of the laundromat and there was a trail of blood from the dryer. Police first thought she had been murdered.

However, further investigation showed that when her bra strap became caught in the spinning drum, her head was dragged into such a position that it was struck repeatedly by the fins in the drum.

Strike Vote At Mills

The major union in British Columbia's pulp and paper industry is taking a strike vote this week following the breaking off of negotiations last Friday.

The United Paperworkers International Union has 7,200 members at 11 mills. This includes the paper machines at Crofton and the entire mills at Port Alberni, Campbell River and Port Alice on Vancouver Island.

Another union, the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, has 4,500 members at eight mills. Talks between this union and the industry recessed last week with negotiators returning to individual mills to deal with local bargaining issues.

The deadline for UPIU locals to complete strike votes is June 19, regional vice-president Pat O'Neal said today.

He said negotiations "foundered mainly on money matters" including union proposals on health and welfare, long-term disability, pensions, vacations, adjustments for steam plant and maintenance personnel and the main wage demand of 10½ per cent, with a minimum of 55 cents an hour, in each year of a two-year agreement.

The Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the companies, has offered both unions a two-year package including a 7½ per cent wage increase with a minimum of 33½ cents this year and a further 7½ per cent next year.

The present base labor rate is $4.08½ cents an hour and the mechanics rate is $5.70 an hour.

O'Neal said "considerable progress" was made since bargaining began May 7 "but in the opinion of the delegates insufficient to justify a settlement in view of the excellent state of the industry and the rocketing pace of inflation."

He said bureau demands for changes in work schedules during the Easter shutdown and the right to select relief foremen without regard to seniority "also created problems.

"Their refusal to discuss contracting out, job security and their adamant 'no' to the union's request for full disclosure on the millions of dollars tied up in pension funds further aggravated the situation."

Industry negotiator Don Lanskail said "we felt that negotiations had been proceeding in a constructive manner and in fact many of the issues are resolved." He expressed regret that UPIU chose to break off talks.

He said the industry's wage offer to both unions would cost $25 million.

Difficulties arose, he said, from the fact that simultaneous negotiations had to be conducted with both unions.

The industry wage offer also included a dental plan and "substantial improvements" in fringe areas such as vacations, health and welfare and pensions.

Both men indicated negotiations will resume after the strike votes have been taken.

Arrests Inflate Heroin

The local street price of heroin is fluctuating between $30 and $40 a cap as a result of Vancouver's recent crackdown, head of Victoria drug squad Sgt. David Staples said today.

Prices skyrocketed from the normal $20 a cap after Vancouver police arrested 173 persons last week in connection with the heroin trade.

In Vancouver the price of one cap reached $50 at one point but it has now dropped back to between $15 and $20, said Staples.

It is not known whether or not prices have gone that high in Victoria.

Most of Victoria's 500 known addicts have been "pretty sick" lately, said Staples, because heroin coming into the city has been cut by as much as 50 per cent with baking soda or other powders.

The situation is the same all over Vancouver Island, said Staples, prices jump every time "the heat's on."

Last week Staples said a $500,000 cocaine seizure in Vancouver and another in Los Angeles which netted $700,000 worth of cocaine would have no effect in Victoria.

Asked if the drug squad is planning raids similar to those in Vancouver, Staples said he could obviously not answer but did say, "We've always got something in the making."

All Flights On Time

Only Toronto and Charlottetown (which isn't served by Air Canada) were not hit by the rotating strike tactic of the IAM in its contract renewal dispute with the company. More than 700 union members were involved in today's walkouts.

In Victoria, 23 baggage handlers and loaders didn't report for work this morning. But no picket lines were established.

"We are operating everything on schedule so far," said Air Canada's local manager, Stan Mooney. Supervisors did the work.

11 PWA FLIGHTS

Air Canada has four flights in and out today and Pacific Western Airlines has 11. Air Canada ground crews service PWA in Victoria.

A 24-hour walkout hit Vancouver Saturday, the second since IAM began the rotating strikes. Today's was the first for Victoria.

Airline officials said the Vancouver strike caused a few minor delays but no flight cancellations.

In the east, Air Canada said it anticipated "some delays, particularly in the Maritimes. We are trying to space out our arrivals at the affected airports."

Talks between the IAM and Air Canada broke down last week. IAM said it won't go back to bargaining until Air Canada changes its position on issues.

STUMBLING BLOCKS

The airline said wages were the major stumbling block, but IAM said there are other important issues, including discrimination against union members in layoffs and language requirements for some jobs.

The layoff issue arose from last year's air traffic controllers strike when IAM complained its mechanics were laid off when they had work to do but clerical and supervisory personnel remained on the job with no work.

The union has sought a 20 per cent wage increase in a two-year contract while Air Canada has offered 15 per cent over 25 months. Mechanics with two years experience now earn between $4.99 and $5.49 an hour.

WARREN RUNNING

KELOWNA (CP) — B.C. Conservative leader Derril Warren said today he will seek his party's nomination to contest the Okanagan South byelection to fill the seat left vacant by the resignation last week of former premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Bennett, MLA for the riding since 1941, resigned his seat last Tuesday. On Friday the 34-year-old Conservative leader, defeated in his bid to win a legislative seat in North Vancouver-Seymour last August, was invited by the Conservative's local executive to let his name stand.

Warren said he has accepted a position with a Kelowna law firm and intends to make this city a permanent home for his family "win, lose or draw."

Warren said that he and his wife are both natives of Kelowna and were married here in 1960.

The date for the byelection has not yet been set.

NEWS BRIEFS

Oil Takeover

BEIRUT (UPI) — Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy announced today the nationalization of the Texas-owned Bunker Hunt Oil Co. Khadafy told a mass rally in Tripoli, "the revolutionary command council has decided to nationalize the Bunker Hunt American Oil company."

Hijack Haul

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Police in three Indian states launched a search today for three men who hijacked a Royal Nepal Airlines plane Sunday and diverted it to an abandoned airfield, where they escaped with a $400,000 bank shipment.

Hunger Strike

MOSCOW (UPI) — Seven Soviet Jewish scientists said today they have started a hunger strike to protest their "forcible detainment" in the Soviet Union and are prepared to take their lives if not allowed to emigrate.

Arms Seized

BEIRUT (AP) — Security forces seized a truckload of arms near the Syrian border early today after a five-minute gun battle in which one of the truck's occupants was killed.

ICCS Clamps Lifted

SAIGON (CP) — Restrictions on the movement of Canadian military personnel with the international truce force were lifted today after officials decided security risks had diminished considerably.

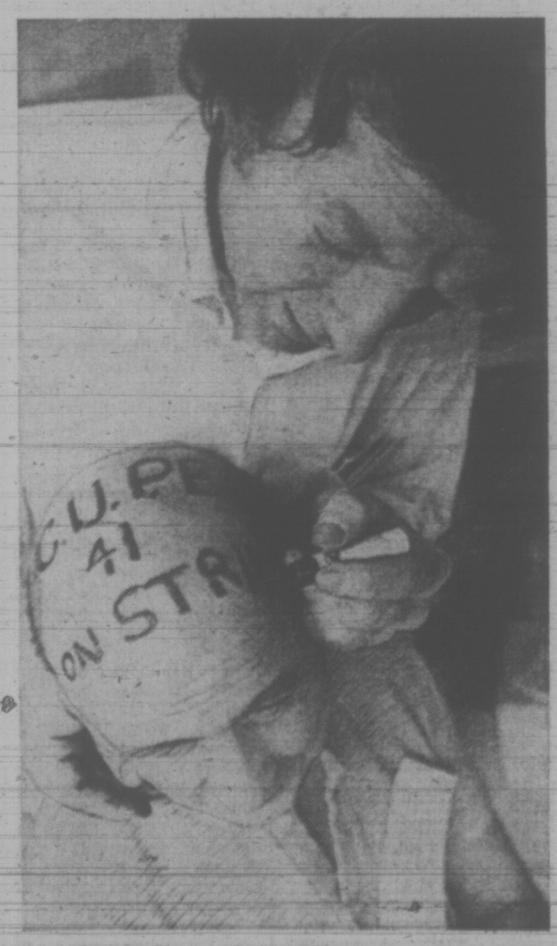
The 240 or so military personnel with the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) were confined to barracks, except for essential movements, Saturday during a major flare-up in hostilities across South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, in the besieged provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, two Canadian officers and other ICCS representatives are remaining in a sandbagged bunker near their compound to protect themselves from heavy artillery fire in the area.

In Paris, negotiations over a new pact continued today as Kissinger's top aide, William Sullivan, and his North Vietnamese counterpart, Nguyen To Thach, met in the Paris suburb of Le Vesinet for discussions. The two were thought unlikely to conduct any top-level bargaining.

TOMMIES HURT

SUFFIELD, Alta. (CP) — Fourteen members of the Third Company No. 1 Dragoon Guards, a British regiment, were injured early today when a live shell exploded on the training range at CFB Suffield, 50 miles northeast of Medicine Hat.



HEAD START on picket preparation is taken in Edmonton as Bruce Woodrow, one of 1,000 support staff workers at Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton has pertinent strike information penned on his pate by co-worker Cliff Ward. The support staff walked off the job at the hospital this morning over wage demands. In anticipation of the walkout, the hospital had already pared patient population by two-thirds.

Reject Drugs Dumped in B.C.: Cocke

The problem of poor-quality drugs coming into British Columbia is one that government and pharmacists must tackle together, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said today.

Cocke told delegates to the B.C. Pharmacy Convention at the Empress Hotel that he's had many reports of poor-quality drugs entering the province since Ontario's Parcost program was set up.

"Maybe we'll have to have our own Parcost," he said.

Parcost is a program of the Ontario government which tests different drugs, especially low-cost drugs, and sends pharmacists a list of drugs that have been tested and approved. Object is to provide high-quality drugs at the lowest possible prices.

Since it was set up, there have been reports that drugs that didn't win Parcost approval are being dumped in other provinces instead.

The federal government's drug-testing program, QUAD (Quality Drugs) has so far tested few drugs, Cocke said.

B.C. could possibly set up a Parcost scheme together with two or three other provinces, he said.

Cocke reminded the pharmacists that the government is still looking closely at setting up a government core drug purchasing program.

"A lot of the reason for the high (drug) prices is because of the fantastic advertising and . . . a very close relationship between drug companies," he said.

Aim of the government bulk-buying scheme would be lower drug prices, said Cocke.

He urged the pharmacists to break through the "semi-isolation" they now work in, and begin to work more closely with the rest of the health care team.

"If we don't do anything else we must provide ourselves with a communications network in the delivery of health care," he said.

The conference, which ends Wednesday, combines the annual meetings of the Pharmaceutical Association of B.C. and the B.C. Professional Pharmacists' Society. More than 100 pharmacists are attending.
